Home Garden Contest

A fall and winter garden contest, with cash prizes to the winners, will be conducted this season by the State College Extension Service to stimulate more interest in farm home gardens.

Any farm home garden in North Carolina will be eligible to compete for a prize. The enrollment of contestants, to be made by the garden leaders of local home demonstration clubs, should be completed by October 1, as no entries will be accepted after that time.

Women wishing to enter the contest must begin their planting in August, said Miss Ruth Current, district home demonstration agent at State College. The contest will start October 1 and continue until next March 31.

In each county the contest will be under the sponsorship of the county council-of-home-demonstration clubs and the garden leader of each local club.

The gardens will be graded on their efficiency, as indicated by monthly records, and on a short article written by the contestants regarding the gardens. Pictures may be included with the stories. The efficiency will count 75 per cent and the article 25 per cent in scoring points.

The highest score in the State will merit a $20 prize, with $12.50 and $7.50 for second and third prizes, respectively. In each county, the first prize will be $5 and the second prize $2.50.

Prizes of $20, $12.50, $7.50 and $5 will go to the county councils with the largest number of members completing the contest.
