

Believe Negro Caught Here Murdered Yelverton

 but that a man had been murdered near there, the place which turned out later to be the spot where the boy's body was found. A description was offered, and it varied so from the way the boy looked when he left here that it was hard to believe that it could be that of Gordon. An old toboggan on the head, his clothes torn, and his face gashed about the temple, made the body appear to be that of any other than that of a bright young boy like Gordon. Hardly had an hour passed before Mr. Rose was again called, and told that his nephew had been murdered and that his body had been identified by Mr. John Lewis, an uncle of the dead boy and who lived not more than a mile from the scene of the almost unbelievable happening.
 The murder took place in Greene county and the coroner and sheriff there held an inquest over the body about 10:30 Saturday night. Nothing could be learned other than that several people had seen the murderer, but none of them knew him. The body was removed to Fremont about two o'clock Sunday morning where interment was made that afternoon at 3 o'clock with large crowds attending from many sections of the State.

By the time and after the body was discovered, officers in Pitt, Greene, and Martin counties were investigating the case. The first clue came when they learned that the negro had purchased a new suit of clothes and that he had thrown his old clothes behind an out-house in Farmville. Nothing of any material aid was learned that night although the officers continued in their work.

Jail Wrong Negro
 Alexander Gaynor, was a surprised 17-year-old colored boy when he was placed under arrest here yesterday morning by Sheriff Roberson, and told he was wanted for the murder of the boy. The arrest came about when it was learned that Gaynor had visited in Farmville over the week end. His case was a bit baffling when the sheriff of Greene county could not get ready information from Gaynor's friends. However, Gaynor was not long in clearing himself once he got the chance to explain his visit.

Suspicion Leads To Bazemore
 Suspicion led to George Frank Bazemore when it was learned early Monday morning that he had been going to Wilson and other places with Yelverton. It was also learned that Bazemore was at the Farmers warehouse at 2 o'clock Friday morning and that he left that house and went to the Roanoke-Dixie warehouse. He claimed to have left there about 6 o'clock, but Mr. H. L. Meador, one of the proprietors of the house, and Mr. Johnson Gardner, night-watchman, remembered that he was gone at 4 o'clock, the time the boy left with the truck. Bazemore evidently knew about what time the boy was to leave with the truck and was only waiting his chance to join him.

 When Bazemore was arrested by Sheriff Roberson and his posse, he denied all knowledge of ever going to any places on loads of tobacco. He tried, but in vain, to set up various alibis, and as for giving an account of himself from 4 to 9 o'clock Friday morning he was at a total loss. Every time he attempted to name anybody who saw him at any time Friday-after 4 a. m., he failed. He failed to prove his presence here when George Hyman, Bill Latham, Waverly Johnson and his wife stated that they had not seen him.

Faces Accusations with Nerve
 The negro, with an almost unvarying and rigid nerve stood the accusations, faltering little at times when the most horrible scenes of the murder were brought to him. During the questioning, he would show every now and then that he was correctly charged when they accused him of the murder.

The accused man faltered only after the arrival of Ralph Simpson and Fred Edwards came and identified him. These two men had unloaded the tobacco at Monk's warehouse and they were positive in their identification. They stated Bazemore was the man who had carried the load of tobacco there and claimed it.

After his identification he was turned over to Sheriff E. A. Raskberry, Deputies H. K. Cobb and Frank Moseley, of Greene County, who immediately took him to the Wilson County jail for safekeeping until the Greene County superior court convenes in Snow Hill on the 13th of December, when he will face a charge of first-degree murder.

Boy Well Liked Here
 At the death of his mother, Margaret Rose Yelverton, Gordon came here six years ago, making his home with Mr. Z. Hardy Rose, his uncle, at the Atlantic Hotel. He was only 11 years old at that time, and during his stay of six years here he had made numerous friends among those of his age and had gained the confidence and good will of every one he knew. He is survived by his father, Mr. J. Banks Yelverton, and two sisters, Ellen and Jessie, all of Fremont, and J. B. Yelverton, a brother, of Durham, and a young brother, Jack, of Farmville.

A large number attended the funeral and burial in Fremont last Sunday afternoon.
