the State. He is an exceptionally good judge of tobacco and is not outclassed by any one when it comes to running a sale. That will be his job, and you can well depend on its being done and done right. His personal interest is always in his work; and he makes the warehouse business his whole-time occupation.

That the business will be well handled is assured when one of the proprietors takes charge as general manager. Mr. F. C. Bennett will handle the details, both large and small, in a successful way is his desire. Mr. Bennett has been in the tobacco business for years, and he is able to care for every detail from the time the tobacco arrives in the house until the check is delivered to the farmer. Mr. Bennett is a farmer himself; and he takes much pleasure in seeing the high prices go to the farmer. His work last year met with high approval from thousands of farmers who sold tobacco at his house; and he can be depended upon again this year.

Mr. H. L. Barnhill, a third active partner in the firm, will have charge of the office department. He will be ably assisted, and when these three men begin their work, results are always obtained.

sell your tobacco in Williamston, and they will gladly pay off all checks of all tobacco warehouses in Williamston or those against any other warehouses in other towns in cash.

Patrons of the Farmers & Merchants Bank do not hesitate to say it is up with the times. Its methods of business are always open to the closest examination.

Farmers Warehouse last season stands to bring a big increase in business to it this year, and with one of the best auctioneers in the country doing the auctioneering, a smooth sale and one bringing results is expected.

It is the policy of this house that every pile of tobacco be sold for the very highest price, that service be extended to every one, and that the interest of the farmer be looked after in every case.

CARSTARPHEN'S LONG A GUIDE

(Continued on page four) to many of us; and through hard work, extending over long years in some cases, it brings to the front some factor that adds to the welfare of all of us. At the present time, it is agent for the Norfolk, Baltimore and Carolina Boat Line, and through this one agency alone the business house of our town and county are saving thousands of dollars yearly.

Mr. C. D. Carstarphen, the senior member of the firm, is prominent in political circles in the county, and has rendered valuable service to the local schools.

The progress of this firm moves on steadily, and with its high ethics of business enterprise, a continued service will be the reward, no doubt, in future years.
