HONEY CROP IS GOOD THIS YEAR
A record honey crop was produced by beekeepers of North Carolina this year. Nectar-producing plants in all parts of the State yielded abundantly and both professional and amateur beekeepers report excellent harvests. "While we have tons of honey for home use and for sale this season, not every year is so favorable for beekeeping," warns C. L. Sams, extension specialist in beekeeping at State College, who asks growers to get their colonies in shape for the coming winter. "The amount of honey we shall produce next season will depend on the condition in which the colonies are left this fall. It will not pay to harvest the honey too closely. Some food must be left for brood rearing and for carrying the bees through the winter. Success in honey production lies in carrying the colonies through the winter in a vigorous condition so that they will be strong and thriving with a large force of worker bees and a healthy queen at the beginning of the honey flow next spring." Mr. Sams suggests that every colony owner examine his hives this fall. Brood rearing must be encouraged before killing frost because the older bees will die in winter and therefore will be of little further use to the colony after this harvest. Anything that interferes with brood rearing during September and October will result in the colonies entering the winter in poor condition. If new queens are needed, now is the proper time to add young ones. Old queens do not lay well in the fall and colonies with these old queens are apt to go into winter quarters with a small cluster of old bees. Such colonies may die out or become too weak for them to gather strength in time for the spring flow. It is also important to leave sufficient food stores to carry the colony thru the cold weather.

Reception
Hassells Sept. 7.—One of the most successful social events of the season was a reception given by Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Haislip Friday evening, honoring Mr. and Mrs. J. Roy Martin, who were recently married. The home was prettily decorated with overs of the season, and a color scheme walls suggestive of the coming fall. The guests were met at the door by Mrs. C. L. Nelson and directed to the punch bowl, where Misses Thelma Haislip and Rachel Rawles presided. Two contests were enjoyed, Miss Nannie Davis and Mrs. L. B. Fleming receiving the prizes. The honorees received many useful gifts, the bride making a pretty speech of acceptance. After being served ice cream and cake the guests were bad good-night by the hosts.—Reported.

CARD OF THANKS
We desire to thank our friends and neighbors for the sympathy expressed, and for the beautiful floral tributes for our son, Warren Thomas Summerlin. A. J. SUMMERLIN AND FAMILY.

PLANT CROP FOR SPRING GRAZING
Cows will easily ruin a good pasture if turned on it too early in the spring while the soil is soaked with moisture. Early spring grass lacks desirable nutritive qualities and usually the barns are emptied of the best legume hay by early March. "Therefore," says John A. Arey, dairy extension specialist at State College, "the wise thing to do is to make provision this fall for a supply of early grazing next spring. When a cow has passed the winter largely on dry feed, she craves appetizing, succulent feed such as may be got from a good temporary pasture. Such grazing is appetizing, is nutritious and is one of the most economical feeds that any dairyman can provide. By providing temporary grazing for the month of March and for as much of April as will be needed, the cows may be kept off the permanent pasture until the grass has made good growth and the soil is so dry that the sod will not be ruined by trampling." Mr. Arey finds that the supply of home-grown roughage is about exhausted on March first, especially on those farms where only a few cows are kept for cream production. These cows are therefore turned on the pasture when the hay gives out regardless of the condition of the soil or the growth of the grasses. This usually results in damage to the pasture and little good to the cows. A good forage crop mixture to plant this fall consists of one-half bushel of Abruzzi rye; one-half bushel of beardless wheat; one bushel of Norton oats; one bushel of beardless barley, and ten pounds of crimson clover or 15 pounds of hairy vetch. This amount will plant one acre. For early spring grazing the seeding should be done by middle September. In some cases, grazing may be done in late fall, Mr. Arey says.

HOW ONE "KEP" OFF THE CROSS
"A North Carolinian, on a business trip in Powhatan county, Virginia, ran across an old negro farmer who had an unusually large store of canned food in his home. "It's what kep' me off o' the cross," said the negro. Asking what was meant by the term, the visitor learned that drought had forced most other negroes in the neighborhood to look to the Red Cross for food in the latter part of 1930. This one had plenty of his own, though able to produce little. "I long ago learned that the good Lord sometimes sends drought and flood," the negro told him. "So I always puts up food for two years ahead." He was putting up enough this year to last him through all 1932 and at least a part of 1933.

TOBACCO IS Selling Higher

AT THE Farmers Warehouse

WILLIAMSTON, N. C.

Our general sales average was considerably higher yesterday than at any time since the opening and practically all individual sales were better and the farmers in most cases were well pleased. Bidding by the larger companies seemed to be more spirited, and the better grades of tobacco brought prices that would exceed last week's sales by several cents.

Bring your tobacco to the Farmers Warehouse, and we will guarantee to get you every cent the market will afford. We will work for you and use our money, time, and efforts always to get you the highest dollar for your tobacco.
