Queen of the Home

The physical, the mental, the moral, and the religious progress of man were all stressed at the district meeting of women's home demonstration clubs held here Wednesday of this week.

The home that gets the necessities of life and meets its obligations in the business, social, and spiritual realm is the only happy home. All the way through each exhibition was shown woman in her two most important positions in life, as the queen of the home and the servant of all. She is the inspiration of every member of the family. She looks after the food, the clothing, the sanitation, and the general welfare of the child from birth until the last breath leaves her. It was clearly shown that economy in time and in expenditures are two of her watchwords. She begins in the early morning and uses all her time until she goes to bed. She saves the surplus food by canning and preserving. She saves the scraps of garments to make over again and again. She plants the roses and works the garden; she beautifies the house and kitchen and never forgets to take care of the baby and feeds the children when hungry. She cares for them when sick, and sees that they get their lessons.

And if they happen to wander away, she loves them still.

Remember the Battle of 1931!

It is now about a year since there was an old wagon going up and down the state called the McLean Bill. It moved slow. It had to travel rocky, muddy roads. The way was beset with politicians and representatives of special interests. They were ambushing it at every turn of the way. They were trying to break it down both day and night. The sparkling bead and shining coin made men change their opinions. Finally the old vehicle came home with a big cut in property tax (not enough) and a state-supported six-months school term (not enough).

Now, what do we see? Politicians who did all they could to destroy the old shay are now running all over the whole state trying to ride on the same old rig that they had used all their silent political wires to destroy. Men who are now candidates for the highest offices in the State refused a year ago to lend any effort whatever to relieve the people. Now they are trying to crowd on the McLean platform, because they know it is just and fair and a vote getter. Then—only a year ago—they felt duty bound to help a few friends of wealth.

The administration at Raleigh refused to help in the matter of tax reform. Now it is trying to climb on the McLean bandwagon and extol its virtues as a tax saver and a vehicle for more efficiency.

There are candidates running for office now who fought the McLean bill a year ago—and they are now trying to grab the reins of government by claiming to be for it. Men are quite different when they want votes from what they really are when it comes time to help the folks.

Beware of the man who fought against lowering the property tax. The fight will be on again, and some trick will be played again to keep the tax on the poor and save the rich, either by a general sales tax or through some other subterfuge.

And remember politicians are nearly always ready to make fine promises in order to get votes.

Slow To Take Up Gardening

People are slow to take up gardening, even when free seed are offered them. It may be that some had rather beg than work. Many people need more initiative in life. They have depended so long on the pay envelope and tin can that they have apparently lost all touch with the primary things of life. They wait for the other fellow to make the job and prepare the food. They forget that one seed planted in the soil will bring forth a hundred in the harvest. Yet many of them will eat one grain of corn now rather than work a little and wait until next fall for a full ear. We must get away from the idea of grinding the seed corn for present use. We must look better to the seed time if we expect a bountiful harvest.

Propitious for Livestock

The low prices of all feedstuffs should be an encouragement to steadily expand the livestock and poultry industry of the state. Not enough poultry and poultry products, dairy products, beef and mutton and pork are being produced to meet the needs of the state at the present. This is especially true of dairy products on a home basis. Corn, hay, and other feedstuffs will not demand such a profitable price in the markets but will pay a profit when fed to livestock.

The outlook for seeds is not any too bright, but North Carolina needs a larger supply of cheap certified seeds which may be used to plant legumes for soil building, for hay, and other purposes.—Agricultural Editor, State A. and E. College.

Our Chief Resource

It is a wise people who would build a democracy in which the training and opportunities of youth are not allowed to go up and down with the stock market but are kept equal, high, and as constant as the life stream of the people. We must pay on time dollar for dollar, and interest, too. To tear down is a wasteful way to pay up. The schools and colleges are the chief resources with which in the long run the public debt will be paid. Let us pay off the long-running debt by the long-run building up of the latent capacities and creative power of the people.—President Frank Graham.

Daylight Saving Time

Daylight saving time seems to puzzle many people. Many of the large towns are adopting it in an effort to get the folks up a little earlier.

Country people go to bed early and get up early. Town and city folks generally sit up half the night and sleep half the day. This accounts for a lot of the extra cost of living in towns and cities. The sun—the best light in all the world—is perfectly free to all creatures, and most of them use it in the day and sleep at night, except a few slimy worms, night hawks, and dangerous "varmints." On the other hand, lots of humans sleep in the day and buy electricity for night use.

Daylight saving time will mean millions saved to the people of the United States if they will only observe it. As it now is, the farmer is about the only fellow who uses the day to work and the night to rest.

It will be a decided advantage when we all get together for pleasure and work. Daylight is an aid to good works—darkness aids evil.

BABE RUTH

TRAVEL IN A PARLOR - CAR BUS

You will travel in a parlor car bus. You will visit the birthplace of George Washington. You will visit the place he lived when he cut down the cherry tree. You will stand on the spot he did when he threw that Spanish Dollar across the Rhappahannock. You will visit his old home at Mount Vernon. You will visit Washington City. You will see Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig swat the ball. You will see Walter Johnson coach his team from the first-base line. You will see "The Spirit of St. Louis," the plane that carried Lindbergh across the sea. Oh Boy! What a trip!

A GREAT TRIP

You will never have another opportunity of celebrating a Washington Centennial, as this comes but once in a hundred years.

What a thrill will come to you when you stand on the spot he did when he cut down his father's cherry tree. Another tree grew up on the root of the one he cut and the stump is still there. You will be photographed while standing by this stump, the most famous stump in history.

How your heart will beat when you view the "Spirit of St. Louis," the same plane that carried Lindbergh across the sea—and on to earthly immortality.

Big League Baseball? Sure! You will see TWO GAMES between the Senators and the Yankees. What wild excitement there will be when you see Babe Ruth step up to the plate with his mighty bat!

You will see good shows, Capitol of the United States, the White House, Congressional Library, Arlington, Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, Lincoln Memorial, go up in the Washington monument, see the place where Booth shot Lincoln, and the place where Guitierrez shot President Garfield.

You will travel in a parlor car bus, sleep in regular Army tents and have camp-fire cooking with plenty of good things to eat.

It will be a wonderful six days' trip with all your expenses paid.
