

GOOD WILL MEET BETTER YIELD BY AT PARMELE IS SUCCESS APRIL 2

Meeting at Training School Held To Promote Interracial Good Will

An interracial good-will meeting was held at the Parmele Training School Sunday afternoon, April 2, with Principal Claudius Chance, the promoter, presiding. The keen interest in this type of meeting was shown by the presence of a large number of prominent white and colored people. The following objectives were set up as a means to a definite end:

Better understanding; finer relationship; spirit of cooperation; all forces working to build a better community.

Those concerned were enthusiastic about its results. Mr. G. H. Cox, of Robersonville, spoke interestingly on building up a better community through proper understanding among all groups and working together in the spirit of cooperation. He referred to bank failures throughout the country, and the distressing consequences as fitting examples, due to the lack of the spirit of working for the betterment of all rather than the mere enrichment of the few. Mrs. Vernon Ward gave a splendid illustration of her interest in the uplift of all human beings. She spoke of having helped a little colored girl in her home and the very favorable reaction on the part of the girl, due to her interest. "We are here for service, hence we must blend our efforts to make our community a place of paradise," said Rev. E. A. Taylor, of Scotland Neck. Rev. J. M. Perry, of Robersonville, delivered a forceful address. He urged the best minds of the schools, churches and ministers of both races to exercise their influence in bringing about a better understanding among all people so as to make this a better place in which to live. Mrs. H. A. Gray spoke of her interest in the betterment of all people as her Christian duty. She also assured her hearers of her interest in the success of the Training School. Lieutenant Oxley, Director of Negro Relief, delivered a fine address. He stressed the importance of looking at the situation as it faces us, face each other, and discuss things that are facts in the spirit and with the determination to reach the proper solution. Others who spoke interestingly were Principal C. M. Epps, of Greenville; Professor R. I. Leake, of the Robersonville schools and Mr. and Mrs. Roberson, of Robersonville.

Special emphasis was placed on the splendid service that Mr. N. C. Newbold had rendered to all the people during his 20 years of service as director of Negro education.—Reported.

BETTER SEED POTATOES PAID WEST GROWERS

Mountain Farmers To Compete in Furnishing Seed For This Section

A ratio of 16 to 1 was secured by 100 growers of Irish potatoes in seven western North Carolina counties by using certified seed of a selected strain of the Green Mountain variety. "In other words," says H. R. Niswonger, extension horticulturist for western Carolina, "the men who used the good seed secured an average return of 16 bushels of good potatoes for every bushel planted. The yield graded out 82 percent No. 1 stock and

BETTER YIELD BY ROTATION CROPS

Where Definite Plan Used, Soil Is Being Improved Permanently

The plan of using a definite rotation of crops is building up North Carolina soils and is giving more economical acre yields, according to facts gathered by Enos C. Blair, extension agronomist at State College.

One result of the crop rotations is seen in higher acre yields through permanent soil improvement. Another is the increased amount of grain being planted and harvested. More wheat was sown to be used for flour during the past fall than at any time since 1919, Blair says. The same is true of certain cotton and tobacco counties. More acres of hay mixtures including small grain, were harvested in 1932 than ever before, and legumes are being used to take the place of heavy fertilizer applications with good results.

"A prominent farmer in Bladen County used $1,000 worth of fertilizer on his 150-acre farm in 1927," says Mr. Blair. "Since that time, he has followed a rotation in which a large acreage of legumes, chiefly soybeans in corn, was turned under every year. This aided him to make a better crop in 1932 than he did in 1927 and he spent only $200 for fertilizer. Another farmer in Moore County turned under 50 acres of lespedeza for his 1932 crop. He let this take the place of three cars of fertilizer that he had been using annually and made just as good crops as in previous years."

Blair has results from a number of demonstrations conducted last year showing increased yields of corn, oats, wheat and other crops following the turning under of lespedeza and says the growth of soybeans as a soil improver has become universal over the State. These two legumes are being used by most progressive farmers in the new crop rotations which they are adopting.

Lincoln County Growing Much Lespedeza in 1933

Lincoln County farmers have planted all their home-grown lespedeza seed and have imported an additional 5,000 pounds for seeding.

"In spite of this," says Miss Thomas, "there are still too many farms in our State which do not produce an adequate amount and variety of food for the family. This is indicated by the prevalence of such nutritional diseases as pellagra, constipation and anemia due to the lack of proper food and information about the relation of food to health. Our club women, however, are studying food selection, better preparation of the food available and more skillful meal planning."

The home demonstration club women have four ultimate goals in view, says Miss Thomas. These are: An adequate supply and variety of foods produced on every farm. Every member of the family practicing good food selection habits and free from ailments indicating faulty diet.

Every family having meals well-planned to meet body needs, foods well-cooked and attractively served. Every family making a food budget and keeping simple records of food costs.

STUDY THE FOOD SUPPLY FOR USE IN FARM HOMES

Low Prices For Products Developing a Balanced Supply of Food

Two years of low prices for farm produce has caused North Carolina farm women to study the question of an adequate and balanced food supply for their families as never before.

In 1932, Miss Mary Thomas, food specialist for the agricultural extension service at State College, says 22,089 women and 12,280 club girls were enrolled in food studies through their organized clubs. There were 16,438 women and 7,349 girls who completed the series of studies as outlined. Especially did these women and girls emphasize a continuation of the live-at-home program and adopt plans leading to the production of adequate foodstuffs on their home farms.

"In spite of this," says Miss Thomas, "there are still too many farms in our State which do not produce an adequate amount and variety of food for the family. This is indicated by the prevalence of such nutritional diseases as pellagra, constipation and anemia due to the lack of proper food and information about the relation of food to health. FARM PROGRAM WEAKENED BY LACK PASTURES

Main Reason Why State Is Making Slow Progress With Livestock

The main reason why North Carolina does not make greater progress as a livestock producing State is that its landowners are not expert as cattle feeders and the principal weakness in this, is the lack of pastures, says John A. Arey, dairy extension specialist at State College.

"We are poor feeders," said Mr. Arey last week in addressing the conference of extension specialists. "That will explain why we have not made the progress we should be making. Of course, we were hit a hard lick last season in our dairy work because of the dry weather and the abundance of feed produced in other sections. The mid-west folks harvested an excellent crop of forage and other feed and are able to produce butterfat right now at a much lower price than we can. Yet we can grow as much hay per acre as any section of the United States and at as low a cost. We can also have excellent pastures if we will but give some thought and time to the subject. Successful dairying is dependent upon pastures."

Mr. Arey says a pasture revival is needed in this State. The usual conception of a pasture in North Carolina, he said, is a worn out piece of land, unsuited to crops, fenced with a strand or two of barbed wire. This is nothing but an exercise ground, he claims, and is often a dangerous one at that because it is usually crisscrossed with deep gullies.

Good land is needed for pasture and some of the tame grasses should be planted. If a pasture has trees on it, cut them down so the grasses may absorb the sunlight and grow.

Farmers are not in a condition to buy pure bred cows at this time, Mr. Arey said, but he advises the up-grading of the cattle on hand by the use of better sires.
