The South Taking Lead in Manufacturing

The South is rapidly taking the lead as the manufacturing center of our country. Fifty years ago the South only manufactured about 2 per cent. of the goods of the United States. During these years we have increased more than twelve fold.

It is a significant fact that most of the raw products of the South increase more through the process of manufacture than do the products of the other great sections of the country. We find that the wheat crop is only worth about twenty per cent. more after being manufactured. The same may also be said of the corn crop, the nation's greatest of all crops.

It is not true as to the cotton crop which is very much increased in value by the process of manufacture. The value of the tobacco crop is also doubled by the process of manufacture. The same can also be said of the timber products and it may be truly said that Dixie re-born is utilizing all its natural resources, not only in field and forest, but it is drawing on nature's own powers and is turning these resources into finished products.

We are using our mines of iron, copper, phosphate, aluminum, coal, quarries of stone and marble, oil wells and other available natural resources. This is destined to make the South the greatest industrial section of our land and will eventually make it the richest. It will give us two profits instead of one. Regardless of what we think, we must grow and no matter what we do, the South is coming into its own.

We can do something to help our own section by doing our part in placing our section before the eyes of the world and yield up a part of our pessimism and present a spirit of optimism in its place.

Hearst Again on Wrong Side

William Randolph Hearst is again taking the wrong side. He has come out against the dry forces of America.

No body knows why he has cast his lot with the liquor forces. It is generally regarded that he likes just two things, money for himself and honor for himself. In one he has succeeded well, he has much money; but honor, we dare not say.

We fear not to say that what ever energies Mr. Hearst may spend in the interest of alcohol will be worse than lost in the production of honor.

The man that is willing to walk around in the political sloughs to find which way the wind is blowing is never a safe leader.

If Mr. Hearst has nothing better than liquor to inspire the people, then his journals can be expected to sink below the yellow mark.

NOTICE

North Carolina, Martin County. In superior court.
W. S. Rhodes and D. G. Matthews
 Trading as Slade, Rhodes & Co., vs. J. N. Pugh.

By virtue of an execution directed to the undersigned from the superior court of Martin County, in the above-entitled action, I will, on the 1st day of August, 1927, at 12 o'clock noon, at the courthouse door of Martin County, sell to the highest bidder for cash, to satisfy said execution all the right, title, and interest which the said J. H. Pugh, the defendant, has in the following described real estate, to wit:

That tract of land known as the Cox farm, situated on the left-hand side of the public road leading from Hamilton to Williamston, opposite the Purvis farm, adjoining the land of J. H. Sherrod and others and the Roanoke River, containing three hundred acres, more or less, which tract

Things To Think About

By JAMES D. TAYLOR

Rev. A. J. Manning

My readers in Martin County and North Carolina will not learn anything new in these Thoughts about the man of whom we now write.

Probably those in other sections will. On the 9th of December 1869, Asa J. Manning was born. I am sure his proud mother did not know at the time her son would become one of the most beloved men in his community.

Although I am, and have been for many years, far away from the State in which he did such noble work, I have throughout the years remembered this good man, for it was through him and my mother that I first learned about Jesus. He was the first man I ever heard preach, or at least the first I remember. I shall never forget those good talks at the Macedonia and Sweet Home churches. God alone knows how many boys he led from the paths of "pistol toting" and "boot-legging" to the road that leads to things worthwhile. When I was just a lad, living in the backwoods of North Carolina, churches and schools were poor and far between. Yet this good man came to us at his own expense and told us about the country beyond and the land above. Long before I saw a railroad or city I learned to love this man of God.

Without thought for financial reward, this man for more than 35 years gave his time and money to those who needed it most. On Sunday July 10, he passed on to a more beautiful land. Financially, he died a poor man. But how wealthy he is today!

In the passing of Rev. Manning, that section of the State in which he lived, has lost a friend. But only his body died. His spirit lives on. For many years to come his influence will be felt. When this generation has passed away, those of another will tell their children about the good man of God who, like Paul, went to the by way places to tell the unlearned about the lowly Jesus.

is sold and is hereby conveyed subject to the dower of Mrs. Margaret Boyle, widow of John P. Boyle, deceased, which has already been assigned out of said land under definite metes and bounds.

This the 1st day of July, 1927.

BOY WAS SICK

Texan Tells How He Got Acquainted With the Good Work of Black-Draught as a Laxative.

Glenforn, Texas.—"I had a sick spell when just fifteen years old," says Mr. George W. Maness, R. F. D. 2, this place. "Anyone who has had chills, like I had, is apt to remember them. I was a sick boy—just lay around the home, weak. My skin was yellow and I could hardly stand up. I had hard chills.
 "My father gave me quinine. Someone told him to give me Black-Draught with it. He brought some home, and they fixed it up like a tea. It wasn't very good, but I was so sick I would take anything.
 "After a few days, I began to feel better. I was hungry and could eat. I kept on taking the tea for awhile, and I got well. I haven't had chills since then, but I have taken a lot of Black-Draught since that time. It is a family medicine with me."
 Where assistance is needed in the way of a laxative or cathartic, Theford's Black-Draught should be taken, as often as necessary, to open the bowels and put them in a healthy and normal state of activity.
 Try it; it cures. NC-165
