Iron-Clad Rules Won't Always Work

The inmate of the State Hospital, at Raleigh, who fell and died from sunstroke Saturday evidently died from the extreme heat and too much work combined. According to reports, the inmates were worked as long and as hard that day as during pleasant weather. It is a little hard to understand why people have so little discretion and stick to iron-clad rules. Saturday was too hot a day to keep men weakened by insanity at work.

We are always talking about more humanity, and yet we handle men by iron-clad rules. The man who knows what sympathy is and how to extent it to others is the man to place in charge of other men,

Stray Dogs

Dog owners do not seem to be acquainted with the local ordinances which prohibits dogs running at large in the town of Williamston from the 1st day of April to the 1st day of September.

The streets of the town are frequently lined with brindle mongrels, barking, snapping, biting. and scratching children.

The danger is too great for any benefit that might be derived. The dog is not prohibited in the town. Every person may keep his dog on his premises. It is only the roamer that is outlawed. The law requires every such dog to be taken up and the owner is charged wit hthe cost and fined for breaking the law. If the owner fails to claim his dog, then the dog pays the penalty by being shot.

There is no dog owner in the town who wants his dog to hurt any one. The only trouble is that the people are too careless about keeping their dogs in.

Causes of Crime

The American Bar Association, which met in Seattle, Wash., this week, heard from its president six reasons which he gives as the general causes of crime, as follows:

1. The increase and development in the means of communication; hard roads and high-powered automobiles making the 'getaway' easy.

2. The vastly increased wealth of our citizens, and especially of the criminal classes, enabling them to buy fast motors and expensive fire-arms.

which ena

PUBLISHED EVERY and to exert a powerful influence in politics. 4. Delay in the apprehension and speedy punish ment of criminals, due in part to the leniency and paltering of politicar judges, and in part to our too liberal laws. We do not give enough attention to the selection of our judges and prosecuting attorneys.

5. To the apathy and indifference of our best citizens towards their duty as citizens. Those best qualified to serve as jurors seek to avoid the service because of its discomforts or because they dislike to leave their businesses

6. Unrestricted traffic in firearms.

If these are really the cause of much of the crime of the country, then what must the people do who oppose crime?

First, we all expect to improve the methods of communication, both with better roads and better cars. Second, we are all trying to increase our wealth, the good and the bad alike.

In the third item comes some reasons which might be set aside by a little more common honesty. Yet we have so far fell short of the task.

The fourth trouble is not hard to correct if we will try.

The fifth shows up the folks' cowardice and selfishness are responsible for much of the crime happening every day. Men who call themselves decent citizens permit crime to house itself under their very doorsteps without turning a hand to prevent it, simply because their hide or their business may suffer. Of course, we never will amount to much as law-abiding people so long as we remain such weaklings and cowards.

The sixth item is abused some. Yet we are measuring up to that task perhaps better than any other. If we all agree and practice the things permitted by the law, most of the crime would disappear. What we need to do is to cultivate a higher respect for the law. The man who puts a pistol in his pocket and walks around among other men, returns at night and takes it out without hurting or molesting any one generally does not think he has committed a crime, and feels that he would have to pull his pistol and shoot a few people down before he had committed a crime. The social and high-toned drinker becomes a partner in, business with both the moonshiner and bootlegger the moment he buys their product. The man who drives too fast feels that he is not a criminal unless he is caught. He is mistaken, because he is a criminal or law-breaker, even though no man sees him.

Hotel Is Needed

We have recently "listened in" on some people passing through Williamston and heard them saying that Williamston's greatest need is a modern hotel. They say that the well-equipped hotels at Elizabeth City, Kinston, Wilson, and towns of that type have created a demand for well-equipped hotel quarters, that people of wealth demand good hotels regardless of price, and with the proper service investors will be attracted who are able and generally willing to invest and build up the community.

It is admitted that hotel stock in the smaller town would be a slow dividend payer, and for that reason it is hard to bring outside capital in for the purpose of building a hotel. The people owning property are the ones who should back a hotel. Then they would increase their business and increase the value of their property in that.

A community with enough pluck in it to build a good hotel will succeed, because it of itself is a challenge which will not only merit but bring success.

If Williamston's prosperity should be taxed to build a hotel in the near future, it would bring big dividends in many ways. At any rate, Wililamston people should give serious consideration to their need for hotel service.

In the fiscal year ended March 31, immigration to unted to 151,537, an increase of 5 per
