

USE IMPROVED METHODS FOR GROWING LEAF

Proper Fertilizing, Cultivation and Handling Cause Better Quality Leaf

Tar Heel tobacco growers are adopting a definite program of fertilizing, cultivating, and handling their crop with a resulting improvement in quality and yield.

"We are attempting to learn everything possible that will aid the tobacco grower in producing a quality leaf that is in demand by the manufacturer," says E. Y. Floyd, extension specialist in tobacco production and responsible in a large measure for the successful program now being followed.

Typical results from following the extension program in growing tobacco may be seen in the reports from farmers who have followed these methods. For instance, in Columbus County, where 20 million pounds of leaf are being produced annually, 75 per

Chicago Orchestra Asks Permit To Hold Dance

Permission to hold a dance here was asked by one Booking Agent Holt of the town commissioners here last night. He was granted a permit, but he must comply with the rules and regulations which were considered unfavorable by the applicant.

Holt is underwriting a colored female orchestra all the way from Chicago, and is said to be making money by charging white spectators a nominal entrance fee. Colored dancers are admitted and permitted to dance for 65 cents, he said.

It is not known definitely whether the dance will be held here. Should the promoters decide to sponsor the event, it will be held here the early part of next month, it was said.

cent of the growers are using certified seed of the Cash, White Stem, and Orinoco varieties. The straw covering for plant beds was a big success in Duplin County last year, and in spite of blue mold, a Rose Hill farmer grew enough plants on 100 square yards of bed to plant 12 acres.

The ridge method of cultivation was worth $50,000 to the growers of Jones County in 1932 and the better returns of leaf by using the fertilizer formula recommended by the extension specialist was valued at $25,000 by the growers.

Other growers have reported that they can improve their land and still use it for tobacco by balancing the fertilizer after plowing under legumes.

Pictured above is the Pacific Whaling Company's whale which will be exhibited here Wednesday, May 3. The whale weighs 68 tons and measures 55 feet in length. It is on a private railway car, and is beautifully displayed in a natural state. The whale will be here one day only.

COUNTY AGENT IS NEEDED NOW

Work of Agents Will Be Of Value During The Present Emergency

While county agents have proven their value in normal times, they have been of even greater service during emergency periods. Such a period exists at the present time, and the worth of the agents is being demonstrated each day, declares I. O. Schaub, head of the agricultural extension service at State College.

The farm and home agents have been unusually active in relief work during the past two years and the present set-up of emergency home and community gardens is based almost entirely on the aid that may be given by the agents, said the dean.

A similar condition exists in the distribution of government funds through the seed and fertilizer loans. It was thought that a separate agency might be used to handle the applications of farmers for government loans but the Washington administration found that the farm agents could give efficient service in this respect and is at present using the county system to further the handling of the loans. Dean Schaub has sent four extension workers to Washington to aid in passing on loans and in expediting the flow of funds back to the counties of this state.

Should the new farm relief bill, sponsored by the present administration, pass the Congress, the county agent system will be needed to an even greater extent in bringing the benefits of this legislation to the farmers of North Carolina. Dean Schaub says to set up an additional organization would add to the expense of administering the measure and that the Extension organization will be prepared to cooperate to the fullest in carrying out the provision of this legislation.

Durham, N. C., April 11.—Paul D. Roberson, of Robersonville, was elected vice president of the rising senior law class of Duke University today during the law school elections.

Mr. Roberson was graduated in the Duke undergraduate school in 1931. For the past two years, Mr. Roberson has taken considerable interest in the Duke Bar Association and other social and student activities, and his outstanding scholastic record has made him one of the most eligible men for this position.
