

OWL-LAFFS

Hello! Fate is a grim gambler. No one should wager old age with it.

Customer—"Your dog seems very fond of watching you cut hair."

Barber—"I ain't that; sometimes I make a mistake and snip off a little bit of a customer's ear."

ACID TEST FOR OPTIMISM
As the movie director would say, Can you register joy—

When chasing your hat through the mud on a windy day?

When you have a tooth pulled?
When the dry agents raid your cellar?
When you make out your income tax report?
When the boss bawls you out?
When you run out of gas 10 miles from a filling station?
Well, if you say you can, you can have the Presidency of the Arrianse Club.

THE STENOGRAPHER'S STATISTICS

Men
Who chew pipes when they dictate.
Who say "Now girlie."
Who spring a big word when I'm already 10 words behind.
Who wear white enameled lodge pins as big as a nickel.
Who say "hey?" when I know darned well they heard me.
Who still whistle, "Yes, We Have No Bananas" and think it's clever to use the saying in reference to every other article known.
(Time out for gum chewing and reflection.)
"Yeh, I hate 'em, but I reckon some day I'll marry one and start hating 'em all over again."

Henry Gurkin thinks the old-fashioned Sunday suit has gone to join the old-fashioned Sunday.

It seems to us that most men, judging from newspaper reports, use very little discretion in choosing the weapons with which they strike their wives. The most meticulous man in this respect we ever knew always used a hatchet, but he was always careful to avoid dulling the sharp edge and never tried to hack through a skull or anything like that.

IT ISN'T
It's really not a simple trick To write a snappy limerick, For if ye publish one with spice, We promptly hear: This isn't nice! And should we print a harmless one, You'll say, "Another rotten pun!" It's really not a simple trick To write a snappy limerick.

W are asked why women don't learn to vamp their own husbands. The answer is, we guess, that after living with them, for a while they decide the old fools are not worth the trouble.
