Judge Harris' Address

Tuesday, June 23, 1931

Address all communications to The Enterprise and not to the individual members of the firm.

In a resent address before the Williamston Kiwanis Club, Judge W. C. Harris, of Raleigh, advanced the opinion that great harm is resulting from criticism directed at our courts and other governmental es-

Frankly, we think the Judge is wrong in his conclusions. First, every function of our government is the creation of the people for the sole purpose of maintaining and promoting right and detecting and preventing wrong. Any system is open to criticism that has to have governors and judges to guide the conflicting principles of righ and wrong, which forces have never ceased to fight since the snake crawled. in the garden and the apple fell off the tree. And since that time there has never been a single period-of as much as one century that the best of our governments have not been steeped in scandal and dishonesty, and perhaps always will be as long as pride, fashion and greed have power to influence human nature. Kings have yielded to their passions, and presidents have yielded to the appeals of their greedy friends.

When it comes to courts, we willingly admist the sanctity of the tribunal and the dignity it carries. The court has for centuries worn the emblems and priestly robes symbolic of wisdom, truth and justice. We also admit that the judicial system comes nearer representing the ideals of human justice and liberty than any other agency in organized government, and the court actions are very largely above reproach. The public respects the courts as human institutions and naturally expects some mistakes will be made. When any judge wraps the vail of mercy around a human being, it increases the admiration and respect of all good people for that judge because love and mercy are two of the highest attributes of the human soul, and the people are not slow to commend good officials. On the other hand, the people are long suffering and patient in their criticism of corrup officials. As a concrete example, Martin county has had the misfortune to sit at the feet of a drunken and debauched superior court judge on various occasions during the past decade. Yet, its people opened not their mouths for fear of the power of a tyrant to punish. Only recently our own United States Supreme Court, the world's foremost tribunal, was criticised by certainof our people, while on the other hand the court was highly praised by other people for its same decisions.

There seems to be a general admission that government is nothing more or less than the voice of the people which is doubtless too true in many cases. If It is true then it is a feeble admission of a very unsafe condition, especially as it applies to the courts. It virtually means that in communities dominated by law-abiding citizens we have good government and in those communities where there is a majority of bad citizens, there is enforcement accordingly. Unfortunately it is too true and that is why thousands complain at the lack of enforcement of the laws in communities dominated by thieves, bootleggers and gamb-

b our national government we find our laws have been so warped to the advantage of the trust organizations that most of the wealth of our country-has been drained from the rank and file and centered in the hands of the few, the practice being permitted and festered by our laws and then protected by our courts. The average voice never reaches the highups who fostered such a system and who are now helping to

The same principle of honesty, truth and justice that builds an individual character must predominate the several departments of our government if they are to command and demand the respect of the people who created them.

We have to admit that the people are always passing the "buck" to the courts for the lax enforcement of the law, but the courts are trying equally as hard to mass the charge back to the people. We think it only fair to admit that half of each charge is true.

The judiciary of our republic has been placed on a high pinnacle and should never be criticised in its est endeavor to maintain its dignity. On the other hand, nothing needs more severe criticism than a cor-

If we should attempt to recount court criticisms in rth Carolina, we would first find the most and sethe justices of the peace in many cases. a find them from the bar association, in legises, reports and sundry other places. s of the peace are accused of all types of rance and corruption. Then there are criticisms directed to the county or recorders' courts. In the superior court we find more dignity The people remove their hats quicker and step lighter than they do in the lower courts.

PUBLISHED EVERY

In so far as we know there is no desire on the part of the people to tear down the courts or hinder them in any way. Yet, the courts are not perfect and we are constantly trying to improve them. We are told that our courts are far behind those of England and France in point of efficiency. Were it not for the power of the press and the voice of the people there is serious doubt if our government would be half as strong as it is.

When we consider that officials are only servants of the people, we feel that they have no right to complain at honest criticism. Of course the man who unjustly criticises is a criminal hmself and should be punished

There was a day when one criticised an officer whether it was right or wrong, he was put to death. In these latter days the penalty for false criticism is imprisonment, the length of the sentence resting with the court. But for true and just criticism there should be no punishment. The man who justly criticises an officer is only strengthening his government and broadening human freedom.

Frank Grist's Candidacy

The candidacy of Frank D. Grist for the United States Senate sounds more like a joke than a reality. Mr. Grist is a fine fellow, but he had a hard job with the office of commissioner of labor and printing, a position that required little work and no speech mak-

Not Far Enough

America is very much concerned about Germany's inability to pay her debts, which is a fine spirit for any country to have. But it should not stop with Germany; it should be extended to our own folks who are unable to pay debts or taxes, and are even too poor to buy necessary food.

It really looks as if the bondholders have swallowed up the works and have not yet satisfied their greed. Now they want the various governments to extend time on their holdings so the down trodden will be

Our Dependence on Factories

Why should the Pet milk people expand and Heinz pickle business grow?

If every farmer in the country will keep his own cow he can get better and cheaper milk. When every girl is taught the easy art of cooking, canning, pickling and preserving, men will get better wives and there will be happier homes.

Much of our dependence has come because we quit looking out for ourselves and placed our fate in the hands of the big factory

One of the quickest ways to run hard times away is by raising the things we need to eat and not have to depend upon the condensed milk folks and the big pickle factories to feed us.

The "Gas" Barrage

Mr. James H. Pou, the astute and able lawyer, of Raleigh, who is generally regarded as a well-balanced and deep thinker, seems to be a little batty in connection with the recent tax laws passed by our State legislature. He says that no relief need be expected by any person or firm.

In this he is certainly wrong, for the new laws will relieve every property owner in this county of more than a third of his or her taxes.

The thing that is chaffing Mr. Pou is that the new system will make his rich clients pay more taxes. Naturally Mr. Pou's thoughts and interest are centered around his clients. He forgets all the farmers and landowners in his State. It might be that he thinks of the farmers and landowners but cares nothing of their plight. There is no one who knows any better than Mr. Pou that the law takes about eight millions of dollars off of property and places the burden on a few dozen strong, money-making institutions of our State that are enjoying all the privileges of our people as well as their trade and the profits made thereon.

There is one thing certain and that is the same folks who fought tax relief in the last legislature are going to fight it again in the next legislature. They are preparing their attack by laying mine fields, planting heavy artillery and organizing machine gun batteries in the hope of retaking the works they lost. Already they are discharging "gas."

Appointive Offices

It is now beginning to dawn upon the people of the State why it was so hard to get tax relief measures enacted in the late legislature. Opponents to the measures were men of such great ability that they could not be beaten. We get the proof of their ability and governmental fitness from the fact that many of those who fought tax relief have been given good jobs by our state government. When you see a man who is half way decent standing and fighting for the interests of the people you may know there is a reason for his action. It is not natural for them to do so. They are generally prompted by a righ fee or the hope of a fat office. One of the worst features of our government is that it pays off legislators with appointive offices in too many cases.

Amusing or Worse

It is amusing to see the many editorials in those papers which fought the sales tax, praising the legislature for not passing any sales tax. If you tax the merchants one per cent on his gross sales they say that would be a sales tax, but if you tax him onetenth of one per cent, that is a license tax. Yes; we have no sales tax .- Roxboro Courier.

PRICE VERSUS QUALITY

Price usually determines the quality which may be expected in any article. It stands to reason that a good, uniform, highgrade commodity must cost a little more than an article made without regard for quality or uniformity to sell at a cheap price.

RED ROSE flour is not a cheap-priced flour, for it is milled with the utmost care from selected wheats. It is, however, the most economical flour to buy, for every baking will be of uniform high quality-no waste-no bakings to apologize for.

Try a sack and be convinced.
