More Hope for the South and West

The fact that a union of the Democratic South and the insurgent Republicans of the West has been effected gives some assurance and much encouragement to those who fear the power of Wall Street and the old-line Republicans, who represent it and its allies. On the great questions of corruption in office they have stood solidly together, also on the tariff issues.

The following editorial in the Winston-Salem Journal of November 3 gives the results of the line-up, and clearly shows that the administration is whipped:

A REMARKABLE TRIUMPH

There is no longer any doubt that Republican leaders in Washington, from President Hoover down, recognize full well that they have lost the fight for the Republican administration tariff bill. This is proven by Senator Watson's offer to compromise. It is proven also by President Hoover's attitude.

This means, of course, that Senator Simmons has won a remarkable triumph. His victory, in fact, will take rank among the most notable achievements in all the history of great legislative battles in the Senate of the United States.

From the beginning, Senator Simmons, as Democratic tariff leader, has directed the campaign against the Republican administration measure with consummate generalship and wisdom. He has, with the hands of a master tactician, used Democratic Senators and Progressive Republican Senators, putting one forward and then another, giving a considerable number of them an opportunity to offer amendments which he knew would be adopted, thus spurring them on by giving them a just share of the honors of the fight and not trying to hog all the limelight for himself, as is done too often by managers on both sides of fights on pending bills. He has helped to weld together into an efficient fighting unit forces that in many instances hold divergent views and differ among themselves upon many questions involved in the bill, and has presented a solid front where it seemed in the beginning of the tariff fight that such a thing was impossible.

In the beginning of the tariff fight, it was a matter of common remark that Democrats were divided among themselves and that it was almost hopeless to expect very much of a fight to be put up against the bill. Senator Simmons and his staff, however, brought a marvelous degree of unit out of what seemed to be an impossible condition and have won victory after victory in the fight, finally driving the administration and the Republican leadership in the Senate to a point where they are willing either to surrender or to compromise upon this major part of the administration program.

Democracy needs a closer coalition of interests. The natural trend of the American mind is democratic on principles of honesty in government and for law that gives all people an even showing in business. This is shown in the various State elections. But it seems hard for the party leaders to understand that the party must constantly adhere to the strictest principles of democracy in its organization nationally and not fraternize with any of the friends of the old guard who seek rather to disrupt than to build up firmly. The only hope of political freedom for the American people is a union of the South and West.

Ignoring the Golden Rule

The golden rule is lost or stolen. It has at least disappeared in Washington.

Now, everybody wants the government to protect their business, and the fellows who cry the loudest against the government getting into business are the ones who are asking the government to do the most for them through laws that protect their business at the expense of their neighbors' business.

Our government is indicted on a hundred counts for impoverishing certain classes of people by legislation which has made other classes vastly rich.

These tariff laws have been passed in the name of protection against foreign nations, but they have at the same time enabled the few protected groups to organize the most gigantic, crushing trusts against the home people that the world has any history on.

We need not expect to escape panics and business disturbances so long as our government is under the influence of men who have broken and destroyed the golden rule.

Guard Against Fire

People will not heed the frequent warnings against fire danger. Paper, trash, bird nests in flues, cracked flues and chimney, and perhaps holes in heaters, are a few of the things that we overlook until the first cold snap and an emergency fire is kindled. Then the house catches on fire, and the fire fighters are called. It may be too late to save the premises, however. Of course, the firemen are always willing to respond to a call night or day.

People should use every precaution against fires, even though a fire company is present to put it out promptly. It behooves every household to use every precaution against fire, from any cause. It destroys both property and life.

CARD OF THANKS

It is with sincere appreciation that we wish to express our heartfelt thanks for the many kind acts and thoughtful deeds done for us during the recent death of our baby, Dorothy Louise. We assure them that each expression of sympathy and deed will long be remembered by us.

Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Hathaway.

PAINFUL INDIGESTION

Lady Says She Obtained Relief By Taking Small Doses of Theford's Black-Draught.

Ardenmore, Okla.—"I have recommended Black-Draught to a great many people, and they always thank me afterwards," says Mrs. Carmina Doka, 116 "B" Street, this city. "Fifteen years ago, I was in very bad health. I suffered a great deal with indigestion, and I traveled from one place to another in search of health, but nothing helped me. I lost in weight, and my food disagreed with me, and I could scarcely eat a bite that did not give me indigestion. "Often I had bad gas pains across my stomach, and I would wake up in the mornings with very bad headaches. I had a bad taste in my mouth, and would feel dizzy when I was on my feet. "I began taking Black-Draught and soon found that I was getting better. I took a dose about the size of a pea, four or five times a day, for three or four days. "After I had taken several courses of Black-Draught in this way, I felt fine. I no longer had indigestion. I could eat what I liked, and enjoyed my meals. I gained in weight, and felt able to care for my children and do my housework." In use nearly 2 hundred years. Twenty-five doses 25¢. nC-212

It belongs to Police Captain P. C. Horne, Sr., of Washington, D. C. It has gone 96,000 miles without replacement of rings or wrist pins or tightening of bearings, and the motor still runs like new. From the very beginning it has been lubricated with "Standard" Motor Oil.

THIS is one of the outstanding performance records which are being made every year by this remarkable motor oil. "Standard" Motor Oil is an oilier oil, made from carefully selected crudes and specially processed. It clings to metal surfaces, resists friction and penetrates more quickly to all moving parts. This means less wear, less carbon and better power. Ask for "Standard" Motor Oil at your dealer's. Fill your crankcase with this rich-bodied, oilier oil. Get added miles of service from your car without extra cost.
