COOPERATIVE MARKETING

The question of the legality of the Farmers Cooperative Contracts seems to be well established. Every phase of the contract has been subjected to the most severe attacks, and it has been sustained in every point not only by the highest courts of the country, but by juries as well. The case that has caused much interest from all sides was the famous Pittman case, a Pitt county case last week. This was a fight which was, undoubtedly, staged by anti-association interests of all kinds and was, doubtless, financed by a pool of warehousemen.

It is hardly probable that any of the other 128 cases made by the members against the association will be heard for some time to come.

The public is beginning to see the purpose and need for the association of farmers for their mutual benefit, but see now as a fact that the farmer's products are almost the only things that bring wealth to the South, and for that reason they realize when the farmer is poor all are poor, and when the farmer is rich all are rich.

Give the farmer a good price, the lawyer, the doctor, the laborer, the merchant and all others will prosper too.

Every man in this section owes it to himself and his section to do all in his power to help the farmer in the movement to control the marketing of crops.

GOOD STREETS

The following is an editorial reprinted from THE ENTERPRISE of exactly twenty-one years ago:

The streets of Williamston are an eye sore to every visitor that comes to this town.

It goes very much against the grain to say this, but it is a fact; and as the old saying, "Your sins will find you out," so will the abominable streets of Williamston be found out by those who would like to come here and make their homes, and it will not be necessary for all the people in the State to come and see for themselves; either those that do come will herald facts far and wide.

If Williamston would grow and amount to anything more than an ordinary town, the streets must be fixed. Main street from the wharf to Hassell's stable can be fixed for $2,000, and by the town spending this amount it will save the merchant as much every year.

The Enterprise can't understand why the merchants haven't gotten together and demanded that the street be put in good shape. If a movement is made for this improvement, the improvement will be made. Will the merchants remain idle and continue to spend $2,000 or more every year for something that can be avoided?

THEIR OWN STYLE FLAPPERS SELECT

FLAPPERS DEFY SCHOOL HEADS, FACE CRITICS WITH DECLARATION

Somerseset, Pa., Aug. 24.—This little city has been somersaulted into a style case war with the bobbed hair, lipstick waving flappers arrayed on one side and the more timid sisters of long tresses and silkless stockings on the other.

The first clash occurred yesterday when the Parent-Teachers' Association formally endorsed the old-fashioned girl and took steps to petition the school board to adopt a uniform of dress for all school girls. The rules would bar silk hose, short skirts, bobbed hair and low neck, sleeveless dresses.

But! The flapper contingent, hearing of the meeting, stormed it. Their verbal protest, delivered in rhyme, was as short and snappy as the dress in a manner of the flapperette who delivered it:

"I can show my shoulders;
"I can show my knees;
"I'm a free born American;
"And can show what I please."

With that the flappers exited while the teachers' session was turned into an indignation meeting.

Action on the dress question will be demanded of the school board, the parents and teachers decided.
