New Children's Building
At the State Sanatorium

Sanatorium, Dec. 6.—(Special to the Enterprise.)—On January 1 the new children's building at Sanatorium will be ready to receive its first little folks to cure and to build up their resistance against tuberculosis. This is the first building provided by the State to care for tuberculosis children.

It is a three-story building and of the most modern fireproof construction throughout. It has wards for both boys and girls to accommodate 50 little patients. Special constructed porches will enable the children to take heliotherapy or sun treatment. A school room with an experienced teacher in charge will give those able to attend school an opportunity to keep up with their grades while they are curing their disease and building up their resistance. The entire third floor is given over to isolation rooms, where children suffering from contagious diseases will be treated.

The building is wired for radio head phones for each bed. Everything to facilitate the comfort of the children and to make them satisfied and happy in their surroundings has been provided.

To find the little folks who need to take treatment at the new building the extension department of the sanatorium has put on a series of clinics in cooperation with local school and health authorities. Because of limited clinic facilities only three groups of children who are most likely to be infected with the tubercle bacilli are examined. These three groups are: 1. Children 10 per cent or more underweight. 2. Children who have symptoms of tuberculosis. 3. Children who have been exposed to persons with the disease.

As the only reason you are allowed to enter the building is to be examined and the children are examined by the health department in the building. The examination is free of charge and the children are not allowed to enter the building unless they are accompanied by a parent or guardian.
