PARMELE STORE IS ROBBED LAST SATURDAY NIGHT

Lester and Ira Matthews and Norman Currie Are Arrested in Tarboro

Charged with breaking into and robbing the store of John H. Roebuck in Parmele some time Saturday night, Lester and Ira Matthews and Norman Currie, three young white men of Tarboro, were arrested there Sunday morning and placed in the county jail here that afternoon to await trial.

The trio, stealing a big Locomobile from J. R. Davis in Tarboro, made a heavy raid on the store, stealing $25 worth of cigarettes, side meat, cloth, and a quantity of canned goods, all valued at about $150 or $200.

Discovering the robbery early Sunday morning, Mr. Roebuck noticed the unusually large tire tracks and started an investigation. Following the tracks Mr. Roebuck went to the home of Joe Matthews, a relative of the Matthews boys, but he did not stop. Returning to Parmele, a distance of about three miles, Mr. Roebuck asked Will Carson to visit the Matthews home and inquire about the car and its occupants. Mr. Matthews described the car and told who occupied it the night before. Sheriff Roebuck was called in the meantime, and the trail carried them to Tarboro. About the time they reached the Edgecombe town, Mr. Davis reported to Chief of Police Lewis that some one had stolen his car the night before and had returned it. He informed the officers that some one had apparently hauled meat in the rumble seat, for there was a quantity of loose salt left. With Mr. Davis, Sheriff Roebuck drove the big car back to this county to have it identified by Matthews and a colored man who saw the machine the night before.

Returning to Tarboro, Sheriff Roebuck found the two Matthews boys and Currie in jail, but they refused to admit the robbery or tell where the stolen goods were. Unable to make them talk, Sheriff Roebuck returned to this county again and with Mr. Matthews and the colored man went back to Tarboro. Currie began to weaken when he was faced by Matthews and the colored man and finally told a complete story of the robbery and where the goods were hidden. During the sheriff's second return trip to this county, Chief Lewis had searched one of the Matthews boys' home and found some cloth that was later identified by Mr. Roebuck as his own. With Currie leading the way, the officers went to a woods near the Tar River three miles from town and found all the stolen goods. Mr. Roebuck recovering every article with the possible exception of a few packages of cigarettes. The meat and cheese and a few other articles were in a peanut sack swinging from a tree top.

At a preliminary held before Justice J. L. Hassell here yesterday, the three men pleaded guilty, pleading for low bonds on the grounds that they admitted the robbery. Each was required to give bond in the sum of $300, in default of which they are now in jail awaiting trial before Judge Frizzelle in June court.

The Matthews boys were born and reared in this county, but lately they have been in Tarboro, where they worked in one of the mills.

PEANUT PRICES CONTINUE LOW

Farmers Who Held Crop Off Market Receive Only Disappointment

Martin County farmers and others who have held the 1931 crop of peanuts off the market hoping for better prices this spring have received only disappointment for their trouble and expense so far. The price decline which set in soon after the crop was housed continues to prevail, and prices today are little better than one cent a pound, 1 1/4 cents being the top price for the average crop.

Tax-listing dealt many farmers another blow, adding just one more expense to the crop that will fall far short of returning actual costs to those producing them.

There are not many of the goobers left in this county, but it is understood that large stocks are held by producers and agents in surrounding counties.

The growers are at a loss as to what to plant this season, latest reports indicating that they have a bellyfull of peanuts and that no large crop will be planted this year. Of course, the farmer will plant enough to make his hay, but the prevailing low prices have forced a decrease in the peanut acreage as in the case of tobacco.

Few Applications for Free Seed Are Received So Far

With only nine persons applying for aid, the seed fund established here several days ago is holding up well, indicating that the unfortunates are too trifling to help themselves or that they started their gardens before the seed fund came into being.

A $9.27 donation created by a collection Sunday before last during the commencement sermon swelled the fund to $20.78. Up until yesterday $4.25 worth of seed had been bought for the needy, and a quantity of field peas and

MAKES FORMAL ANNOUNCEMENT

Rev. A. Corey, Senatorial Aspirant Outlines His Platform

Formally announcing himself as a candidate for the nomination for State Senator, Rev. A. Corey, of Jamesville, said yesterday:

"For the past ten years I have held the office of Engraving Clerk of the North Carolina Senate, through which office a large majority of the bills introduced in the legislature were copied, and by virtue of that work, I have acquired a knowledge of legislative procedure and an insight of State problems which should be of inestimable value to any man representing his District in the State Senate.

"Undoubtedly, taxation will be the greatest problem to confront the 1933 session of the General Assembly. I subscribed to the theory that taxes should be levied in accordance with one's ability to pay and that no additional taxes should be levied upon those who are already struggling under a heavy tax burden.

"I believe the State Government, like every individual, should exercise rigid economy and that all useless boards, bureaus, departments and commissions should be abolished and that public expenditures should be curtailed where it is possible to do so without impairing the efficiency of the Government.

"I believe education is of paramount importance and it should be encouraged and fostered by the State, and while some economy may be effected in our school system, I do not believe in curtailing school expenditures to the point where the schools cannot efficiently function.

"I recognize the fact that it is an economical impossibility to reduce taxes by levying more taxes, therefore, I shall stand for economies in Government and the levying of additional taxes only upon such sources as are now escaping taxation or bearing less of the tax burden than they should."

Clarence Mizelle Died At Vandemere Last Thursday

Clarence A. Mizelle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Mizelle, formerly of Martin County but for the past 15 years residents of Vandemere, died there last Thursday after suffering with osteo-sarcoma for seven months. The disease first developed in the boy's leg, amputation of that limb failing to check it, and later his chest was affected.

He was born in Vandemere about 15 years ago, and has many relatives in this county.

Interment was made in the family burial ground on the H. G. Modlin farm, near Jamesville, last Friday afternoon, Rev. W. B. Harrington, assisted by Rev. A. Corey, conducting the last rites.

W. A. LILLEYCROP PREACHES HERE; FIRST OF SERIES

Services Will Be Held Each Evening Throughout This Week

"If we had served God half as well as we have served our king, we would not be so powerless and so anxious today," Rev. W. A. Lilleycrop told a large congregation here last evening in the first of a series of sermons he is delivering in the Church of the Advent this week.

Centering his talk around the 17th verse of Epistle of James, first chapter, "Every good and perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning," the minister said that God will take care of us today even as he did Jerusalem and Livingston. But we must surrender ourselves completely to Christ if we would be cared for and enjoy the fullness of His blessings," he continued.

"There is radiance in the Bible," the minister said, asking why we did not believe in the teachings of Christ that the same radiance might shine in our own lives? "We are not in touch with God. His truth calls us but we are glued to the ground; we are asleep."

In strict sincerity, Mr. Lilleycrop scored hatred, selfishness, our self-satisfaction when supporting the church, and other faults that make us forget God. We are so busy we forget God, but we don't want him to forget us, he said.

The speaker earnestly urged his hearers to pray for guidance, read God's word and follow it, adding we must do that if we are to have power and happiness. "If we will only do that, we will discover a soul and a life we did not know we possessed," he concluded.

Each evening throughout the week, the Greenview minister will preach in the Church of the Advent here, and a cordial invitation is extended the public to attend.

BARNHILL DEATH STILL A MYSTERY

Coroner's Probe Brought to A Sudden Close In Pitt County

The mystery surrounding the killing of Jesse Barnhill in the Flat Swamp section of the 16th of last month remains unsolved, a coroner's jury concluding its investigations late last week. Coroner A. A. Elwanger, of Pitt County, said the jury had been unable to obtain sufficient information to continue the inquest longer and had declared the young white man came to his death by a pistol in the hands of an unknown party or parties, and closed the case.

The young man, son of Tom Barnhill of Pitt County, but connected in a business way in this county, was found dead beside the highway in the Flat Swamp section just across the Martin line in Pitt County about 11 o'clock, Saturday night, April 16 by Mr. Leonard Taylor. Five bullet wounds were found in the body, three in the head and two in the chest. He was last seen by his father at his home about 8 o'clock, the young man returning home with his father from Bethel about that time. He told Mr. Barnhill that he was going for his wife who was waiting for him at the home of a neighbor. He failed to return and Mr. Barnhill insisted that a search be made.

Young Barnhill is said to have carried around $17,000 insurance on his life, and that a part of that amount was written under the double indemnity clause. However, the many rumors circulated as a result of the killing, did not mention the insurance, but surmised that he was engaged in some illicit business.

The inquest which followed later was left open pending investigation, but the Pitt coroner said the mystery was so baffling that he found it advisable to close the probe pending further developments.

SLUMP AFFECTS SLOT MACHINES

Ben Whitfield Pays County Taxes with 1,200 Pennies Here This Week

With three candy-chewing gum machines serving as a barometer, business in Gold Point, this county, was off 64 per cent during the past 12 months. Last year Mr. Ben Whitfield, merchant of that town, collected 3,300 of the coppers in his machines during the 12-months period ending one year ago. At the end of the next 12-months period he collected 1,200 pennies in the machines.

As he collects the pennies he places them in a box and when the time arrives he delivers them to the sheriff and applies them on his taxes. Mr. Whitfield made a turn-over yesterday. Therein lies a moral: A few pennies saved every now and then will greatly aid one in paying his taxes. Of course, one does not have to take the moral literally, but he can set aside the pennies and still keep them in circulation.

Prof. Memory Is Speaker Friday At Finals Here

Twenty-One Diplomas and Certificates Awarded To Graduates

If you would be successful in life, establish a relationship with God, consider carefully who you marry and choose a profession, Professor J. L. Memory, jr., of Wake Forest, told the youth of the community assembled with their parents and a goodly number of school patrons in his address here last Friday that marked the close of the local schools for another term.

Opened with a prayer by Rev. Chas. H. Dickey, the program had its high spots in addition to the main address by Mr. Memory. Jim Rhodes, jr. made the salutatory remarks and Virginia Gurkin, class president, addressed a farewell to the school. Ben Manning, seven years in school without being either absent or tardy and his name on the honor roll every month, was signalled out for the unusual record, and Clarence Grady Godard, Williams Township youth, was recognized for his record in high school, he having successfully completed every course offered. The crowd was one of the largest to attend a commencement exercise here in years.

But the program could have started at 9 o'clock and then some spectators would have entered late.

Introduced by Rev. Mr. Dickey, Professor Memory offered three pointers to success, quoting the poets now and then to develop the meaning. First of all, one should establish a relationship with God, the speaker referring to the Bible quotation, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of Heaven." A second factor, a big one to be considered is whom you marry, Mr. Memory stating as his belief that it isn't advisable to marry too early in life, that the selection of a mate is important. As a third requisite to success, the choice of a profession was mentioned by the speaker. In doing this, the beginner should list all the professions and ask himself three questions: Do you like the one you wish to choose? Can you obtain the necessary education to assure success? Will the chosen profession enable you to render a service in the world? The service feature in choosing a profession was advanced as one of the most important things to consider, and once you have chosen a task, go to work, the speaker said, adding that it is better to choose and fail than it is not to choose at all.

Following the professor's address, Principal Wm. R. Watson delivered certificates to 45 seventh graders who are planning to enter high school next fall. Twenty-one diplomas and certificates were awarded.

FIRE DESTROYS DWELLING HERE

Small Tenant House, Near River, Burns In Very Few Minutes

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the small tenant house owned by Mrs. J. H. Ward and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Ben Andrews and family near the river here last Saturday afternoon. When discovered, the fire had gained much headway, destroying the house in a very few minutes. The fire burned so rapidly that several men standing at the Harris filling station just across the road could remove only a few articles before they were forced to retreat.

Several members of the family were in the home at the time, Mrs. Andrews discovering the fire when she started into the kitchen. Upon opening the door, the flames met her. The fire company was called, and so nearly was the house destroyed, it was thought useless to fight the blaze when the apparatus reached there. Connection with the water lines was later made when fire threatened the furniture removed from the house.

No insurance was carried on the contents, an almost complete loss resulting. The house was insured for $300, the amount about covering the loss.

Tobacco Acreage Cut 50 Per Cent in Columbus

The tobacco crop of Columbus County will not exceed 50 per cent of the 1931 acreage as a result of disease and insect attacks in the blighted. The Bordeaux mixture seems to control the blue mold disease but stunts the plants, say Columbus farmers.

BANK HOLIDAY

Today, Confederate Memorial or Decoration Day, is being observed as a holiday by the Branch Banking and Trust Company. While the day is all but ignored in this immediate section, it is widely observed in other parts of this state and in Kentucky.

The bank will reopen for business as usual tomorrow.

SENATOR MORRISON TELLS HIS STAND ON IMPORTANT ISSUES OF DAY

Able Proves He Is Not An Ad Valorem Tax Advocate

Cameron Morrison, United States Senator and for years an ardent supporter of the Democratic Party and its principles, ably defended himself in a stirring political address before a large audience in the courthouse here yesterday afternoon against charges made against him by opponents seeking a seat in the Senate. At the outset he reviewed his work as one of the first men in North Carolina advocating the removal of an ad valorem tax for the support of the state, and branded the accusations directed against him by his opponents in the Senate race as unfounded and unkind.

"Back yonder when I was running for Governor of the great State of North Carolina, I was the first to lift a voice against ad valorem taxes for State use, and in my inaugural address I advocated an amendment to the constitution making it right to tax unearned incomes," the Senator reminded his hearers. "At that time," he said, "I pointed out to the General Assembly that a new system of taxation must be adopted, that ad valorem taxes be left for the counties and other local governments. And yet a few have run to Raleigh and studied the question a little, and now they are trying to misrepresent me before the farmers and other people of Eastern North Carolina after I had advocated and worked during the past years for removing all ad valorem taxes as one of the principles of the Democratic Party."

The Senator slung no mud, and in further defending himself he explained a telegram forwarded to Governor Gardner by him after he (Morrison) had been "chucked" into the Senate. "In that telegram I said get all the tax off property that can be gotten off, but don't levy upon food and clothing," the speaker said, in declaring that his platform has been and will always be for the people. He stated his belief that the 15-cent ad valorem tax now levied by the State will be done away with in the next general assembly.

After answering those two charges, the Senator displayed his old-time oratory, declaring that the troubles facing us today are not the result of our affairs of state, but are the result of the Republican Party in the United States and its selfish activities. "After Woodrow Wilson, as head of the Democratic Party, had built up a government for the people, the Republicans came along and knocked down the rights of the masses, set up high tariff walls and established banking systems and currency schemes of their own, and as a result the whole world resented it, and today foreign trade has fallen in volume until there are fewer farm products being shipped from this country at the present than at any time during the past 40 years," Senator Morrison declared.

YOUNG GIRL DIES SUNDAY NIGHT; FUNERAL TODAY

Miss Mary Clyde Williams Succumbs Following An Appendicitis Operation

Miss Mary Clyde Williams, popular young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Williams, of this place, died in a Washington hospital early last Sunday night following an operation for appendicitis, which, with congested liver and other complications, resulted in her death. She had been in the hospital since last Tuesday, having been carried there following an acute attack of appendicitis. Miss Williams was thought to be in perfect health a few days before her death, having been ill only once and that was several years ago when she suffered a severe attack of pneumonia.

Miss Williams, 17 years old, was graduated from the local high school with the class of 1931, and since that time she had been studying a correspondence course.

She is survived by her mother and father and four sisters, Annie Mae, Carrie and Virginia Williams, all of Williamston, and Mrs. Lillian Stallings, of Conetoe, and two brothers, William Howell and James Williams, of this place.

Funeral services are being conducted from the Main Street home this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock by Elder B. S. Cowin and Rev. Z. T. Piephoff, of the local Presbyterian church, which she attended regularly during the past several months. Interment will be in the Skewarkey Cemetery, near here.

NO PROSPECT OF TAX SALE DELAY

Town Tax Collector Here Preparing List for June Advertising

With little or no prospect for delaying the 1931 town tax sales longer than the one month stay already granted, Tax Collector W. B. Daniel is now making arrangements to have the list of delinquents advertised the first of next month, it was learned yesterday. Upon learning that other municipalities are going ahead with their tax sales, it is understood that the local authorities are of the belief that it is advisable to proceed with the sales as soon as the extension of time is spent.

It is also understood that the town can meet its bond maturities and interest if the sales are not postponed longer. As all indications point to advertising next month, property owners are being urged to bear the proposed step in mind and make settlement of their taxes at once and thereby prevent additional cost and unnecessary embarrassment.

To Hold Colored School Finals Here Tonight

The local colored schools will close the 1931-32 term this evening when William Stuart Nelson, president of Shaw University, Raleigh, delivers the commencement address. Certificates and diplomas will be awarded 20 seventh grade pupils and 12 high school students, Superintendent Manning delivering the diplomas and Mr. C. A. Harrison the certificates, it was announced by the principal, Edgar J. Hayes.

Continuing the speaker said that the blessings of the Wilson administration were felt even after the party had gone down in defeat. "But then Grundy, of Pennsylvania, went to Washington and called for a still higher tariff wall that has wrecked everything and everybody, even those who wanted it passed," he said. "Yes; they say the panic is world wide, and so it is, but the Republicans caused it, caused it by paralyzing commerce and administering currency policies that would not work. You sell your cotton at 7 cents in our money, and those in the east pay 28 cents a pound for it in their money. The Republicans will do nothing about it, and it looks as if they would see that they are wrecking themselves."

The Senator pointed to his attentive audience that a bill had been passed authorizing negotiations be opened with the world in an effort to cut down the tariff and restore prosperity. "President Hoover has not yet vetoed it, but he is going to, for the hands holding the lash are going to make him veto it."

Mr. Morrison predicted that a bill would be passed in Congress that would either depreciate the dollar through the great Federal Reserve system or enhance the value of products. "But we have to bear it a little longer or until the Republicans are removed from Washington," he declared.

So thoroughly disgusted with the Republican regime in the nation's capital is he that the Senator said, "I don't know who will be the Democratic nominee for the Presidency, but I will
