EDUCATION AND RELIGION

The question has been asked us whether a man who has no education and no religion is worth more than a beast. We can not answer the question, but suppose the answer would rest on the definition of the two words "education and religion."

If a man has not enough religion give him some inspiration for the higher life and drifts along as the beasts, with no other idea than to eat and drink and be merry and tomorrow die, then perhaps his religion does him little good.

Education has so many variations that it can hardly be described. It does not mean knowledge of letters and figures only. It means a knowledge of things and how to handle them for some good and useful purpose.

If a person has only enough education to feed himself, he is hardly educated, because the insects, fowls, and animals have sufficient knowledge to take care of themselves. Education must then call for a knowledge to be able to do something for others for tomorrow. The fields and cities are the products of education. Educated people clothe themselves and have homes. Totally uneducated people—savages—have no clothes and live in the forests just as the animals do.

We can not answer the question further than to say we are sure it is better to have both education and religion (Christianity).

How Doctors Treat Colds and the Flu

To break up a cold overnight or to cut short an attack of grippe, influenza, sore throat or tonsillitis, physicians and druggists are now recommending Calotabs, the purified and refined calomel compound tablet that gives you the effects of calomel and salts combined, without the unpleasant effects of either.

One or two Calotabs at bed-time with a swallow of water, that's all. No salts, no nausea nor the slightest interference with your eating, work or pleasure. Next morning your cold has vanished, your system is thoroughly purified and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you please,—no danger.

Get a family package, containing full directions, only 35 cents. At any drug store. (adv)

SHOULD PROHIBIT BILLBOARDS ON SIDEWALKS

Williamston streets are cluttered with more advertising signs than most small towns of its size.

There is now a sign setting on the sidewalk less than 20 feet from the post office, occupying about one-fourth of the entire width of the sidewalk advertising Velvet Ice Cream. We have no idea how much Velvet ice cream contributes to the upkeep of the town in the way of taxes or whether it is taxed at all, but we do know it gives the town a ragged appearance to see the sidewalks blocked with billboards and every other conceivable clutterment.

An ordinance along this line would make the town look better, and most towns are judged by their looks.

Persons indebted to said estate are hereby notified to present same for payment on or before September 3rd, 1926, or this notice will be pleaded in bar of their recovery. All persons indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment of same.

This Sept. 3, 1925.

SPITLESS TOWN

"Not a very elegant title," you say. No, indeed, and not a very elegant habit, you will agree. Not a very elegant thing to do, this spitting. In fact a very disgusting species of license.

You do not indulge in it? So much the better then, but do you allow your friends, your father, your brother, your husband, or your son to do it? SO-O-O-O? You do not spread disease yourself you are not guilty of an offense against decency and yet you permit your associates to do and be so without voicing a protest. Then YOU too might be considered responsible in a small measure for epidemics, for suffering and for death.

I knew a little boy once,—a lad of about nine years. He was bedridden, had been so for over a year when I first saw him. Pitiful little chap—Alex! Had tuberculosis of the bones and the knee joint was larger than a football, by a good deal. The particles of bone were coming through the flesh which was also diseased. The odor was so offensive that no one but the doctor and the good nurses, the father, and the mother would visit his hospital room. One day, with his face quivering, he turned his appealing eyes to mine and said, "I wish the other children would come in and play with me. Not even the little Jesus would come to see me, I guess." You think I should not tell you such a story? How else am I going to make you see how terrible—thing it may be to sputterate in public places, or ferret matter in any places, except into a handkerchief or its equivalent, which can be boiled or burned. How can you cure unless you know of some of these awful consequences? Children especially, which follow a relapse.

I know the old excuse. You and they "have not the germs of tuberculosis in your nose and throat." How do you know? Pneumonia, influenza, diphtheria, scarlet fever, and most of the other infections—how are they spread if not in this way and by coughing and sneezing improperly?

Little children are the ones who are most frequently endangered because of their great susceptibility. Doctors and nurses are all the time seeing just such suffering as Alex went through. It is not rare.—It is not necessary. Use your scouring powders and your soaps, by all means, but in the name of pity and decency, wipe out the prevalent habit of spitting. Make yours a "spitless town" in the full meaning of the term.

The ambition of millions of American youths was realized by that boy who went on the stand at Dayton to testify against his teacher.

Spain may be a poorly governed country, but you will observe how smoothly she shifted the load of that war onto France.
