Fewer Shad Each Year

Prosperity for the poor along Roanoke River is assured for the next two months. All they have to do is to dip their nets in the river and dip up herring, shad, and rock by the thousands.

There is no better food for health and strength than fish, and the annual catch of these fish as they come up from the ocean each year have blessed the people throughout this section.

The white man ran the Indian away from this seat of wealth and has enjoyed it since. The greed of the fisherman has almost destroyed some species, such as sturgeon, and shad have greatly diminished in number on account of the nets, which have proven almost a complete barricade, especially is this true of the roe shad, which is much larger than the buck and is caught by the gills while the smaller, or buck shad, passes through. Unless more stringent laws are passed to protect the shad, it may not be so long before they will be a very scarce fish in the waters. The roe, or female, shad must get well up into the fresh water, or we will have very few young shad.

This bank maintains a financial research bureau, perhaps equal to the United States government. It is hard to estimate the power and influence of such an institution. It can do much good in stabilizing the business affairs of the country; or it may, if it chooses, do many things to manipulate the affairs of business and government as well.

Such aggregations of wealth certainly need honesty in management rather than selfish greed.

The Next Move of the Grand Oil Party

It is always interesting to watch a close game of checkers between expert players—not so much to see who is going to win, but it is so interesting to guess as to the next move. However, the next move of the Grand Oil Party is far more interesting.

Of course, Mr. Borah says collect the money from honest people and pay the rascals back. But he is all balled up in that plan, because it is just the same as returning stolen goods, and that will never do. No court excuses a crime because the goods are returned. And Mr. Borah is mistaken if he thinks the court of public opinion will return a verdict of not guilty if the stolen goods are returned, even fourfold.

Senator Capper, that Republican Senator from Kansas, offers a solution much superior to that of Borah. He advocates putting out every person connected with the Teapot Dome scandal. He says the job must be thoroughly done.

Among other things he says, "For spectacular rottenness; I doubt whether we have the equal of Teapot Dome in American history, or ever will have. * * * The smudge of oil being smeared blackly across the pages of history is repulsive to the citizens of the entire country. The trail is slimy, odorous, reeking with corruption * * * for ways that are dark and tricks that are vain."

Senator Capper was all right, so far as he went. But he should move onward until Will Hays and all his gang is banished from the bounds of civilized society, where the pangs of hunger and loneliness could gnaw their greedy heartstrings into shreds.

Keeping "State Secrets"

The Hertford News

Mayor H. C. Stokes has one misfortune, he is deaf a little in his ear. But this misfortune became only a memory Thursday noon when His Honor heard and spoke distinctly to Governor A. W. McLean in his executive offices in Raleigh upon the opening of the new telephone line from Edenton to Windsor.

The governor and the mayor enjoyed a five-minute chat over the phone. The significant fact about the talk is not that they talked or that Henry Stokes heard what was said, but the fact that this section of North Carolina talked to the other part of the State over the phone over the soil of North Carolina for the first time, without going over Virginia soil to reach its own capital. That is more than a significant fact. It is history, for heretofore Hertford could not talk to Raleigh unless our neighbors of Virginia listened in. Now we can keep our "state secrets" to ourselves.
