A FEW WORDS

We are strangers here, and do not know who to trust, and when we ask everybody to pay cash when bill is presented, please do not get offended; and in fact you will not unless you are one of the ones that intend to get in on us; and if you get offended, we don't care, for you are no good to us.

We are going to give ample time to clear our books of all local accounts; and after then we are going to place in this paper the name of each party that is behind with us.

Take wood, for instance. We deliver it for a small sum per load. If you haven't the money to pay the driver, don't order it.

When you come after lumber, bring your checkbook or pocketbook.

We solicit your business as long as you pay cash. Some in this section will think less (we expect) of us for saying this, but the good people will think more of us by it.

Come out, or call us on the phone. We are ready to serve you.
