

BEEKEEPERS TO CONVENE AT WASHINGTON

Annual State Convention To Be Held On Thursday, January 17 - Many Expected

Washington, N. C., Jan. 10.—Letters have been sent out by C. L. Sams, specialist in beekeeping, notifying all members of the Association of Beekeepers of the coming State Convention to be held in this city next week, January 17th. Mr. Sams says: "This meeting is for the benefit of North Carolina beekeepers and the program is made up of our own members. An encouraging number of successful beekeepers from many sections of the State have cheerfully agreed to discuss various subjects on modern beekeeping."

All beekeepers whether members or not, are invited to attend. All persons interested in the welfare of beekeeping, including county agents, are urged to be present. This meeting is held at Washington for the special benefit of beekeepers in Eastern North Carolina and they should not fail to take advantage of it.

The meeting will be interesting and instructive. Please extend the invitation to others and meet us at Washington, N. C., January 17, 1924.

The citizens of Washington will welcome the visiting beekeepers and all others who may come to attend the convention.

Beekeeping is proving a profitable source of income for those who are engaged in it as this section offers exceptional advantages for the raising and keeping of bees. Professor Eckeret of the State College is expected to be in charge of arrangements for the one day session.

The above article should be of great interest to the beekeepers of Martin county and this section.

Several years ago the United States Government made a survey of the entire country to find the spots where bees would thrive without artificial feeding and it was found that along the banks of the Roanoke river about 30 miles above and below Williamston grew plants and trees that furnished the proper food for bees.

This should make the bee industry very profitable to the people of our county and the meeting at Washington would be beneficial to those interested.

Why not buy a Ford, a mule, plenty of Texaco or Standard gas and oil and live in Williamston? You'd be happy ever afterwards.

Friends here and elsewhere will regret to hear of the serious illness of Mrs. Sue Ewell.
