

SERVICE

Speaking of service we have it when it comes to rural mail service.

Last Wednesday morning James E. Harrell left to serve his route, No. 4, on his Ford as usual. After plowing through about fifteen miles of mud and snow, blinded by the snow, he started through some water in the road. He did not get through until he waded out through water three feet deep.

Then he got one of his many friends to take a pair of mules and pull his Ford through. After he did this it was impossible to start the "old fiver" so he borrowed one of the mules and buggy and set out for another installment. He soon came to a pond with water in it so high that a mule could not make it without swimming, so he returned the mule to his friend, John Smithwick. Mr. Smithwick then carried him over to Mr. Nick Griffin's and from there he started to town but was blocked off by more high water. He called on Mr. John Cherry for assistance and Mr. Cherry put his mule to a cart and brought him through the water at Leggett's creek. Then for the last end of his trip he walked, arriving at the post office about nine thirty, cold and almost drowned, but in spite of all the water and high water at that the cheerful smile still remained on Jim's face.

The people who patronize Route 4 should be thankful for such service.

FIRST SNOW OF WINTER

The first snow of the winter came down Wednesday. Some people like to see snow and nearly every child rejoices when it begins to fall but this time after a 48 hour rain everybody was glad to see a change from rain to snow.

Yesterday as we were running off the "old rag" a visitor was standing near the type setting machine and happened to ask when we were going to press. We asked him did he mean when we were going to press our clothes or what. He said he did not mean clothes but wanted to know when we were going to run the papers. All the time the press was going its way turning out the papers at the rate of two thousand per hour. We never did tell him when we were going to press but referred him to look in the direction of the press. He is to be excused, for our old equipment reminded one of a rock quarry.

Mr. H. M. Stubbs is in Knoxville Tenn. on a professional trip.
