

COOPS GATHER IN WASHINGTON

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE GREET DELEGATES FROM NATION'S ORGANIZED FARMERS

Washington, D. C., January 9.—Representatives of 600,000 cooperating farmers gathered here this week in the third cooperative marketing conference were greeted by President Coolidge at the White House with the declaration that "It is particularly to be desired that our agricultural marketing associations be placed as soon as possible on a basis of the utmost security and stability. This, I am convinced, we shall best accomplish by developing the broadest and soundest program of cooperative marketing."

"More than anything else we need a generation of farmers trained to cooperative marketing," the President continued, pointing out that the success of cooperative marketing is almost strictly dependent upon the loyalty of the farmers themselves to their own movement, and said that "I want society as a whole to help, but I want the farmers to do their share, and I warn them that this will be the lion's share."

Judge Robert W. Bingham, of Kentucky, chairman of the conference, declared that today commodity cooperative-marketing associations have the best financial record of all forms of business in the United States, stating that there have been more failures in the past three or four years among large banks of the country than among cooperative-marketing associations.

Attacks like that of Henry Ford in the earborn Independent against certain commodity-marketing associations are, according to Judge Bingham, a sign of the increasing strength of these organizations of the American farmers. "Mr. Ford by his Dearborn Independent, with all of his resources, with all of his power, has not been able to stop one single cooperative-marketing association," declared Judge Bingham, who stated that this attempt to put the agricultural population of America on a sound basis means the whole future of America, and warned that garrulous misery and discontent have marked the beginning of the decline of nations that once appeared as great as America.
