Learn From India and Russia

Conditions in Russia and India are said to be improving. After all, these two nations we have been looking down upon as our inferiors, are showing us a number of ways to live that we need to appreciate. They shoot fewer of their neighbors than we do. Fewer of them shoot themselves than is the case among our own people. And fewer of them cheat and rob each other than we do.

Perhaps we would do well to look to others for a while rather than narrow our vision down to ourselves and continue it there.

Give Everybody a Square Deal

There are two spoons to feed taxpeayers with, one for the poor man and another, an entirely different one for the rich man

The poor man's tax list is open to the world for inspection. Anybody can see what the farmer values his horses, hogs and cows at. He is fed from the old time pewter spoon.

When the rich man comes up to list his income, the silver spoons are brought out, and the common folks are told that his tax list is none of the'r business, that it is best for them not to know what the rich

Our forefathers said, "a government with equal rights to all and special privileges to none." And yet we are fools enough to say we are a democracy when such autocratic favortism as that exists in our very

Let the North Carolina Legislature give everybody a square deal and make every man's tax return a a public record. If it is done many liars will becaught.

March Weather and the Crops

March gave us 31 cold days this year; there wasn't a single warm day in the entire month. Several rains fell, but they failed to fill the creeks and swamps. The weather during the period was so peculiar that even the weather prophets, farm forecasters are all baffled and the groundhog is now branded as a deceiver. Some farmers say it is going to be a good crop year because the first thunder cloud of the year passed to the north. Others say that it is not going to be a good crop year because the first thunder cloud went north. But there are still a few who have settled down to prepare, plant and cultivate in the very best way they can their crops regardless of the way the clouds go. These are the farmers who generally make good crops even if the weather is a little too wet or a little to dry for favorable farming.

Good seasons are essential to the production of good crops, but more crops suffer from grass than they do from too much rain or ordinary drought.

This is the year to fertilize moderately, cultivate thoroughly and take the weather as it comes. Many, if not all the farmers who follow this course, will succeed this year.

Better Feeling Prevailing

Should the Phillipines be granted immediate independence? is a question that has been discussed at great length, and it is now before the high schools of the State. Another question arises, What do the young people think about the Phillipines?

Our country has been true to human nature in that it refuses to give it up. Our preachments of liberty to all largely means us, rather than the other fellow. Of course, it is a fine thing for us to send a few hundred hungry office holders and station a small army over there and dominate their trade.

It has now been a third of a century since we told Spain that the Phillipines should be a free and independent nation, and we were so firm in that conviction that we went to the trouble to declare war against Spain. We whipped Spain and made her turn the Phillipines over to us. S'nce that time we have clung to the loot ourselves.

While it is true that we have treated that country as well and perhaps better than any other nation would have treated it, there is no reason why the Filipinos should not be given a chance. Of course, one reason for our course is that we fear Japan and think she might eventually take them over. Our idea for world freedom is being violated by our own acts with the excuse that they need us to take care of them, when as a matter of pure, plain white truth, we want them for our own trade purposes.

The Philippine Question

We are feeling better. We are thinking more of welfare of our neighbors and friends than we did; we have more time to aid and assist them. We are less critical We are thinking more of our future days. We are reaching that point where we appreciate the necessities of life and care less for those things that call us from the paths of duty.

As we gradually arouse ourselves from the dreadful nightmare of extravagance, whimsical wants and idle dreams of pleasure and learn that we are only human beings with duties and obligations, we will naturally feel better. Of course, many people owe money and that may be worrying them, but if we do our best we cannot be blamed. So then the main thing to do now is to do right, content ourselves with whatever lot that is ours and be happy.

No Profits in Any Glutted Market

Farmers who are hauling hogs to Richmond these days are happier than those who sold tobacco last fall and winter. Yet, it will not be wise to raise too many hogs, because a glutted hog market is just like a glutted tobacco or cotton market-it means no profit.

The real need of the farmer is to raise his own meat and lard, for then the price of meat will not concern him. The little farmer who too often dodges work and will not feed a few pigs and arrange a little pasture for them because it take a little energy is the fellow who has done much to help break the country. They have demanded their landlord or time merchant to do all the furnishing and take it out of the

This system is never going to make us a prosperous people. We must have our own smokehouses and corn cribs or stand the chance of going hungry.

A Wide Difference

In the year 1929, the labor cost, including official management of all manufactured produts in North Carolina, was $207,550,717. This labor produced goods valued at $1,301,310,152, a resulting difference of $1,093,759,435 to be divided between cost of raw materials and profits.

In 1927, the value of products was $1,154,646,612, an amount less by $146,663,540 than the 1929 figure. The labor cost in 1929 increased only 1.7 per cent. while the value of the products was increased 12.7

A study of these figures will show a vast sum existing between the cost of labor and the value of the raw products. Everything produced from the fields, forests, earth and waters of North Carolina added to the labor cost of manufacturing will leave a very large sum between the total cost and the total value of the manufactured products. This is one of the reasons why the little man is having a hard time trying to live and get tax relief.

Knute Rockne's Passing

We regret the sudden death of Knute Rockne, the great football star and Notra Dame eleven coach. And even though he has achieved great fame in his work, what great good has he done? The scientist large and small labors throughout a life time that discoveries important to mankind might be made. His passing is noted in the journals, but the public hardly concerns itself to the extent to read his obituary. As a result, thousands after thousands flock to the colleges of our country with a football uniform as their goal and the arts and sciences as their sidelines. There are those, however, who go in for the more serious things in life, but the conditions even now existing around our millions of people call for others than athletic geniuses, great incorporators and manipulators.
