

Wash the Label on Your Paper
It Carries the Date
Subscription Expires

THE ENTERPRISE

Advertisers Will Find Our Columns a Latchkey to Over 1,600 Homes of Martin County

VOLUME XXX—NUMBER 67

Williamston, Martin County, North Carolina, Tuesday, October 25, 1927

ESTABLISHED 1898

PRESIDENT OF WOMAN'S CLUB MAKES REPORT

Debt of $1,143.83, for Remodeling Rooms, Has Been Paid

RAISE $1,200 LAST YEAR

Gives Brief Enumeration of Club's Accomplishments During Past Year

It is with a great deal of pleasure that I have the honor of submitting the second annual report of the Woman's Club of Williamston.

Receiving at the District meeting at Belhaven such an insight into Club work, and also, such an imprints for doing the things worth while, we immediately lame home, and as it were, hitched our wagon to a star, and, with less than 50 active members, undertook the remodeling of our Club quarters; assuming a debt of $1143.83 which today has been reduced to $49.84 and the money for that is in hand.

The Club has raised $1200 in the past year.

Since charity begins at home, our efforts have been for the most part, confined to ourselves, that is, the payment of the debt. Yet we have not been entirely self-centered. We have assisted others in various ways.

While the things we have done may be briefly enumerated, we believe they will speak for themselves.

First: Red Cross Christmas seals were sold in December and 26 stockings sent to Oteens.

Second: Eighteen undernourished children selected by the superintendent of the school, were furnished by the Welfare Committee a certain amount of milk each day.

Third: Prizes of money for the purpose of stimulating civic interest and pride, were offered pupils of the grammar grades.

Fourth: Gave to the school Health scales that the children may be accurately weighed and their needs be scientifically revealed and it is hoped, corrected.

Fifth: As a Club, we used our influence to carry by a majority the special election for the consolidation of schools.

Sixth: Under the auspices of the Social Committee, a kitchen shower was given, whereby the kitchen was practically furnished.

Later, at the suggestion of our Home Demonstrator, a Cake contest was held and other needs supplied.

Seventh: Some shrubbery has been planted on our Club house lawn.

Eighth: Federation dues, district dues, and pledge to the Sallie Southall Cotton Fund found has been paid. Of club histories by Mrs. Cotton, we have bought ten more than our quota.

Interesting and instructive programs have been brought to our club on county government, taxes, American Home, and good citizens.

At present the Club is engaged in a school census, whereby it is hoped that Williamston will have better school buildings, and better equipment.

We have again agreed to sponsor the sale of Christmas seals; our chairman has been appointed.

Each standing committee has served the Club efficiently and well, while our proposed departmental work, has not gotten under way with the dispatch for which we had hoped, we feel that it will.

Officers and chairmen have been most faithful in the performance of duty, and we look towards the future of our Club with assurance and pride and feel that we shall obey the commands we have already heard, "go forward."

Respectfully submitted:
MRS. WHEELER MARTIN,
President
MRS. JOHN F. THIGPEN,
Secretary.

STRAND THEATRE

WEDNESDAY
Be Sure To Come To See

LEO MALONEY
in
"WITHOUT ORDERS"
AND COMEDY

Always a Good Show.

Tobacco Sales Grow In Quantity and Price

Tobacco sales are growing in both quantity and price on the local market, according to reports coming from warehousemen and farmers.

Farmers from every direction are bringing their tobacco here and judging from their own remarks, they are well pleased with the sales here.

The warehouses are having just enough tobacco to make sales interesting to both the farmer and buyers.

The averages for the past three days have ranged from 27 1-2 to 28 1-2 cents and the trend seems to be upward, according to the general reports.

L. A. JACKSON DIES SUNDAY

Lived in Jamesville; Had Been Ill for Several Months

Louis Austin Jackson died Sunday morning at his home in Jamesville. He had been ill with tuberculosis for five months and during the last two weeks, confined to his bed.

Mr. Jackson was born in Beaufort county, near Washington, August 29, 1897, the son of Louis Henry Jackson and wife, Winnie Jackson. Ten years ago he married Miss Ora Lee Allen, of Jamesville and for the past several years he lived in that town.

Besides his widow, he leaves three children, Muriel, aged seven, Randolph, aged four and Geraldine, one year old. He also leaves three sisters, all of whom live in Washington.

He joined the Christian church in his boyhood and at the time of his death he was a deacon in the church at Jamesville.

The funeral was conducted from the residence yesterday afternoon by Rev. Richard Bagby, of Washington, assisted by Rev. W. B. Harrington, of Jamesville and R. G. L. Edwards, of Plymouth. Interment was made in the Jamesville cemetery.

Active pall bearers were Stewart Darden, Cecil Craft, Wesley Allen, Lewis Herring, Herbert Allgood and Willie Jolley, all brothers-in-law of the deceased.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

The little newsboys, taking their stand each Sunday evening in front of the post office, were the first to mention regret in the change. "We have not sold near as many papers here as we did at the old post office," several stated when they were asked how business was. Once the people become accustomed to the change, this condition will, no doubt, be altered.

</div