Limit Cotton and Tobacco Acreage
 Cooperative cotton associations, bankers, merchants and cotton farmers everywhere are hanging out the danger signal warning against a big cotton crop which they declare will cause the tenant farmer to create more debt for both himself and the landlord, finally carrying farmers into bankruptcy. The crusade is on, and it not only includes cotton but also affects tobacco, the crop that has just about wrecked Eastern North Carolina farmers and business. Next Thursday, Governor Gardner will urge a limited tobacco crop this year, and everyone is urged to hear him over radio station WPTF, Raleigh.

Cotton production or cotton prices just like tobacco and tobacco prices will one or the other certainly be lowered, says nearly everyone who has studied the conditions affecting those two crops. They estimate that the South can save $150,000,000 by cutting 3,000,000 bales from the 1931 crop, and a similar saving can be effected by a limited tobacco acreage.

Now is a good time for worthwhile experimentation on the farm. Turn a few acres from tobacco and raise sufficient feed and food crops. Take another acre or two and try out the theories advanced by the experts. With farm prices hovering around the very bottom, if you fail in your tests, you'll not lose much, while on the other hand you might gain valuable information.

The Department of Agriculture
 Much criticism has been directed against the State Department of Agriculture recently, and it is our belief that the criticism for the most part, if not all, is unfounded. For 25 years we have observed the workings of the department and the advice given, and we feel safe in saying that if the farmers of North Carolina had followed the directions of the department, we would not be in the condition we are in today. It is reasonable to believe that we would have saved in our farming operations last year more than the entire cost of our agricultural department for 30 years.

We are about like the folks were when Noah preached to them to repent or they would be destroyed by a flood. They refused to heed and follow the advice and warning.

Our department of agriculture has preached to us that if we tried to raise money crops and buy the necessities of life, we would eventually be overwhelmed by a flood of financial destruction. Now when the flood strikes us, who must we blame? surely not the people who warned us.

Now is not the time to "cuss" our leaders; it is the time to follow them.

Must Readjust Ourselves
 While thousands of workers are losing their jobs every day, our government keeps dickering with the question of unemployment. It should know that we will have more jobless people five years from now than we have at present. What our government needs to do is set up machinery to transfer the idle millions from the overcrowded factories to the farms. As long as men are led to believe that the factory doors will be opened again to them and their jobs restored, they are pushing further toward starvation.

There are now about 6,000,000 idle men in this country, which means at least one fifth of our population is without support and is simply dragging along hoping for something impossible to take place.

We must readjust ourselves to the new conditions, say good bye to jobs and seek some other place besides the factory to make a living.

BACKACHE SPELLS
 This Lady's Husband Urged Her To Take Cardui.— Soon Benefited.

Troy, Ala.—"Cardui has done me good, and it has done my 16-year-old daughter so much good," says Mrs. E. W. Durrant, of this place, "that I felt I wanted other women to know the facts about it, so I wrote to The Chattanooga Medicine Co., telling them about my experience with this medicine, Cardui.

"I have used it at intervals for sixteen years, when I suffered from weakness, and it always helped me. "Mostly I was afflicted with bad spells of backache. At times I felt as if my back would break. I would drag one foot after the other, in a helpless sort of way, and once I got down in bed. My husband urged me to take Cardui, and I soon found what a fine medicine it really was.

"When my second child was little, I was in very bad health. I did not pick up as I should have. I was weak and sickly. I do not believe that I would have come through, but for Cardui.

"Thousands of other women have written to tell how Cardui had helped them to health.

"Cardui is a purely vegetable remedy, and contains nothing harmful or injurious. It may be safely taken by a delicate young girl as well as by a feeble old lady.

Political Scandals in Washington
 It is out of the question to learn how many political scandals were hatched in and around Washington during the past few years, but recent dispatches say, "scandal charges may involve four senators, two Republicans and two Democrats." At first it would sound like a poker game, but the information indicates that there was a tariff game in which sugar interests bought a few senators.

It is strange that the number involved is so limited. Only four are involved when there were at least a half dozen who were in doubt. What the people want to hear is the names of the four involved in the game.

People are looking for light in politics, and in referring to people, we mean the sincere voter and not the highpup. People are going to stop voting for the fellows who are proven to be dishonest.

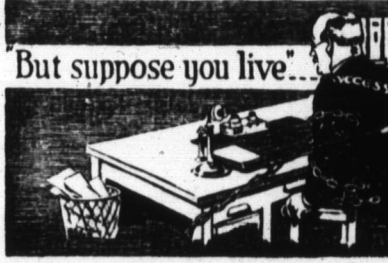

Whedbee's and Lawrence's Records
 The records of Messrs. Whedbee and Lawrence of the first district have brought bitter disappointment to the people of this section. Their actions cannot be understood. Representing a rural population made up mainly of struggling farmers, these two men have apparently turned from their constituents, leaving them to shiver in the cold and suffer the pangs of hunger. The number of sheriff's sales are increasing rapidly, yet these two men stand sterner by and fight measures designed to relieve their own friends, their own people back home who elected them, from the burden of supporting the six-months school term.

When they had the opportunity to do something for agricultural North Carolina, the two of them dodged the issue.

It might be a good idea for ambitious politicians to change their way of thinking. Everybody knows that the corporate lawyers, taking the lead in politics and going to the legislatures to make laws, are going to find bears, lions and tigers in their paths in the future. They'll soon realize that they must face an electorate of intelligence, one that will have power to force their servants.

What Life Insurance Means in Old Age
 The tragedy of old age is not the tragedy of being old—but the tragedy of being penniless

But suppose you live...

WHEN you think of Life Insurance, perhaps you consider only death.

But there always is a probability that a man will live to be old, so old that he will long for release from hard work and steady routine.

Then it is, in old age, that Life Insurance money hurries back to the pockets of the man who paid the premiums.

And old age money is indeed wonderful money, for it buys leisure, pleasure, travel and independence.
