Also 507 Injured During August; 24 of Dead Pedestrians

Raleigh.—Sixty-six persons, 24 of them pedestrians and 42 occupants of automobiles, were killed in automobile accidents in North Carolina during the month of August, according to figures made public yesterday by the Motor Vehicle Division of the State Department of Revenue.

In addition to the 66 killed there were 507 injured during the month. Of the 24 pedestrians killed, seven were children playing in the street, and 24 of the pedestrians injured were also children.

The 573 killed and injured were accounted for by 349 accidents, of which 63 were fatal. The drivers of nine of the 63 automobiles having fatal accidents were intoxicated, as were the drivers of 34 of the 286 automobiles in non-fatal accidents.

The 63 killed were divided as follows: 24 pedestrians, 17 in collisions between automobiles, four in collisions with horse-drawn vehicles, one in collision with a train, four in collisions with fixed objects, and 16 in non-collision accidents.

WAREHOUSEMEN OF OLD BELT ARE ASKED TO CLOSE

Virginia Farmers Thus Protest Against Low Prices Now Prevailing

Danville, Va., Sept. 30.—Warehousemen of Danville were today asked to close their auction centers from October 2 to October 19 at a meeting of landowners and farmers held in a theater at Chatham. It was a protest by the growers to prevailing prices paid for their leaf at the opening date of the selling season yesterday, notwithstanding a price average of 7.37 cents per pound and one considered by many elements of the trade as proportionate with the values offered.

The Chatham meeting was attended by about 175 farmers and was presided over by J. E. Stone, county agent. The resolutions brought in by a committee of representative farmers also called on the growers to keep their tobacco in the barn and urged contiguous tobacco counties to take concurrent action. This was done in the hope that the world's financial situation might have a chance to resolve itself. Next Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock another meeting will be held at Chatham, when, according to Stone, "a more definite program" will be outlined.

GIVES FACTS AS TO FATTENING OF LIVE STOCK

Baby Beef Calves Should Be Fed Grain When 4 to 6 Weeks Old

By GUY A. CARDWELL, Agricultural and Industrial Agent, Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co.

When calves are intended for baby beef they should be started on some grain when from 4 to 6 weeks old. A mixture of equal parts, by weight, of shelled corn, whole oats, and wheat bran is satisfactory. The corn and oats may be fed ground until the calves become accustomed to eating. Whole corn and oats are less likely to cause scours. The grain allowance should be increased gradually up to weaning time. Then keep spring calves on full feed all winter and finish them early in the spring to avoid the heat and flies. Fall calves should be weaned after they have been placed on pasture in the spring. A gradually more definite program will be outlined.

No Marked Effect Seen

The Chatham action had no marked effect here, the view being that the closing of the warehouses could not reverse the situation complained of, which is conceded to be beyond remedy, by mass action of the growers. It was considered doubtful if the warehouses would close, because there are farmers who still desire an outlet for the product despite low prices. Deliveries were practically at a standstill today. About 300,000 pounds of leaf was carried over from yesterday, but very few additional loads came in. Higher quality leaf sold better than yesterday, but the common showed little change, the expectation being that the official average would be around $8 per 100 pounds. The voice of the responsible trade rose in anger today over local publicity given the market yesterday, and the chronicling of widespread complaint among the growers. Steps were taken at a called meeting of the tobacco association to disseminate more affable material for public consumption in the prints of the surrounding area. Many of the growers here, however, continued to be wrought up over what they claim are below production prices for an unusually good crop.

increasing allowance of grain should be given them, with hay and silage added later in the summer. They may be marketed at the end of the pasture season, or put into a dry lot for finishing and marketing in December or January.

Whenever possible, calves should be fattened on corn with legume hay, velvet beans, peanut meal, soy bean meal or linseed meal to furnish protein instead of cottonseed meal.

Fattening Steers

To obtain the most satisfactory results, cattle should be raised on the farm where they are fattened. However, it is often necessary to buy feeders if the farm is small, the pasture too limited, or the land too high in price to raise them. By purchasing feeds, such as cottonseed meal, to supplement home-grown roughages and fattening steers, the productivity of the land may be built up faster than by keeping a breeding herd.

Cattle feeders should study the demands of the market for certain seasons feed the kind of cattle that will be in demand when they are ready for market. In some seasons certain weights and classes of cattle may be purchased more economically than others. Ordinarily, it is preferable to buy the cattle in early fall, as competition between packers and feeders usually increase as winter approaches. Cattle intended for fattening on grass the following summer should be purchased in the fall if there is plenty of cheap roughage on hand. Oftentimes feeders can be bought in the country, either locally or in producing sections.

Hogs Following Cattle

Cattle that are being fattened usually receive so large proportion of concentrates that considerable feed is voided in the manure, especially when corn or velvet beans are fed. Old cattle pass more undigested feed into the manure than young cattle. Also the waste feed is considerably greater when whole grain is used than when the grain is ground. Ordinarily one pig, weighing 70 to 80 pounds to each three steers will be required. Two-year-old steers on full feed, if shelled corn, should have one pig each. When supplemental feed is given the pigs, a few more pigs may just as well be added. If only enough hogs are kept to follow the cattle in the feed lot, the cattle pastures need not be fenced hog tight, as a much smaller area devoted to good pasture and properly fenced will furnish sufficient hog pasture for this part of the enterprise.

WARN HUNTERS OF DANGER IN FOREST FIRES

District Forester Asks Cooperation in Preserving Cover for Game

The early opening of the squirrel and deer hunting season, together with the hot, dry weather of the past few weeks, has created a fire hazard that menaces the timber and wild life wealth of our State, and every hunter is urged to do his bit to prevent forest fires while in the woods, states L. A. Carter, of Windsor, district forester.

Records of the Department of Conservation and Development show that over 90 per cent of the forest fires in North Carolina are due to carelessness and of these about one-third are due to careless hunters and smokers.

The hunter who carelessly throws down a match without making sure it is out, or who discards burning cigarettes, cigars, or knocks hot ashes from his pipe without regard to where he throws them or without putting them out, is endangering the very sport in which he is engaged.

The hunter who builds a fire to warm himself or his food without first removing all inflammable material from the area in which he builds his fire, or who leaves such a fire without fully extinguishing it, takes the chance of burning to destruction the game and cover and has violated the laws of his State.

It is a recognized fact that every forest fire takes its toll of game birds and animals, that many that are not burned to death in the fire suffer burns that lead to their death and others are so weakened that they become impotent and are unable to reproduce.

It is also recognized that north-eastern North Carolina has about the best hunting in the State. If every hunter will do his part to keep our woods green, we can continue to en-
