What Has New York To Do With It?

What have New York financiers got to do with North Carolina tax laws?

According to one Raleigh newspaper correspondent, they seem very much interested. The correspondent says that "certain financial institutions telephoned Governor Gardner, urging him to call a special session of the legislature for the purpose of reducing the cotton acreage." He goes on to say that when they found out the true status of affairs in North Carolina, that the governor had no veto power, and that some legislators really wanted to bring up the taxation question, they back-tracked and urged the governor not to call a special session of the legislature.

The question is: Why are financial institutions of New York interested in North Carolina tax legisla-

Need of Economy in Our Courts

Smithfield Heraid

Public justice is now, and always has been, a costly factor in the governmental affairs of this state. At this time, when every one is trying to minimize the cost of state and county government, a look in upon the cost of operating the courts of Johnston County is a matter of interest to every axpayer in the county.

To give a comprehensive account of all money spent in the operation of our courts is a thing impracticable, and we can only cite a few of the most outstanding figures touching this subject. No attempts will be made at this time to discuss the operation of the recorder's court, and the facts presented now relate solely to the cost of operating the Superior Court. During the year 1930, twenty-two weeks were devoted to terms of Superior Court in Johnston County. The. cost of paying jurors, court stenographers, emergency judges, and other items incidental to the operation of these five and a half months of court amounted to $23,000. Only about $9,000 were turned to the treasury from litigants. In 1931, fifteen weeks, or four months lacking one week, were required to try cases, criminal and civil, in the superior court, and the average cost of a little above a thousand dollars per month was required to defray expenses. Of these fifteen weeks, all were regular terms with the exception of three weeks.

The Johnston County Bar Association has summarized the work now pending on the civil dockets of the superior court and has asked the county commissioners for six weeks of court for the year 1932 in addition to the regular twelve weeks assigned to Johnston County. This would indicate that the county is again facing another very costly year from the standpoint of court operations. However, when the petition of the bar was considered here last Monday six asked for were approved. Doubtless other court terms will receive further consideration later in the new year.

PUBLISHED EVERY

Some of the facts in regard to the need for more courts are to be reckoned with. There are three hundred untried civil actions now pending the dockets, and two hundred criminal actions are also awaiting trial. Deferring the trial of these actions will not settle them, nor will it lessen the cost in their final disposition. On the other hand, delays and continuances pile up added costs to every unsettled case.

It has been apparent in the past that sometimes special terms of court have been ordered here and when the courts were opened, there seemed to be a general lack of preparedness on all hands, and the judges themselves have acquiesced to the dilatory methods of the other court officials. In this way, much valuable time has been whiled away with little

In the face of the hard times and in keeping with the effort that the county commissioners and other agencies of the county are making to reduce taxes, it seems reasonable that court officials, as well as litigants, should use the time of the regular courts to the very best possible advantage to the end that less special courts be required, and thereby less expense to the taxpaver.

The Double Standard of Coinage

In considering the silver question, Sir Henry Deterding, the famous English financier, said recently: "It is absurd to be tied to one metal-gold-of which there is not enough to go around, and of which the bulk has been cornered by two countries. The world seems to have gone mad in the search for gold, which for practical purposes is useless, while necessities of life, such as wheat and cotton, are almost unsale-

"Why be tied to a single standard when nature has provided in silver another metal equally suitable for currency purposes? . . . Why not fall back upon silver as a second string in the present currency crisis?

"Countries which have adopted a gold standard seem determined to vie with one another to rid themselves of their stocks of silver at all costs. It is this boycott of silver by those who wish to make gold the only standard which has caused the disasatrous fall in silver, rather than lack of demand . . . "

The most encouraging phase of the silver problem now is the effort being given, by business and governments, to solve it. The reestablishment of silver on a fair basis would not suddenly create world prosperity-but it would do much to clear the economic clouds now menacing all great nations and would prevent another great world-wide panic in the future.

Why Government Costs So Much

Most of the talk and promises for reducing governmental expense comes from the fellow that is on the outside. Just as soon as a fellow gets into office, then he shuts up as tightly as a clam and is as dumb as

We are paying our Congressmen twice as much as they are worth on an average-$10,000 a year is just naturally too much for what 98 per cent of them do. The trend is when a man gets an office he misconstrues his trust, and instead of being a servant of the people he feels that he should be a lord over them.

Another branch of our government that is outrageously wasteful is our pension system, where thousands of fellows who are as "sound as a bullet" are working their way on the pension roll. It generally depends on how much "pull" the fellow has and how many crooked statements he is willing to make.

Then there are millions who are tax-dodgers, and never willing to pay their fair share of the governmental burdens.

By the time a vast percentage of our population refuse to assume their reasonable portion of govern mental burdens and another vast number are doing all in their power to milk the government of every cent they can, we need not wonder that honest and fair-minded people are having it pretty hard.

The money expended during the war, coupled with the war pensions that we, our children, and our grandchildren are going to be burdened with for the next

has been said that the way hell is paved with good intentions. It is true that the things that count must be more than "good intentions." not make Williamston the best place n North Carolina? It can be done and it is in the hands of the church people to do it. How By being truth ful to the vows taken at the altar o your church. It is strange how folks specially church folks, want to be hought of as truthful and honest, and yet do not make an earnest effort to e truthful to God and the church. think if I did not love God enough to try to do right. I would be afraid of what might happen to me or mine

I do not know what the obstacles are that keep you from going to hurch and Sunday school and taking an active part in the other organiza ions of the church, but God does. I cnow some say one thing and others ay something else. Whatever, dear read, you may be using as a reason or an excuse, suppose God removes I think when you say you cannot do the things so badly needed to be done, you are putting it up to God to make it so you can by getting out o the way your difficulties.

Here are some of the excuses have heard: "My business keeps me worked down;" "I have so much cook ing to do;" "My baby or children keep me from doing;" "The preacher hasn't visited me as much as he should have," and so on. These are the things God sent to be a help to us and His work. Are we to let them become a There are people who are curse? regular in their attendance upon the hurch and its organizations who have more duties, poorer health and other handicaps than you, perhaps; yet, you say God has made it impossible for you to do your part. Again, I ask, do you want God to remove these causes that you claim keep you from doing your part or to fix us so we cannot attend to and support God's work?

I am hoping and praying in spite of our feeble minds, feeble bodiee, the children in the home and so on that all may be more faithful to our churches during the New Year. Don't elay; it is too risky.

I think most folks who are not making an earnest effort to do their part by the church would feel better f they honestly faced themselves with the fact that they are not interested in God, the Savior, and His church as much as they should be. This is a great sin, and you will suffer here and may be finally lost because of this sin. May Gold help you before it is too The pastors are hoping to see your face in the congregation next Sunday. The good God says come C. T. ROGERS, Pastor,
