SWINE SHOW AT FAIR HAS BEEN OF GREAT AID

As to the importance of the Roanoke Fair the swine show this year has been of great aid. Breeders state it to be the greatest show ever staged in the entire South. So many hogs were entered that a second judge was required in making the awards.

A show of that size assures the success of a fair, and to bring so many hogs the fair must have a good reputation. There is no doubt that breeders learned much when they viewed the different herds on exhibition, and it is through such observation that progress is made not only in that line but in all lines. It is no little honor to those in charge to have built such a show in the length of time that this show has run.

UNUSUALLY GOOD-SPIRITED CROWDS AT FAIR

The one thing most noticeable and which was most pleasing at the fair was the excellent discipline of the patrons. Every one appeared in a most cheerful mood at all times, and there was little cause for fight. An occasional drunk only added to the many freaks. Few arrests were made, and as far as we know all matters were settled in a most satisfactory manner. Surely the good spirit prevailing at our fair has as much to do with its success as the exhibits, shows, free acts, and other features do. We should stress this spirit of good will more than we do, for after all what can be more pleasing than meeting old friends and having them join you in a ride on the Hey Day, or visit the shows?

TEAPOT DOME GOES BACK TO ITS RIGHTFUL OWNER

Teapot Dome goes back to its rightful owner, the people of the United States, according to a decision of a United States circuit court of appeals. A lower court had previously held that the government's lease to Harry Sinclair, which was swindled through by Secretary of the Interior Fall, was valid.

The oil field known as Teapot Dome was the most valuable of all the government's reservations.

The latest decision came with some surprise after the lower court had held the contract valid. Yet there was a feeling of confidence among the people that the higher courts would easily find fraud enough to cancel the contracts.

The Sinclair Company made millions on its stock boom upon the first court decision; doubtless the new decision will cause a slump in it.

SOUNDS GOOD—BUT IT WON'T WORK

The Washington Daily News has discovered a movement in a woman's organization to demand of every man offer to marry to prove his economic standing and mental capacity, and to require of every would-be bride to show that she could support herself and children if her husband should die.

Of course, these are fine deals, but what will they amount to? Just think of a young man in love; what does he know about economics and mental capacity. He is supposed, in these modern days to spend lavishly in his courtship, and frequently shows no signs of mental capacity at all.

Of course, these days are just like those that have passed and those to come. The man in love forgets economy and often fails to show much signs of mentality.

And then, coming to the bride, certainly when she has the misfortune to become a widow she can adapt herself quickly to her surroundings, for the mother is the mother of inventions when it comes to caring for her own.

Yet why should we always be monkeying with love, and when folks begin to fall in love let us be charitable enough to say go ahead and do the best you can, just as folks have always done and are going to do in the future.

If such regulations were fully enforced, it would almost ruin the marriage license business and cripple the cradle industry.

Virginia Lady Tells of Taking Cardui and Says She Has Since Recovered Perfect Health.

Lynchburg, Va.—"I have taken Cardui several times for a run-down condition and have found it perfectly splendid," says Mrs. Lee T. Marsh, 715 First Street, this city.

"About ten years ago," she explains, "I became so weak I could not go about. I looked like a skeleton and . . . was dreadfully worried about myself. A friend suggested Cardui and I decided to try it. . . . I kept up the medicine until I had taken six bottles. It regulated and built me up. I improved greatly. Last year we drove up here through the country from Florida. I was exposed to the weather and must have taken cold, for I became ill. I got run-down, lost flesh, . . . could not sleep and had no appetite at all. I was so nervous that I did not know what to do.

"I thought of Cardui. I began to take it regularly and it was not long before I began to feel better. I took six bottles, one after another, and at the finish of the last one was perfectly well again. Since then I have continued gaining in weight and all winter have been in perfect health."
