

YEAST IN RATION MAKES HENS LAY

Recent Experiment Shows Costs No Great While Yield Increased

An experiment in feeding fermented laying mash to hens conducted at the Coastal Plain Experiment Station near Willard during the past year, has indicated that the addition of yeast to the regular ration will give an increased number of eggs without adding to the cost of feeding.

The test was conducted under the direction of Roy S. Dearstyne, head of the poultry department at State College. He selected 114 pullets and 36 mature hens and divided the chickens into two even lots. Breeding and laying ability were considered in making the division as near equal as possible. The first lot was fed the regular laying mash and scratch grain, while the second lot was given this regular ration in addition to all the fermented laying mash the hens would consume in 30 minutes. Mr. Dearstyne prepared the fermented mash by taking two cakes of yeast to ten quarts of the mash and adding enough warm water to make the mixture fairly moist. This was allowed to set for 20 hours.

The hens were tested from September 17 to February 3 and then started again on May 28 and continued until September 15. A careful record was kept of all feed consumed and all eggs laid. The birds fed the fermented mash were of improved physical appearance and seemed to have a higher vitality when the test was concluded.

Those hens fed the fermented mash consumed 6,319 pounds of mash and 5,993 pounds of grain, as compared with 5,476 pounds of mash and 5,677 pounds of grain consumed by those hens getting the regular ration. The birds fed the fermented mash laid 18,396 eggs, and those fed the regular ration laid 15,885 eggs. The feed cost for the birds in the pen fed fermented mash was 12 cents a dozen eggs, while the feed cost of those fed the regular ration was 11.9 cents a dozen.

DON'T QUIT

When things go wrong, as they sometimes will;
When he road you're trudging seems all up hill;
When the funds are low and the debts are high
And you want to smile, but you have to sigh;
When care is pressing you down a bit,
Rest, if you must, but don't you quit.

Life is queer with its twists and turns,
As every one of us sometimes learns,
And many a failure turns about
When he might have won had he stuck it out;
Don't give up though the pace seems slow---
You may succeed with another blow.

Success is failure turned inside out---
The silver tint of the clouds of doubt;
And you never can tell how close you are---
It may be near when it seems so far;
So stick to the fight when you're hardest hit---
It's when things seem worst that you must not quit.

AUTHOR UNKNOWN.

The above is so expressive and so appropriate to present-day times that we thought it would be of sufficient interest to you to read it.

We also say "Don't Quit" buying TEXACO FIRE CHIEF GASOLINE AND TEXACO CRACK-PROOF MOTOR OIL. They will take care of your car through the cold winter months.

We know that you are offered all sorts of gasoline and motor oils, some of them probably at lower prices, but is that the sort of products you are willing to stake the life of an expensive motor against?

Texaco's reputation for being the highest type of gasoline and motor oil must be some guarantee to you that your motor is protected--- especially through the winter, when a car is given its hardest tests.

Very truly yours,

HARRISON OIL COMPANY.

Geo. and Gus Harrison.
