Book Lovers' Club Met Tuesday Evening, 12th

The first meeting of the year 1926 of the Book Lovers' Club was delightfully entertained by Mrs. Mayo Little on Tuesday evening, January 12, 1926. This being the beginning of the new year's work that is planned for the club this year, there was nearly 100 per cent in attendance.

The club was agreeably surprised at the treasurer's report.

The chairman of the Tuberculosis Christmas seal sale campaign, Mrs. C. D. Carroway, reported $26 worth of seals were sold. The club voted to keep $16 and send in $10 to headquarters. Mrs. Carroway was thanked by the club for the effort she put forth in selling these seals.

The committee that was on the Woman's Club movement, namely, Mrs. V. A. Ward and Mrs. Mayo Little, reported that they had not made a house-to-house canvass yet, but that they were going to call a meeting of the whole committee, which is composed of Mrs. G. H. Cox and Mrs. W. H. Gray, and make plans for getting the women that are interested notified. It was decided that the date of February 9, which is the first Friday in February, be the set date for the preliminary meeting which will be called for the purpose of discussing such an organization.

The new books were all in, and the members were delighted with them. After the exchange of books, the business, assisted by Misses Mary Adams and Gladys Bailey served delicious ginger ale salad topped with cherries, hot tea, and fruit cake.

The club adjourned to meet with Mrs. J. C. Smith on Tuesday evening, January 26, 1926. The program committee will have a program for this meeting.

Miss Gladys Bailey, sister of Mrs. Little, was the invited guest.

ly reunion to the Jackson family on Christmas Day. After the guests arrived and the pleasure of the reunion of the entire family was discussed, they were shown to the dining room which was decorated for the occasion and each of the guests enjoyed a real turkey dinner, together with several other good eats which had been prepared for this special occasion by Mr. and Mrs. Cox, after which they were served with punch and ambrosia course.

Those present were Mrs. Maggie Jackson and children, of Greenville, N. C., Mrs. R. E. Jackson and family, of Tarboro, N. C., Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Jackson, of Greenville, N. C., Mr. A. H. Jackson, of Ayden, N. C., Mr. R. Cannon and family, of Ayden, and Mr. L. F. Weatherston and family, of Raleigh, N. C.

After the day was spent and the respective guests announced their enjoyment of the day, they returned to their respective homes with the hope that they might meet again with the family in such a wonderful event.

Kitchen Shower in Honor of Mrs. Koebuck

The event of the evening was a beautiful kitchen shower given Monday evening for Mrs. Koebuck by Misses Gladys Bailey and Mary Adams at their home. The house was beautifully decorated in pink and white.

The guests were met at the door by Miss Gladys Koebuck and introduced to the receiving line by Miss Louise Koebuck. Following with Mrs. Koebuck were Misses Gladys Bailey and Mary Adams.

Then the bride received her surprise of the evening when she looked and saw at the rear of the room a large number of useful yet beautiful gifts. Much merriment followed as the bride opened the presents.

Misses Catherine Ross, Mary Koebuck and Marjorie Koebuck served delicious refreshments consisting of fruit jelly and cake.

At ten o'clock the guests left, declaring they had spent an enjoyable evening.

C. V. Nepper of Randolph, Mass., has created a chicken and a turkey and exhibited the species called "turken" at the New England poultry show last week. Poultry men say it is a very handsome fowl for the dinner table.

Hog and Hominy and Finance Go Together

On a visit to the A. E. Smith Hardware Store, the writer's attention was called to the attractive window which carried him back to the days of childhood, when a hog killing day was the same as a family reunion is now. This window is decorated with an attractive scene of material that is appropriate for the occasion. It carries pots, pans, knives, scrapers, boilers, cans for the lard, and several other things, and above all there is one thing that the writer could not solve; there was a one-gallon jug, stopper, and a cup placed on the lard can just below an attractive drawing that was obtained from some school child of the high school; now this jug was not labeled, and the country is supposed to be dry. Go look, and help me to solve the problem.

Family Reunion At Hamilton Christmas

Mr. and Mrs. Z. T. Cox, of Hamilton, N. C., delightfully gave a fam-

ATWATER KENT RADIO

Said George Ade

"I NEVER THOUGHT I would live to coax a grand organ recital out of something about twice as large as a cigar box."

That's what the famous Indiana writer said about his Model 20 Compact Receiving Set. It's so small that it harmonizes with any surroundings—yet it is a full-powered, five-tube set, superbly efficient in all-round performance. You will be just as pleased as George Ade. We are always glad to demonstrate.
