The monoplane "American Girl," hich carried an American girl, Ruth Elder, off over the Atlantic last flight from New York to Paris, is today a burned wreck in the ocean, the goal unreached, but the girl herself is safe.

With her companion in the adventure, Captain George Haldeman, also riders, ground and lofty gymnasts, safe, she is aboard the Dutch steamer early yesterday from the fallen plane some 325 miles northeast of the Azores, about 900 miles from the Portagese coast. They were then about 3,000 miles along their course.

Something serious happened to the monoplane's machinery—a broken oil pipe—the fliers had to come down. Perhaps they floated until the Bar endrecht came along, or perhaps they
