"Hand" Printer Has Hard Road to Travel

No man has a harder road to travel than the old-time "hand" printer. The machine age has eliminated him from the shop, and he finds no place except the long road, along which he enters the doors of print shops in the various towns only to hear the words, "nothing doing," even before he has time to ask for a job.

The printer's road is a long, crooked trail; yet his profession so grips his heart that he hopes to be able to find a place somewhere.

There are very few things that a man does that grips him tighter with a love for his trade, or profession, as does the printing business. It seems to cultivate a love for the work akin to the love and devotion of a dog for his master. It matters not how poor his food, or how little he gets, the faithful dog will lie by his master through hunger and cold. So will the old printer live and die by his profession, though he has to tramp through heat, cold, and hunger, and wear tattered rags.

A Good Year to Pay Your Debts

The question "Why is money getting so easy and interest rates going to a new low level," is producing many answers, or rather is producing many guesses.

It is a strange thing to see how little people know about money, when we consider how much we think about it.

It is hard to understand how money will all seem to go away some times, and no one seems to know where it goes; and then again we find the banks flooded with money and unable to put it out in the regular channels.

It is reported that the city banks, which usually extend credit to this particular section, are finding very little demand for money this year, and the money is piling up on them so that they have to seek outside outlets.

The money question is like the hog and corn price. Last year hogs were high and corn low; this year hogs are low and corn is high. Nobody seems to know the reason why it is so.

There seems to be at least one good reason why money is accumulating in the country. Since the biggest automobile manufacturer has not put out a car in several months and sales of most others have slacked in anticipation of the advent of a newer, better, and cheaper car, the flood of money is not pouring into the pockets of automobile manufacturers as fast as it has done in several years; but most of it has remained in the pockets of the people.

This difference, in itself, will make a big balance on the cash side of the ledger.

On the other hand, the financial circle has struck its regular "seven." In 1920 the moneyed string pullers tied a hangman's knot around the neck of the little dealers and strangled them almost to death. Now, the same fellows say the folks are too conservative and not borrowing enough. Some people seem to think good business this year means good politics next year.

Regardless of what is causing the brightening up in the agricultural field, this is going to be a good year to pay debts, and every farmer or business man who happens to be under the bondage of debt should go his limit to square with the world and be free again.

A Boon for Crippled People

Some men go limping through life, when some slight adjustment or operation in their youth might have removed the trouble and removed the inconvenience of a life time.

In our own State we have one of the best orthopedic hospitals in the country, located at Gastonia. And we are not stopping there, but are sending out experts to help those who do not know about the hospital, or who are unable to get to it, to hold clinics in various places in the State in order that all may know and as

Cotton Prices High—But Farmers Haven't Any

"Two hundred millions of gray for the South" is fine political propaganda.

They try to make the people of the country believe that the South is to get $200,000,000 free and easy and aboveboard on account of the price of cotton. They say the boll weevil, the Mississippi flood, and too much rain over the belt has lowered the prospective production and caused New York gamblers to bet that cotton will be worth more.

Yet we have no cotton for sale; which reminds us that high prices for cotton when we have none does us just as much good as it does a hungry child to dream about cake—only to wake up and find he had only been dreaming.

Of course, a short crop will raise the price. Yet, if we believe the arguments always put to us, that we get more per pound when we have less pounds, should go far enough to say that we lose in pounds what we gain in price, which give us an even break either way.

It is rather unreasonable to see our 1927 13,000,000-bale crop bring, by $200,000,000, more than our 1926 17,000,000 bales brought. It is certainly worth less, and it is not perishable but will last through many years.

All that a little crop brings more than a big crop is caused by speculation, and speculation is that hideous animal that beats the price down on the producer and that boosts the price of a small crop up on the consumer.

With millions of American producers and consumers who are ready to believe anything, the stock gamblers who stand between them and make prices for both sides have a fine business—if their methods will justify the dignity of the word "fine."

Accidents Do Not Happen

Most people think of accidents as happening, as something unavoidable. But, generally, back of every accident there is a cause. For this reason, an accident death toll of 80,000 persons killed each year is useless.

Excepting those of natural origin—earthquakes, cloudbursts, cyclones etc.—experience of recent years point clearly to the conclusion that most accidents are avoidable.

The industrial safety movement, according to the testimony of ex-many as will profit by it. The clinic to be held in Washington Friday is in easy reach of every cripple in Martin County. They should take advantage of it and go.

It may be that some who need the service most will be unable to go without the help of a friend. Any person having a crippled neighbor should remember those fine fellows who took the trouble to let the lame man down through the top of the house so that he could be treated.

GOT RID OF POISON

Kentuckian Finds Black-Draught a Great Aid in Relieving Constipation, and Soon Feels O. K.

Cattlettsburg, Ky.—Mr. Miles Hopkins, of 1218 Center Street, this city, says:

"There was a time when my health was not so good. I suffered a great deal from gas pains. My system was saturated with poison which was not properly eliminated. From time to time I had severe headaches, and I felt sluggish and dull."

"I knew of Black-Draught as a medicine for constipation, so I thought I would try it. For a while I took a small dose every night until my system was rid of the accumulated poison."

"I gained in weight and my general health was good. That experience made me realize the merits of Black-Draught. I kept it in my home and when I began to feel lifeless and dull, I take a dose, after which I feel O. K. again."

"People generally do not realize the risk they take in allowing constipation to run on. I try to keep my system cleansed, and I find Black-Draught a great aid in doing this."
