Centralizing Education

Dr. Smith was right in rapping the college association for fighting church colleges.

The public institutions, run at enormous tax cost, have apparently forgotten that they have anything to do but direct all types of education; that is, to set standards and practically black list the poorer institutions. Often they are responsible for legislation that discriminates against those not educated, in institutions passing their selection. They have passed the college but not the man.

This method has had a great tendency to centralize education, and it has worked a great hardship on the small colleges. The need for a more democratic type of education is apparently growing stronger, while wealth raises the standards and centralizes learning behind costly walls. Money can never educate a man, and the young man who banks on his knowledge and wisdom because he attended this or that rich college or university is not always educated.

Vacation Days

Now that school days are over, what shall we do with our boys and girls?

Of course, we have led them to believe that the road ahead of them is an easy one, that the gates to the president's seat, the banker's chair, the great lawyer's office are open. Such teaching is false. We should have taught them that the gate to most of these high places are rapidly closing, that instead of stepping into the business and professional world many of them will have to step to the ploughshares or its equal and settle down to real hard, honest-to-God work for something to eat and wear.

Of course there was a time when the saying, "Go west, young man," was practical, but that is not so now. The west is closed and opportunities are as hard to find there as they are in the North, East and South.

It will be a great mistake for parents to play their children through the vacation period and lead them to believe all is well and opportunities are multiplying ahead.

The idea of big things has almost destroyed the faculties of truth and we are trying to span life on a false bridge. We are not teaching the child of the day to work himself. We are leading him to believe there is nothing for him to do but sit by a machine.

The four months vacation just ahead will cast the die for and determine the future success of many boys and girls in this country. Parents should wake up and throw out the safety line for their children if they would have them be real honest, industrious citizens.

Let all who are unconcerned, watch the crowd!

Better Mail Service Possible

The value of the new Virginia Bus Line, operating through here between Norfolk and Washington, was more clearly established yesterday when Postmaster J. T. Price, of the local office, announced a possible schedule embracing the best mail service the town has ever had. Other towns along the route are asking the establishment of mail service over the line, and it is believed that the citizens of Williamston and community will enter heartily into the undertaking.

According to Postmaster Price, a letter might be mailed here at 2:10 p. m., reach Norfolk at 6, leave there by the Pennsylvania Railroad train at 7 and be in New York for early breakfast the following morning. Mail dispatched from the local office after 7:15 a. m. does not reach New York until too late the next day for business. Mail leaving here on the bus would also go to the west by the Norfolk and Western, the C. and O. and Virginian, reaching Cincinnati or Columbus the next day. The same service would apply to mail addressed to other western points.

Air mail service as far as this office is concerned at the present time, is generally slower than the regular mails, but with mail scheduled over the bus line, a letter could be mailed at 2:10 and catch the air mail going south at Richmond late the same day.

The establishment of a mail service over the lines would mean much to postal users here, and should be considered at length.

The government is anxious to serve the people, but often the people never find out how many advantages and opportunities are about them. Williamston business people would do well to try for this improved service.

Voters Should Think

With the political pot beginning to boil, every voter should settle down to thinking. He should always remember his friend, of course, but he should not remember him at the expense of honest and satisfactory service and trust of the office which the friend aspires.

The office is more important than the officer. It will live long after the man who serve in it passes away.

Only Weighed 85 Lbs., Gains 15 Pounds

MRS. REBECCA WALKER

"I only weighed 85 pounds when I started taking Sargon. Six bottles of this wonderful medicine increased my weight fifteen pounds, and I don't feel like the same woman."

"I suffered so with stomach trouble that I even thought I would be better off dead. I was so weak I could hardly get about."

"Sargon Soft Mass Pills entirely rid me of constipation. I believe this wonderful treatment saved my life."—Mrs. Rebecca Walker, Elwood, Kans.

Many who wisely put Sargon to the test express amazement at the speed and thoroughness with which it goes to the very source of their ailments.
