THE APPRAISAL OF YOUR WORTH SHOULD INCLUDE INTANGIBLE ASSETS

Stores are shelves filled with merchandise . . . offices are warehouses stored with desks . . . factories are brick walls housing idle machines . . . until . . . human energy is applied in store, office and factory

THEN the hum of business sings a song of profit and wealth. Then we look at a busy store, active office, lighted factory, and exclaim:

The chief source of the value is the character, the industry, the ability, the energy of the men at work.

The physician is more valuable than his instruments, the architect than his drawing boards, the accountant than his ledgers, the lawyer than his library.

The intangibility of the Human Life Value sometimes makes it easy for business and professional men to fail to recognize it, appraise it, and protect it in the same way they protect their tangible assets.

Any appraisal which fails to include the Intangible Asset—the Human Life Value—is not an accurate appraisal. In most cases, the Human Life Value is man's greatest value.

In appraising your worth, have you included—and protected—your Human Life Value?

A Presentation of Fall Fashions

Here is a specially purchased collection of fall frocks that will permit your wearing the very newest modes of Parisian designers in all their cleverness, delightful diversity and charm almost as soon as they have been originated. Featured are flares, pleats, diagonal lines, crepe satin, velvet, metal brocades—black, the unreserved leader in color, brown tones, strong blues, a few reds and dark greens.

Velvet Velvet is featured in simple and formal frocks. The transparent velvets and printed velvets are the favored types. Other frocks are velvet trimmed.

Crepe Satin Satin is the outstanding fabric for day-time wear. The dull side is cleverly manipulated, and every wardrobe should include a crepe satin frock.

FLARES, PLEATS, AND TUCKING VARY THE MODE

Flares and pleats divide the fall silhouette. Sunray pleating, fine box pleats, full length and diagonal flares are all interesting innovations characteristic of the mode, simple and restrained.
