

ROASTING EARS WITH BUTTER

Raleigh, N. C., May 26.—No vegetable is more tempting than a nice plate of roasting ears well cooked, served with good fresh butter. If one is afraid he will burn his fingers, the corn may be cut from the cob and cooked in that way.

In order to have this fresh corn for the table daily, repeated plantings may be made until the first of August suggests R. F. Payne, extension horticulturist for the State College of Agriculture. Two of the varieties most commonly used in this State for roasting ears are Norfolk Market and Trucker's Favorite. However, neither of these varieties is the best as they are not in the sweet corn group. Once sweet corn is used, Mr. Payne states that the taste for other varieties is permanently lost. Two of the best varieties of sweet corn are Country Gentleman and Evergreen.

"Any soil well adapted to field corn will grow sweet corn," says Mr. Payne. "Sod soil that has been turned is best. It should be thoroughly prepared, well manured and fertilized. A good high grade fertilizer applied at the rate of 1,000 to 2,000 pounds per acre will give good results. Cultivation should be given frequently throughout the entire growing season."

"Sweet corn should be planted about 2 inches deep in rows 3 to 3 1/2 feet apart and 2 1/2 to 3 feet apart in the row. Three or four grains should be put per hill.

"Do not neglect to make frequent plantings. Always remember that the surplus can usually be disposed of locally at a good price."

OF INTEREST TO THE FARMER

Watch out for lice and mites with the coming of hot weather. No flock of poultry will pay profits and feed these vermin at the same time, say poultry specialists.

Top Tarheel says that he can gather more roughage with a mow than he can with his hands and that's why he plants hay crops instead of pulling fodder.

Feeding the pigs liberally this summer will make them less costly this fall and it might cause them to be in condition to sell on the high market in September, suggests W. W. Shay, swine extension specialist for the State College.

The South is famed for its watermelons. They are sweet, luscious and tasty. Every farm should have its patch.

When 210 farmers cooperated to sell a carlot of poultry at Washington in Beaufort County, an error of only ten cents was made in the entire transaction, reports the extension agent in that county.

North Carolina set the pace in shipping strawberries during the first weeks of May. Wet weather during the latter part of the period caused a decline in prices but on the whole the prices were fair, reports the State Division of Markets.

Many other counties now want to begin the cooperative carlot shipment of poultry. The success attending the efforts of County Agent John V. Arrendale in Macon County is attracting attention in the other mountain counties.

The spring emergence of boll weevils may be light but that doesn't mean the weevils will not develop sufficiently fast and numerous not to harm the cotton this season, counsels Franklin Sherman, Chief, of the Division of Entomology for the State College and Department.

A RATION FOR THE COW FOR THE YEAR

Raleigh, N. C., May 26.—How much food will it take for one good dairy cow for one year? This is a question many prospective dairymen would like to know. J. A. Arey, dairy extension specialist for the State College of Agriculture, answers the question for North Carolina conditions but he bases his figures on the amount it will take for next winter in order that those dairymen who have not done so may make their plans now for growing as much of the necessary food as possible this summer.

Mr. Arey says, "Now is the time to plan for profitable milk production next winter. This can be done if each owner will produce for his cow, 1 1/2 tons of legume hay, 15 bushels of corn, 10 bushels of oats, and 3 tons of stock beets or corn silage.

"If this amount of food is grown for each cow and 300 pounds of cottonseed meal and 300 pounds of wheat bran purchased, where they are not grown on the farm, and fed in conjunction with these feeds, together with pasture and some low protein roughage, a balanced ration may be supplied throughout the year."
