IT'S A KNEE AGE

Shapely or ill formed, thin or plump, nicely rounded or knobby, knees are IT. This is the "Knee Age," as anyone, who is not blind, can readily see. Buy your Hot Rolls from the Sally Ann Bakery—they're good.

Maybe Ann Pennington, whose knees are her fortune, started it. Perhaps it was the logical development of the short skirt, but regardless of the impulse, the modern young woman, and a big percentage of those not so young, are showing their knees for the whole wide world to admire—or laugh at.

Fresh bread at the Sally Ann Bakery—the best baked.

When skirts first peeped above the ankle line, ankles came in for adornment. That was what started the craze for silk hosiery in the first place. Gradually skirts grew shorter, and the silk part of stockings grew longer, to keep pace with the skirts.

Last year the cry in hosiery was silk to the knee." Already that slogan has gone into limbo. The cry now is "silk all the way up," and many merchants are wondering how far is "up."

The Sally Ann Bakery cooks the best pies, tiber shure.

It was Sir Thomas Lipton, that wind-bronzed, salty sportsman, who knows tea as a business, yachting as a sport, and, apparently, pretty women as a recreation, who remarked not so long ago that "when women pay 30 shillings for a pair of stockings, I think they are entitled to show at least 29 shillings and 6 pence worth." Whether by deliberate intent or typographical error, one New York tabloid quoted the noble old sportsman as saying the women are entitled to show "30 shillings and 6 pence

Just try the Sally Ann products and you say they are delicious.

At any rate, hosiery is now a good third of a woman's costume, and the most conspicuous third, at that. Small wonder, then, that astute merchants are capitalizing this fact. References to the silky sheen of knees that have dripped from the pens of the ad writers. If you want to sell hosiery, don't use up all your adjectives on the ankles. Give the knees a chance.

The Sally Ann Bakery can justly use adjectives to describe its products for it puts those ingredients in them that make the adjectives stand.—adv.

INDIGESTION GONE!

Tennessean Was Worried Considerably Until, on Advice of An Acquaintance, He Began To Use Black-Draught.

Sewanee, Tenn.—"For several years," says Mr. J. L. Russell, of this place, "I suffered continuously with spells of indigestion. Everything I ate disagreed with me, and I was in a bad way."

"Nothing did me any good" until I found Black-Draught. One day a man in a store where we traded told me to try Black-Draught. He said he knew of it relieving indigestion, so I decided to give it a trial.

"In my case it seemed to go right to the very root of my trouble. It straightened me out, and ever since that time, over thirty years ago, I have used Black-Draught."

"When I have a spell of indigestion coming on, I begin on Black-Draught. I take several small doses, in a regular course, and I find it will usually have me well in less than no time. Now I never suffer—I take Black-Draught."

"I also found it fine to break up a bad cold. In the winter time, I always keep a box handy, so when I sneeze, or feel chilly down my spine, I take a few doses of Black-Draught, and that wards off the cold."
