A Day of Deficits

THIS IS TRULY the age of [illegible]. In our national government we find [illegible] and that [illegible] is the rule. In our state government [illegible] reaching into several millions.

In our county government there [illegible] the deficit and also [illegible] town [illegible]

It is not my purpose that of any person to criticize those in charge for this condition of affairs and [illegible] for all the officials of our government [illegible] fair to them to say that the greatest deficit of this day is not in the public affairs [illegible] individual businesses.

The average individual [illegible] most of our governmental institutions. [illegible] showdown, we [illegible] We [illegible] want be people themselves. We [illegible] We get a little [illegible] fun to [illegible] We are [illegible] want, without counting [illegible] State, has gotten many [illegible] comes, and we see the deficit.

Practically every [illegible] centers [illegible] his week [illegible] town, where they were [illegible] a brute [illegible] the public expenditures [illegible] or the people.

Every boy [illegible] which cuts [illegible] And so go things everywhere.

In our own State Legislature we [illegible] tions gathered around the most expensive [illegible] travagant manner. The call and [illegible] role, and we gladly [illegible]

We are certainly [illegible] will have to be [illegible] 1925 is not too [illegible]
