Customer—A Literary Digest, please.
Drug Clerk, after some minutes' diligent searching—How is that put up in liquid or tablet form?
—O—O—
Advertising, says the ad writer, is for me nothing but perpetual motion. I write them and get paid for writing them, my wife reads them and then I pay for them.
—O—O—
To All Garage Mechanics,
Your example doth remind us,
We can live our lives in peace,
And departing, leave behind us
Steering wheels all smeared with grease.
—O—O—
Customer—Will the handle come off this parasol?
Clerk—No, ma'am; you couldn't hammer it off—it's riveted on there.
Customer—Then I don't want it; I have a silver handle that I want to put on it.
Clerk (easily pulling off the handle and grinning sheepishly) Well, when you know we all have to tell 'em something.
—O—O—

—O—O—
Flubb—Appearances are often deceptive.

Do you think you could care for a fellow like me?
Oh, yes, I think so—if he wasn't too much like you.
—O—O—
A man selling oil stock maybe conducting a hole sale business.

—O—O—
Monk (just introduced) I think I have seen you before somewhere.
Ruth: Perhaps you have. I've been there.
—O—O—
Look towards the light, and the shadows will all fall behind.
