

STATE IS MAKING TEST FIREPROOF TOBACCO BARN

Quality of Leaf Cured in Fireproof Barns Said To Be Superior

Fireproof tobacco barns to replace the present type of log structure will probably become a reality in the bright-leaf tobacco belt, if the research plans developed at State College in conjunction with the Oxford experiment station are satisfactorily completed.

Prof. A. F. Greaves-Walker, head of the ceramic engineering school of State College, started the movement one month ago with an article in the Progressive Farmer on the advantages of fireproof structures for curing tobacco.

In regard to the experiments which will be conducted at Oxford, Professor Greaves-Walker said today, "the 75 fireproof barns that have already been erected in this State have demonstrated both their superiority as to fire resistance and the superiority of the tobacco cured in fireproof barns. The object of the experimental work is to determine scientifically the best material for the construction of fireproof barns, and to determine the exact degree to which tobacco cured in fireproof barns is superior to that cured in the old-fashioned log barns."

The experiment at Oxford will be conducted jointly by the engineering experiment station of State College and the agricultural experiment station. The plan is to have the manufacturers of brick, hollow tile, and cement to furnish the material for the barns. Specimen structures will be under the direction of Dr. H. B. Shaw and Prof. A. S. Greaves-Walker, of the engineering station, and curing tests will be made under direction of Dr. R. Y. Winters and E. G. Moss, of the agricultural station.

The farm at Oxford is equipped with old-style log and frame tobacco barns at present, and the results from these barns will be compared with those from the different types of fireproof barns. It is expected that it will be two years before the experiment is completed.

According to Prof. Greaves-Walker, the project includes the immediate distribution of standard plans for fireproof structures made of brick, hollow tile, or hollow cement.

From 70 to 120 wooden barns burn up every year in the State of North Carolina, causing great losses to the farmers, for, in addition to losing their investment in the barn, a fire there leaves them unable to dry their crop. An additional saving will result from the fact that much less fuel will be required in a fireproof barn with tight walls.

In recent years the price of such building materials has decreased so much that the proposed fireproof barns will cost little if any more than wooden barns at the present price of lumber.

BAD PAINS IN SIDE

Spells of Nervousness Also Troubled This Lady Who Gives Cardui Credit for Helping Her Get Well.

Depew, Okla.—"For six years," says Mrs. Edd Burton, of this place, "I suffered as bad as a woman can suffer and still keep going."

"I was good for nothing, was lifeless and pale, unable to eat anything. Nothing agreed with me. At times I had such bad pains in my sides and back I would have to go to bed. I had cramping spells and would faint if I stood on my feet any length of time. My nerves would become upset at the least little thing and I would have spells of crying that were so exhausting they left me prostrate."

"Several of my friends suggested that I take Cardui. They told me of their experiences with it, how much they have been helped. At last I decided to try it."

"In a few weeks, I could see that I was improving, so I kept on. I did not expect the troubles of years to disappear in a few days, nor did they, but in time I was much better. I kept up the Cardui treatment for several months and thanks to it I am a well woman now."
