

OLD HICKORY CHIPS

Come on Boys, let's put another Woodrow Wilson in the White House. John W. Davis is one.

The Widow of the late President Wilson, in congratulating Mr. Davis on his nomination, said, "The thing Mr. Wilson fought for will have a worthy champion in you." Mr. Davis was very close to Wilson and was regarded by Mr. Wilson as a tower of strength in intellect, character and statesmanship.

When the bewhiskered Henry Cabot Lodge, delivered the key-note speech at the Republican National Convention, which nominated Harding, four years ago, he said to the people of the United States, "let us drive the Wilson dynasty out of power." The people took him at his word and did so. They have been repenting ever since. Yes, they drove the Wilson party out of power and turned the grafters in. Yes, come on boys, let's put the statesmanship, honesty and patriotism of another Wilson in the White House.

It didn't take John W. Davis long to start his campaign.

Inconveniently for Mr. La Follette, there are many labor unions, as well as bankers, among Mr. Davis' clients.

There are indications that the Republicans fear that Davis and Bryan will put the pain into their campaign.

TEXACO. When there is a better gasoline made the Texas Company will make it, and The Harrison Oil Company will sell it. Try TEXACO.

There is no way of thwarting ambition when it is backed by grim determination. We have just heard of one chap who "worked his way thru college" playing poker.

We've found the prize stinky woman of Connecticut. When she wears out a pair of pins she has them re-sharpened.

Girl's generally speaking, may be divided into two classes—those who roll the eye and those who eye the roll. Not only do the voters have to collect a Congress, but they have to endure it.

Nothing can break down Democratic optimism now. The party is rapidly getting ready to quaff the bowl of victory.

Canada will cooperate with the United States in the enforcement of the rum laws, but the border will probably continue to be a leaky dike.

The sign "Detour to Right" is a sly hint to drivers that there are more and better fields for pedestrian victims around the corner.

A machine is now perfected which can lay several thousand bricks an hour. Labor Unions claim it is a "Seak."

"I hear that Dr. Mosey Parks is getting out his first novel."—"That so? Who's the hero?"—"The publisher."

Senator Copeland, who is also a doctor, has been giving out a cure for the Ark. If he could invent a scheme to stop the Ark for taking money from the Federal Treasury, he would be entitled to a niche in the Hall of Fame.

They do say that the most difficult thing about bedtime stories is to make them simple enough for the old folks to understand.

German writers now concede that the financial control of the world has passed to the United States. It has taken them a long while to wake up. Compared to them Rip Van Winkle was a light sleeper.

Two prohibition enforcement agents in New York were arrested on suspicion of being bootleggers. It was a mistake, but a perfectly natural one.

In an election year it is hard to carry water on both shoulders or to carry wet and dry States.

President Coolidge has been gassed by an army surgeon in an effort to cure his cold. But before that happened he was gassed by his supposed friends in the Senate.

Cablegram says that all of the hotel cooks in Paris have gone out on a strike. Prospective American visitors are inquiring if the bartenders are still on the job.

CANDOR IN SPORT. "Do you take an interest in golf?" "Yes", said Miss Cayenne, "I like the costume. Friends tell me it is one of the most becoming games I ever played."

Can't those Japs sour-grape themselves into the belief that their country is, after all, the best anyway?

One advantage the radio has over attending a national convention in person is that you can shut off a speaker the moment he gets tiresome.

TEXACO. When there is a better gasoline made the Texas Company will make it, and The Harrison Oil Company will sell it. Try TEXACO.

With Cal for poison, and Charley for noise, most Republicans should be satisfied.

Carter Glass, with subtle sagacity, established right in the lobby campaign headquarters a big pitcher of ice water and glass—and for the first time a delegate was able to get something to drink around the Wabcock-Astoria, except Scotch.

Both conventions avoided "wetness" but no one can charge that the Democratic convention was cut and dried.

Home was sweet, indeed to some of those tired delegates—and some others were no doubt ashamed to go there.

If every woman has a right to change her mind, of course she has a right to change her vote.

"Should mothers have any special education for their responsibilities?" asks an inquiring one. Not if she has a maiden aunt; she won't need it.

UPKEEP GOES DOWN

Purity in a motor oil means that the refining processes have been thorough. The substances that form hard carbon, and tend to defeat the very purpose of lubricating oil, have been eliminated.

The clean, clear, golden color of TEXACO Motor Oil demonstrates its unusual purity. Light, medium, heavy, extra-heavy—it is always full-bodied but always that same golden color.

Wherever there is metal-to-metal contact, with movement, TEXACO Motor Oil replaces friction with freedom.—TEXACO.

Japan is on the point of refusing to buy from us any more native souvenirs to sell our tourists when they go over there. She must be real mad.

HOGS DOUBLE PROFIT ON CORN

Raleigh, N. C. July 24.—Corn raised on land that will produce forty bushels per acre will cost around 70 cents per bushel to produce charging for man labor at 30 cents per hour. If sold as corn on the farm at $1.00 per bushel there is a profit of 30 cents per bushel, or $12.00 per acre.

When this morn is properly supplemented with balancing feed and fed to hogs; the hogs sold at $8.25 per hundred pounds, delivered at the farm, and the cost of the supplemental feeds then deducted, the returns for corn will be about $1.30 per bushel. The profit is thereby doubled, and the plant food value of about 15 cents per bushel, will remain on the farm, thus paying handsomely for the trouble of selling the corn in this way.

When fed to hogs we have a per acre profit of $24.00 and a return per hour for human labor devoted to producing the corn of slightly over $1.00 or $10.00 per ten-hour day. This is one of the reasons why properly fed live stock is more profitable than the customary method of figuring shows states, W. W. Shay Swine Extension Specialist for the State College of Agriculture.

ASK THEIR OWN EXECUTION

Student in Kansas College Proves Many Persons Sign Petitions Without Reading Them.

A year ago a student in a Kansas college came to the conclusion that half of the people who sign petitions never read what they are signing. So he prepared a petition to the faculty of the school for the execution of all persons who attached their names to the document. He went from student to student, asked each to sign, and more than a dozen put their names on the dotted line, implying that they have their heads cut off. The execution never was held, but the student proved his point.

It is amazing how willing persons are to sign petitions. They seldom read what they are signing and often neglect to ask what it is all about, says the Emporia Gazette. In a recent election in Emporia a Catholic priest unwittingly signed a Kluxers' petition, and an Emporia druggist remarked the other day he never questioned petition carriers but signed them one and all for business purposes.

The Gazette believes in the theory that names are news and by printing the various petitions and the names of the signers, it often gives its readers a bit of interesting reading. This policy will be carried out more vigorously in the future. So when you sign a petition it might be well to read it carefully and ponder over it a minute or two before you sign. The best way to avoid regret over signing a petition is not to sign it unless you believe every word in it.

LONDON LOSING PANTOMIMES

Ancient Christmas Holiday Plays Are Gradually Disappearing From Stage in Metropolis.

Londoners are lamenting the passing of another custom which for more than half a century had been a symbol of the holiday spirit in the metropolis of Great Britain. Naturally a city which boasts of such ancientry abounds in customs which show themselves at certain periods of the year or are notable by their disappearance. Now it is the disappearance of pantomime which calls to the attention of the citizens of even such a venerable capital the fact that customs change. There was a time, and it did not reach farther back into the past than a score of years, in which nearly every London playhouse was turned over in the Christmas season to pantomime, says the New York Herald. It really mattered little whether the adventures of "Puss in Boots" or "The Sleeping Beauty" were the inspiration for the play so long as there was enough of humor, music, dancing and spectacle in the extravaganza.

Now only one or two playhouses in London will present such spectacles, and that is nothing in comparison with the number of such shows that used to be seen there at Christmas tide. There is no doubt that pantomime has lost its hold and London is determined to be philoposic about its loss.

Blinding Headaches "For about twenty years," says Mrs. P. A. Walker, a well-known citizen of Newburg, Ky., "one of our family remedies has been Black-Draught, the old reliable. I use it for colds, biliousness, sour stomach and indigestion. I was subject to headaches when my liver would get out of order. I would have blinding headaches and couldn't stop about my work. Just couldn't go. I used and it relieved me. "About eight years ago my wife got down with liver and stomach trouble. We tried all week to help her, but she didn't get any better. One day I said to the doctor, 'I believe I will try Black-Draught, it helps my liver.' He said that I might try it and to follow directions. She was nauseated and couldn't eat or rest. She began taking Black-Draught and in two days she was greatly improved and in a week she was up. Try Black-Draught. It costs only one cent a dose. Sold everywhere. E-99
