Unsafe Safes

Old man Dave Truelove, the rich Harnett county farmer, has now found that his safe was unsafe. He had carefully guarded his $14,000 in cash money by keeping it himself securely in an iron safe in his home until last Friday when unknown robbers broke into his house at noon day, took his safe and drove away with it. They cut open the safe, took the $14,000 cash money and went on, leaving the worthless unsafe safe behind.

It is just another case bearing witness that we should not lay up riches where moth and rust corrupt and thieves break in and steal. It is a fine thing to save, but a very bad thing to hoard.

If the state of Mr. Truelove's mind could be measured and weighed since he began the accumulation of that $14,000, we doubt if he has had as much of the world's joys as some of his neighbors who have been pushed tight to make ends meet. It is also exceedingly doubtful if he has helped his neighbors a bit more than some poor tenant who lives on his land may have done. So far as the world is concerned, the $14,000 is worth just as much in the hands of thieves as it was in the safe, locked up for safe keeping. Unless he was paying taxes on it the money was absolutely worthless, and it is likely that he was doing no such thing.

But after all, the old man may not be so much to blame. It may be that he got a bad impression of banks and lost confidence in all men during the financial crash. Many men do not yet understand that the present decade has witnessed the greatest financial crash known in all history, nor do they seem to remember that the nations of the earth created more war debts from 1914 to 1920 than were made in all the time previous.

Some investments prove bad—but this farmer's fine saving qualities also proved bad. And the man who looks and hides his riches from the use of man is no better than the fellow who scatters to the four winds.

Eight Reasons Why Youth Go Wrong

Eight reasons have been advanced by Judge McIntyre why youth go wrong. The eight embrace:

Lack of religious training in childhood. Absence of parental authority and discipline. Failure to instill modesty and chastity in female children. The age-old problem of whisky. The procreation by dissipated parents of paranoiac children. Unsupervised amusements, including especially joyriding, cheap movies and indecent modern dancing. Lack of proper recreational facilities in most neighborhoods. Unwillingness of young people today to work hard, and indulgence of this laziness by foolish parents.

Where is the family that can plead not guilty, or that can prove an alibi? If were to give the whole line a full review, we suspect there would be few left standing when the inspection was over.

First of all what percent of the homes in town make any pretense at religion in the home? How many children in town have ever heard father or mother read a single verse from the scriptures or seen them humble themselves to the Creator of heaven and earth? We venture the suggestion that more children have heard their parents swear more than they have heard them in prayer. We are quite satisfied there is more hate expressed than love for the neighbor. We have no doubt but good-sharp trading is talked more around many family circles than truth and honesty, which in a great many cases seems to be forgotten.

We fear there is not enough good sound advice given children today; not enough parents who take time to tell their boys and girls that they will have to reap what they sow, or that the wages of sin is death.

Judge McIntyre is certainly right in placing the blame for the primary trouble on lack of religious training in childhood. If we do enough of that, then we will eliminate the major portion of all the other troubles.

Yet all need the most serious consideration to make us a worthy, respectable people.

When parents lose sight of their obligations, boys lose their honor, and girls lower their moral standards, we may look for jails to be filled with our young men, houses of correction with our young women and our graveyards with grief-stricken fathers and mothers.

INDIGESTION GONE

Tennessean Was Worried Considerably Until, on Advice of An Acquaintance, He Began To Use Black-Draught.

Sewanee, Tenn.—"For several years," says Mr. J. L. Russell, of this place, "I suffered continuously with spells of indigestion. Everything I ate disagreed with me, and I was in a bad way."

"Nothing did me any good until I found Black-Draught. One day a man in a store where we traded told me to try Black-Draught. He said he knew of it relieving indigestion, so I decided to give it a trial. In my case it seemed to go right to the very root of my trouble. It straightened me out, and ever since that time, over thirty years ago, I have used Black-Draught."

"When I have a spell of indigestion coming on, I begin on Black-Draught. I take several small doses, in a regular course, and I find it will usually have me well in less than no time. Now I never suffer—I take Black-Draught."

"I also found it fine to break up a bad cold. In the winter time, I always keep a box handy, not only for sneezes, or feel chilly down my spine, I take a few doses of Black-Draught, and that wards off the cold."

FRUIT THAT IS ALWAYS FRESH

ALL fruits contain a high percentage of the precious vitamins, as well as fruit acids, sugar, mineral salts and protein in varying quantities. The process of canning is now brought to such a point of perfection that these valuable elements are captured and practically no loss sustained. Hawaiian pineapple is particularly rich in food values, and also possesses medicinal qualities—among the latter a high percentage of bromelin—an aid to protein digestion. This all increases its food value, and since the American housewife has become better acquainted with its adaptability to any part of the menu, it has grown steadily in favor.

Either the crushed or the sliced pineapple is ready to serve just as it comes from the can. Though it combines admirably with other foods in various more or less complicated recipes, the most convenient way to use either kind is in unadorned simplicity, either by itself or with congenial accompaniments. To have this fresh fruit ready to serve without any preliminary hulling, coring, peeling or cleaning, means a great deal to any housewife, not only in an emergency but in the regular course of household affairs. A few suggestions follow for serving pineapple either by itself or in quick combinations.

Crushed pineapple may be called pineapple sauce, for it is delightful eaten as an accompaniment with hot biscuits or cake, or as an appetizer at breakfast.

It takes its place as a salad too, and is excellent for mixing with other fruits for a fruit compote, or as a sauce for ice cream, or for use as a filling in cantaloupes.

Sliced pineapple has many emergency uses. An easy salad is made by placing slices on lettuce leaves, sprinkling with walnuts, adding a square of cream cheese and serving with mayonnaise dressing. Pineapple slices with ham, lamb chops, roast veal, chicken, or turkey make an excellent combination. The succulent tartness of the pineapple acting as a digestive for the meats. For a dessert, place slice of cake cut with a round cutter, on slices of pineapple, and top the cake with whipped cream or use crushed pineapple as filling for a cake. Ice cream or custard served on sliced pineapple makes a welcome variation in quick desserts.

One of the quickest substantial luncheon dishes that can be made is an omelet. A pineapple omelet is a delightful novelty. Make the omelet in the usual way, and when it is ready to be folded, lay slices of pineapple or well-drained crushed pineapple on half of it. Fold over, and serve immediately. Should anyone like the recipe for the omelet here it is: Add one-quarter teaspoon salt to four eggs and beat until light. Add three tablespoons hot water. Melt one tablespoon butter in a frying-pan and turn in the mixture. Cook slowly.

Night Loafers

During the past few months night prowling around here has reached an unbelievable point. The mournful yell of some infernal hound dog, the sharp report of a pistol and some worthless scoundrel parading the streets all during the night have made it so that only the sound sleeper gets a night of rest.

It is a problem for the town officials to get at the bottom of all this night prowling. Some cases are permissible, of course, but no man has any right to be sneaking around your door or my door all during the night, sneaking around with no good purpose in mind.

Every person promenading the streets after a certain hour at night with no particular business calling him out, should be placed in jail until the next morning when he might report his wanderings to the courts.

It is impossible for one policeman to look after all these wandering brothers at night, and there are more than a few citizens who would like to see one or two more men added to the night police force. It would pay in more than one way, and assure greater safety to the law-abiding citizen.

Not Worth the Risk

The risk is greater than the saving and not worth while when the home, eyesight, or maybe life itself, is endangered by "home cleaning" of apparel or fabrics to save a few cents.

Let us do your dry cleaning—first because ours are the most modern methods—therefore best; second, because we can do it so much better because we are equipped to do such work; and third, because we can give prompt service at very lowest prices—and really much more cheaply than you can do it at home. Phone us (58) and give us a trial.

Things To Think About

By JAMES D. TAYLOR

There comes a time in the life of every man when he doubts whether the game is worth playing. He asks himself whether he can longer carry the load. We are all tried more or less and it seems that those who try to walk in the footsteps of Jesus are tried the most. But the load is never more than we can bear. God is very near when the night is dark. Every man is tested and if he is strong, every tear and every pain lead to the pathway of everlasting happiness.

There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man; but God is faithful, Who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it. 1 Cor. x: 13.
