A Plan That Ought To Help

The big credit pool ought to do a lot of good. The purpose is to bring out some of the idle money of the country where it can do some work.

The greatest single trouble with business is caused by the fact that the people are afraid of the banks and the banks are afraid of the people. As soon as the people are willing to trust the banks with their money and the banks are willing to trust the people on good security, things will get better and we will be worth more. We are now suffering because money is tied up. The banks are stuffed full of cash to meet any emergency to which panicky minds are subject.

When the big pool takes up a lot of these good papers which can not be collected in a week or a month, yet are good security at any and all times, then a stream of money will begin to flow, and it will enrich the whole body of business.

The pool is almost ready for business. May the day hasten.

Investigating Army-Navy Budgets

That congressman who dared to demand an investigation of the propaganda against reducing army and navy expense is on the right track.

This country has already over-burdened itself trying to please war lords who are of the opinion that the profession of war is the nation's greatest attainment. This has gone on until the nation is paying half of all it gets to those who are preparing for war and the other half to those who have been to war.

Our worst citizens are those who are always crying, "prepare for war." Our best citizens are those who are praying for peace.

And Cigarettes Are No Lower

With an estimate of 70 per cent of the tobacco of the county sold, bringing a very small amount of money to the community, what will the balance of 30 per cent, or less, mean? Unless some improvement is shown in prices, many farmers will not be able to meet their fertilizer bills, and lots of them will fail on their taxes.

Cigarettes are no lower.

Clean Young Manhood Needed

As we think of what conditions tomorrow will bring, we find that from today's inventory, panics, tribulations and wars are not likely to be our greatest liability, but our young men, who we might naturally expect to be our greatest asset.

If one will listen to the broadcast of the barber-shop loafer, the drug-store loafer, and the pool-room loafer, he will find that there are too many young men with bankrupt minds, so far as the things he has need to know and need to follow go. In other words there are too many of such fellows who have not found themselves yet.

They propose to go to the limit that Dad can carry the load. They think nothing of throwing away twice as much in one night as the "old man" can make all day. They do not mind taking the family car and running wild, bringing it home a wreck for Dad to have fixed.

The excessive liberties that we are extending to our boys have gone quite a long way toward ruining them. It is one of the reasons why the country is bankrupt. However, financial bankruptcy is not nearly so bad as moral and physical bankruptcy.

A more sturdy, sober-minded young manhood is one of our greatest needs of this day, and then the boys, and their sisters, would be so much happier when they grow older.

Peanuts Offer a Way Out

Martin County farmers still have a chance. They have a good peanut crop to depend on. The way they handle the product will have much to do with the price it brings.

First of all, farmers should not rush the peanuts to market, because a glut always depresses prices, and since the peanut products are sold the year 'round, the farmer should only feed the factory as fast as the factory can distribute to the user.

Another important thing is to keep peanuts dry. No farmer should permit his peas to be picked before they are fully cured, nor after any rain until they dry out thoroughly. Wet and damaged peanuts knock the market more than any other one thing.

Perhaps the biggest mistake the peanut farmer makes is to produce a crop for other folks to buy and eat, and not eat it himself. The peanut is one of the finest foods that man or beast can eat, and yet we raise them and do not know how to eat them. If the farmer who is hard up for something to eat will use the peanut as a part of the family's daily ration, he will find that it gives health and vigor—it takes the place of nearly all the meat and much of the bread necessary for the human body.

Our home agents should look well to the use of the peanut as a part of the family's daily diet. There are many ways in which they may be used, and strange to say we know little about them. When peanuts are selling for 2 cents a pound, the farmer should use them at home, so far as the need may be, rather than buy high priced western meat and butter, because the peanut serves the same purposes that they do, and more.

How foolish we are not to use our own product. Remember that 100 pounds of peanuts will shell out 67 pounds, or more, and solid nuts cost us only 3 cents, and yet we will go to the remote parts of the world and buy nuts at 20, 40, and perhaps 60 cents a pound in the hull. After shelling them we find our net meat has cost us 40, 80, and perhaps over a dollar a pound, which after all has no more value than the 3 cents worth of solid meat peanuts.

If the farmer wants the most out of his peanuts, let him eat all he can, take good care of the balance, and sell them as other folks need them.

"Victory Through Faith" Is Topic of Annual Gathering Next Week

Kinston, Oct. 27.—"Victory Through Faith" will be the theme for the 1931 convention of North Carolina Disciples of Christ, to be held at New Bern November 3-5, Judge Guy Elliott, the State president, announced today.
