To Be Commended

Without definitely charging President Hoover with making more mistakes than any other man has made in the space of 2 1/2 years, we do feel that he should be commended for advocating a cut of one-third in our war expenditures. The reduction in war preparation costs is the best way in the world to balance a budget. A reduction in armaments would make unnecessary a tax on bank checks an increase in postage or an ever-growing bond load.

It will be a glorious day when the peoples of the world acquire enough knowledge and possess enough Christianity to be willing to spend more for peace than they spend for war.

Remember, the United States pays three dollars of every four it receives for war obligations and war preparation.

Fight Evil Rather Than Yield To It

A good many people become discouraged because people are bad and disobedient. They want to destroy all the laws that the devil refuses to obey. It has always been different with the real servants of God. The priests, the prophets, the apostles always refused to bow to the devil. If people would do the same thing now, our religion would count more before men—if we would fight evil rather than yield to it.

A Mistaken Policy

It is feared that there will be a change effected in text books for schools next term, and it is to be said right now that the people are in no shape to buy a new series of school books. It would be a decided mistake to force the people to discard their old books and buy new ones just now.

Instead of studying the type of books to be used, the authorities would do well just now to devise some plan whereby books might be furnished poor children at nominal rental fees.

There is no one thing that cripples our school system more than when so many children are unable to buy books. Some are kept out of school, and others are held back because they have no books for convenient study. When the State sees it that every child is supplied with books, we will have fewer grade repeaters who cost the State far more than providing books would cost.

Of Great Importance

Bertie News-Leader

If balancing the Federal budget—the fact of which brought into being the enormous tax bill that went into effect this week—was for Congress a matter first in urgency to the life of the nation, the people are now thinking that a matter of equal importance and lacking little of the former's urgency is a reduction of governmental expenditures that will as speedily as possible make such excessive tax levies unnecessary in the future. Congress may have performed a stupendous task and accomplished a highly commendable piece of labor in balancing the budget, but so long as our representatives dally and debate over an economy program without doing anything to reduce expenses, while the country pays heavier taxes out of incomes diminished to the vanishing point, these representatives need not look to the people for any praise or compliment. All of said representatives may be good at reading the wishes of their constituency and keep their ears glued to the ground to catch the swells of rising feeling, but unless they do something about cutting expenses, waste and extravagance, including a few useless employees and a large number of excessive salaries, they are misreading the people's wishes and their ears are not properly attuned. After this revenue bill that digs into everybody's budget, the people want economy much worse than they wanted budget balancing.

MONTH'S REPORT IS MADE BY MISS LORA E. SLEEPER

Travels 1,011 Miles in County and Holds Total of 21 Meetings

(By Miss Lora E. Sleeper, County Home Demonstration Agent)

The home agent traveled 1,011 miles in the county during the month and held 11 meetings with adults and 10 with the girls.

A Council meeting was held by the women in Jamesville during the month. There were 49 women in attendance at this meeting representing 8 of the 11 clubs in the county. The Jamesville woman invited the council to a fish dinner, which was much enjoyed. At this meeting, members of the council voted to have each member pay if possible 5 cents a year for a welfare fund, so as to have something to work with before winter, the importance of canning in all communities was emphasized. Excellent reports were turned in of work done during the winter months in the canning of meat.

The Girls Council held its second meeting of the year with 18 in attendance. Nine of the girls were in the county health contest and were examined free of charge by Dr. J. H. Saunders and Dr. P. B. Cone. Three girls scored 97 and above in the contest, Miss Naomi Harrell receiving a score of 98. The girls in the council after their business meeting were taught to crochet by Mrs. Hodges.

The district meeting, comprising 5 counties, was held during the month. There were 347 reported in attendance. A very fine program was planned for the day. Judge Winston, of Windsor, was the speaker. Miss Mildred Ives, of Greenville, was present and told the women what it had meant to her to receive the Jane McKimmon Loan Fund money to enable her to go to College. Short playlets put on by each county reporting the work were a most interesting feature of the program.

Total sales for the curb market during the month were $103.89, or an average per seller for each week of $2.27.

WILL PUBLISH ALL WRITINGS OF WASHINGTON

At Least 25 Volumes Will Be Required; Only Four Are Now Ready

The United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission announces that four volumes of the set of approximately 25 volumes of the Definitive Edition of the Writings of George Washington, are now ready for distribution. This publication of a complete collection of Washington's personal, military, and state papers has been one of the major activities which Congress assigned the Federal Bicentennial Commission, as part of the nation's honors to Washington during this two hundredth year since his birth.

Nothing like this comprehensive edition of the Washington writings has been attempted heretofore, partly because private publishing houses recoiled at the expense. Fifty years after Washington's death, Jared Sparks, then president of Harvard, issued an edition of 12 volumes, in which he omitted numerous passages and "improved" Washington's diction in others. Sixty years after the Sparks edition, Worthington C. Ford brought out another 14 volumes, taken directly from the Washington manuscripts. But as Washington left a larger number of papers than any other president, these editions, large as they are, contain less than 50 per cent of the whole, represented in 400 folders in the Library of Congress.

As pointed out by Dr. John C. Fitzpatrick, editor of this great compilation and noted authority on Washington's writings, "the lack of a complete publication of Washington's letters has made possible the slanderous belittlement of his character by present-day writers. . . . In one way we are indebted to Sparks and Ford for the hundreds of biographies of Washington now available. . . . The pity of it is, however, that most of these biographies, so unsatisfactory because of their lack of complete information, have been read with avidity by the American public and so have been responsible for the vast amount of existent misconception regarding Washington. . . . It is not surprising, therefore, that one of our present day eminent historians, John Bach McMaster, should have stated that George Washington is an unknown man."

The present Bicentennial edition of the Washington Writings, according to Dr. Fitzpatrick, is not only an honor to the first American, but will enable America to understand her own history more clearly, for the formative period of the United States is so enmeshed with the life of Washington that it is impossible to obtain a clear picture of the founding of the nation without full knowledge of George Washington, the man himself, his personal as well as his public life.

The Bicentennial edition will now make this available. It will contain all the papers included in the Sparks and Ford editions, all the papers in the Library of Congress, besides many letters and groups of letters in the possession of various libraries, historical societies, state archives, and private owners. In fact, Washington papers have been found in every state of the Union and in nearly every country of the world.

The present Bicentennial edition was begun in 1930. The volumes, as ready, will be published by the Government Printing Office on 100 per cent rag paper, durably bound, 500 pages to the volume, and each containing about 300 letters. Each volume will be separately indexed and foot-noted with names and records of all individuals referred to. In addition to the four volumes now ready, it is hoped to have five or six others completed by the close of the Bicentennial year.

The editing of this collection has been done by Dr. John Clement Fitzpatrick, of the Manuscript Division, Library of Congress, editor of the George Washington Diaries. Dr. Fitzpatrick's entire life has been devoted to pure scholarship, and he stands foremost among authorities in presenting the facts of Washington's life as drawn from his own hand.

you do preserves) and cook in the same water to save all the food value. Try some, it is as good or better than canned corn.

Beans—String and cook three-fourths done; place on board or roof as you would corn. Follow same directions as for drying corn for the remainder of the process.

Green butter beans can be dried also. Try them in the tobacco barns.

Can tomato juice by using the small tomatoes.

On the Right Track

The action taken by the Virginia Electric and Power Company in reducing salaries and wages of their officials and reducing their charges for electricity is a forward step in restoring business to an equitable base. The company also did the right thing when it agreed to absorb the federal tax recently placed on electricity rather than charge it to its customers.

While no authentic statement has been issued, it is understood that a reduction of about 17 1/2 percent will be made effective in rates with the July accounts. A 17 1/2 percent reduction in rates will mean that a customer now using $10 worth of current monthly will get it for $8.25 under the lower rate, a saving of $1.75 a month.

More of the spirit of live and let live is the thing most needed in business today, and it applies to both little and big business.

False Issues

Dominating wealth has put out so much propaganda for liquor that the people have lost sight of the great issues that affect the foundation of our civilization and are quarreling about the lowest thing that affects the lives of men and nations.

What the people of this country need is a good drink of wisdom and something to eat and not a drink of alcohol nor a swill of beer.

Yet we hear very little about sure and permanent relief, because the voice of alcohol is drowning the cries of the hungry.

What we need is unselfish statesmanship that will not yield to selfish wealth, which is trying to blind the eyes of the people by whisky propaganda.

An Unjust Proposition

We have lots of people without jobs, suffering for food and clothing. On the other hand, there are a large number of people with two jobs.

The chairman of the Federal Radio Commission, for instance, gets $6,000 a year as a retired Army officer, and $10,000 a year as a member of the radio commission. He was retired from the Army because he was considered not able to do the work required, yet he was given another job at a much higher wage—a thing altogether unjust to a tax-ridden people.

Yet General Charles McKinley Saltzman is getting $16,000 of the people's money without giving the proper service in return.

BUY TIRES NOW; PRICES TO GO UP

Stocks Bought Before June 21 Are Not Subject to Federal Tax

Car owners of this city were strongly urged today by Mr. N. C. Green of the Williamston Motor Co., local Firestone dealers, to buy tires now in preparation for their Fourth of July automobile trips.

"There is no reason this year," he says, "why any one should risk spoiling his holiday enjoyment by driving on worn and unsafe tires. Motorists now have a wonderful opportunity to equip their automobiles with new tires at the lowest prices in history. With an excise tax on tires and tubes effective on June 21, it is unlikely that the chance to buy at the prevailing low range of prices will continue much longer."

"With the Fourth of July holiday close at hand and with an eventual increase in price inevitable, no one should miss this unusual opportunity. The pleasure you derive from a motoring trip over the Fourth depends on your tires. It is the unwise economy to mar your whole day through tire failure. The money saved in trying to squeeze the last few miles out of a tire is insignificant compared with the expense and worry of an accident, with possible injury to the motorist and his family, as a result of smooth or worn tires failing to stop the car in an emergency."

"In addition to the present low cost of tires, values have been greatly increased. In Firestone tires, the gum-dipped cord plies under the tread and the extra tough, slow wearing non-skid tread give the motorist the lowest cost per tire-mile in history. These are construction features found in no other make of tire."

When Anthony Barlo fell from a ladder at his home in East Greenbush, N. Y., he broke a leg—not his own, but that of his wife, who was holding the ladder so he wouldn't fall.

TELLS HOW TO DRY CORN AND STRING BEANS

Home Agent Says Dried Product Equally Good As When Canned

Miss Lora E. Sleeper, home agent offers the following instructions that will prove of value in drying corn and green string beans:

Corn—Husk and silk corn, boil for twenty minutes on the cob. Remove from boiling water and as soon as it is cool enough to handle, cut off the grain, making two layers of it. Spread on a cloth and place on a metal roof for drying. If your roof is shingled that will be all right, too, but metal will dry the corn in less time. Cover with mosquito netting or tobacco cloth to keep out insects. When the corn rattles it is dry and ready to store in a flour bag or the like for winter use.

If you desire it to be absolutely safe from insect eggs (that might have been laid while drying), place in a bread pan and place in slow oven (stirring often to prevent burning) for a few minutes before storing. Soak (as
