RIVER PICTURE STIRS INTEREST
 "Study in Patience" Taken Near Here on Roanoke River

The picture shows two little negro boys fishing from an abandoned boat in the edge of the water of the Roanoke River, just a little way above Hampton's warehouse. The picture gives a comprehensive view of the placid Roanoke and the island on the Bertie side.

A still more interesting picture could have been obtained at the Kitty Hawk and Slade fisheries, which are owned and operated by the Hampton interests here, had the cameraman arrived a little earlier in the spring.

The pastor of a Key West (Fla.) Methodist church has announced that men who wear coats during services on hot Sundays will be fined 25 cents.

During the past 3 years, war, famine, and disease have killed approximately 2,000,000 men, women, and children in Shensi Province, China.

MAKE STUDY OF ORCHARD TREES
 Careful Growers Should Go Through Orchard Carefully at This Time

One of the best methods of determining whether or not the orchard is responding properly to the management methods given it is to inspect the trees carefully at this season of the year.

"This applies particularly to apple orchards," says H. R. Niswonger, extension horticulturist at State College. "Every careful grower will go through his orchard while there is a lull in work and examine the fruit for disease. There may be some fruit cleaner than other in the same variety. There may be some variation in pruning or in the kind of spraying material used. It is wise to mark any trees that may need special attention in the future."

Mr. Niswonger suggests that fruit be examined for codling moth damage especially on the trees standing near the packing and storage places. This is an indication that these places must be cleaned up. The fruit should also be examined for scale insects because they multiply and spread rapidly during the summer.

A close inspection of the foliage of the trees will pay, Mr. Niswonger believes. Some foliage may show the need for more nitrogen or organic matter in the soil. Some trees may be dying from the attacks of field mice or from disease. As soon as the harvest is over, the grass and weeds and the mice tunnels under the trees should be destroyed by hoeing. When early winter comes, put out some poisoned bait to kill out the mice.

At any rate, during this season, every orchardist will find it profitable to go over his trees carefully and make notes as to future work needed to be done.

BOYS CHARGED WITH LARCENY
 Parmele Youths Are Tried Before Mayor C. M. Hurst Recently

Charged with entering the home of Mr. W. K. Roberson, in Parmele, and stealing $15 in gold and a few other coins, Vernon Whitehurst, 15 years old, and Arthur Adams, 13, white boys of that town, were given a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace C. M. Hurst in Robersonville last Tuesday, the boys pleading guilty to the charge. The boys were taken into custody by Chief William Gray.

It was stated at the hearing that the boys gained an entrance to the home by using a skeleton key, and it is understood that they limited their search to the coins. All but $5 of the stolen money was returned to the owner.

The preliminary disposition of the case is being withheld, pending further developments in the case.

Neither the tobacco, the next to the last curing, nor the barn was insured, the loss being complete for the owner.
