Mrs. Matthews Hostess
 On Wednesday afternoon, March 15th, Mrs. Don G. Matthews entertained her bridge club at a lovely indoor garden party.

The spacious hall and living room were filled with the atmosphere of spring. Buttercups, jonquils, daffodils, and narcissus nodded as in a summer breeze. Dutch hyacinths and Chinese sacred lilies shed their fragrance over all, while the long sprays of red bud and upright spikes of pussywillow gave a pleasant proclamation that spring is peeping 'round the corner.

The center of the garden, two tables were beautifully laid for bridge. Covers, tallies, score pads, and pencils were in an unusual mixture of gay spring colors. A thin disk of pale green glass invited the guests to enjoy dark fudge throughout the game. When the scores were added, Mrs. T. B. Slade was rewarded for excellent playing with a lovely garden apron.

Mrs. Fred Poole, guest of the club, was presented a jig-saw puzzle.

Mrs. Matthews served salad a la printemps in lettuce cups with saltines, pimento sandwiches and cafe noir.

FINDS MARKET GARDEN PAYS GOOD INCOME

Products from A Two-acre Garden Sell for $200. Last Season

Some North Carolina gardeners are finding that it pays to plant a good acreage to vegetables for sale in nearby markets.

J. B. Taylor, of Newland, Avery County, cashed in on this idea last year when he sold the produce from a two-acre garden to tourists and hotel keepers in the amount of $400.

In addition he canned some 400 quarts of surplus vegetables for winter use and kept his own family supplied with fresh vegetables during the growing season. He says he gave away about $15 worth of vegetables to neighbors and others.

"We know that the home garden from one-half to one acre in size will supply a farm family with all the vegetables needed during the year if the plot is given the proper attention," says H. R. Niswonger, extension horticulturist at State college.

"There are special conditions, however, where one might enlarge his garden area and become a market gardener. Mr. Taylor did this last year and he knows exactly the results of his operations because he kept an itemized account of all expenses and sales. He sold $400 worth of vegetables to nearby tourist hotels and boarding houses, gave away $15 worth and canned 400 quarts for winter use. His cost for seed and fertilizer amount to $20.80 which leaves rather a good labor income."

Mr. Taylor sold these things from his garden: English peas, head lettuce, onions, beets, carrots, spinach, turnips, cauliflower, cabbage, lima beans, sweet corn, snap beans and squash. In addition, he had a small acreage of Irish potatoes, red raspberries and ever-bearing strawberries from which he sold the surplus. No itemized account was kept of these sales, Niswonger says.

SELECT PROPER FERTILIZER FOR TOBACCO CROP
 Growth and Quality of the Crop Influenced by Kind Commercial Fertilizer

The growth and quality of tobacco is greatly influenced by the kind of commercial fertilizer used, and now that growers are planning to secure their mixtures for the coming season, the question is how to get the right kind at a given price.

"For five years, we have been at-

"For five years, we have been conducting about 15 demonstrations a year with leading growers in attempting to find the best fertilizer mixtures for the different sections," says E. Y. Floyd, tobacco specialist at State College. "These demonstrations have shown that an 8-3-5 is the best mixture on soils where tobacco grows to plenty of size and an 8-4-6 mixture is suitable where the crop does not normally grow to a desirable size."

But there is more to consider than just the analysis, Floyd says. The phosphate makes new growth and helps maturity; nitrogen gives growth and potash makes for quality. A small amount of chlorine is beneficial, but over 2 per cent is harmful. Magnesia also is beneficial and should be used in most tobacco fertilizers. Those farmers who have used dolomitic lime stone in the last few years probably do not need to worry about this element. The magnesia controls sand down.

In supplying nitrogen, Floyd recommends 50 per cent mineral and 50 per cent organic. Of the mineral, one-half should come from nitrate of soda and one-half from sulphate of ammonia. Of the organic, one-half should come from cottonseed meal and one-half from such carriers as blood, Peruvian guano, or high grade animal tankage. Fish meal should be used lightly, especially so on thin, sandy soils.

Apply the fertilizer about a week to ten days before transplanting the cautions.
