Give Honor To Whom Honor Is Due

MR. EDISON says: "We have come to the end of a scientific era of invention and discovery, and to enter a new era of spiritualizing his physical power."

This statement, coming as it does from the leading inventor of all ages, should have much weight with the world, which has become so engrossed with trying inventions that they have not really stopped to use and enjoy the blessings of such inventions.

Three of the most important factors in bringing the people to the proper state of mind to enjoy the blessings of science, the pulpit, the school platform, and the press, may have been negligent in cultivating the people to make proper use of the things which science and invention have given us.

To some extent, they have all failed to do their full duty. The pulpit has too often boasted of the excellency and wonders of science and invention rather than to meekly thank the Father for unfolding these mysteries that they may become mystic to man.

The teacher has used the powers given to man to enable him to give us useful things that we might live nearer the ideal life of ease.

The press has also done its part in boasting of the great inventions and great inventions.

Now, Mr. Edison says, it is time for us to use the things that have been shown us by science and discovery. We are to recognize that not only the forces, but have been brought together to form the things found in the field of invention but the mind of the man who put them in action were all created and made by God, and that his only purpose was to help the human race in its course of life.

Now the three great factors in helping in carrying these things in reach of the people, placing them where they can be reached by the folks, are the pulpit, the teaching platform, and the press, all important.

If the spirit of God does not go with invention, then it will not succeed. Invention must serve the people, not hinder them. Too much has already been done to gratify pleasure, or hurt our enemies.

If Edison is right, then the time has come for us to plead with men to come to the real source of blessings and when we give honor to whom it is due we may expect to succeed.

The War Department, rubbing its eyes and waking up a little, orders eighty-five flying machines, made in the United States. For ten machines by the Curtiss company $250,000 will be paid, and for seventy-five from the Douglas company $883,000, about. That's a start, and multiplied by a hundred, it would give the country a good beginning for an air fleet.

Fortunately Henry Ford and his son Edsel B. Ford are in the aircraft field. They will let us know what a flying machine ought to cost, and something about the theory that the "flying kite" of an aeroplane engine is only about 100 hours. The Fords will give you an engine that, without expensive renewal of parts, will fly around the world ten times. They don't believe in an engine as short lived as an ice cream cone.

Just as the virtuous complain that women leave nothing to the imagination, they suddenly decide to cover up again. "Dress is to be more subtle" this season than in other seasons.

That isn't saying much, for there is nothing subtle about a lady barebacked to her waist in the evening, with a skirt above her knees in the day time.

But fashion really means to reform for the moment. Arms that have been naked from the top of the shoulder down, looking in some mottled cases like a butcher shop exhibit, are now to be covered with "soft mysterious veiling." Thanks for that, with or without the mystery. And shawls of brilliant colors, worn "to reveal personality," will cover up almost everything.

This season we learn that

BASE-BALL
We take a right smart interest in the Nation's base-ball game, and we're ready, on occasion, for to eulogize the same—but, all us old-time fellers that was experts in our day, will harbor strong opinions, how these modern fellers play.
We cherish our suspicions on the way the thing is done—when a team will worry half a day an' never score a run! They mebbe do their level best to play a winnin' game, — and, under them conditions, it would seem they ain't to blame.
The "Williams" Crick Spell binders" was a team of long ago, who weren't afraid to pitch the ball that now-a-days they throw. — And when we played "The Buckeyes" there in Jefferson's medder-lot, we knocked the kiver off the pill, and beat 'em in a trot!
I think the score was forty-six to twenty-eight or less, — fact, they way we raised the dust would baffle any guess; a while we loved the Nation game, and twirled a fearful lot the most of us was partial to the old "three-covered cat."

Every FORD has its day

There is no other car built like the Ford. Many widely used lubricating oils do not always do a good job on a Ford because of its different transmission.

We own and operate a large number of Fords which are put through gruelling service over all kinds of roads and in all kinds of weather. We kept at this lubrication problem until we have an oil that does the trick. Now you can buy it.
