WANT $70 A TON FOR CURRENT PEANUT CROP

Proposed Adjustment Plan Contemplates That Price for Peanuts This Year

The proposed peanut adjustment program for North Carolina contemplates measures for insuring a price of approximately $70 a ton to the growers. B. Troy Ferguson, district agent in charge of the program for State College, announced this week.

Plans for adjusting the crop to demand include a sign-up campaign in which contracts similar to cotton and tobacco reduction contracts will be

ESTABLISH POOL FOR HANDLING EXCESS COTTON

Growers with Excess May Procure Additional Tax Exemption Warrants

Cotton farmers who production is over their allotment will be able to purchase additional tax exemption certificates and those whose production is under their allotment will be able to sell surplus certificates through a national pool, under the provisions of a ruling issued by the Secretary of Agriculture, it is announced by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. The sale price has been set at four cents per pound. "This plan of handling the excess certificates," says Charles A. Sheffield, assistant extension director at State College in charge of the cotton adjustment program in North Carolina, "does not mean that the Government will purchase such certificates but does mean that those who have more certificates than they have cotton to gin and sell may turn the excess certificates over to the manager of the national surplus cotton tax-exemption certificate pool who will handle them for producers under a trust agreement."

The price of four cents per pound is approximately 70 percent of the tax of 5.67 cents per pound imposed by the Bankhead Act on the ginning of cotton. Under the pool provisions, farmers who do not produce as much cotton as their allotment calls for will get some cash from excess certificates and those farmers who produce more than their allotments will be able to gin and sell some of their excess. Ernest L. Deal, of Florence, Ala., has been designated manager of the pool.

The amount of peanuts they would be allowed to market this year and the acreage to be planted next year will be worked out by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. Ferguson said the contracts should be ready in time to cover this year's crop. Growers met in Washington the early part of this week to work out crop plans. Details of the program, as it affects North Carolina, will depend on what arrangements may be made with Geo. Ross for the purchase of 50,000 acres of peanuts by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration for feeding cattle.

Such a purchase would reduce the acreage for other commercial purposes about 20 percent, Ferguson estimated, and would aid in alleviating the oversupply which has forced prices down. In 1928 peanuts sold for almost $100 a ton. Recently the price has been about $60.

Before negotiation for selling the peanuts, vines and all, for cattle feeding can be completed, considerable technical work must be done to establish a fair price, he pointed out. One problem is determining what percentage of the hay consists of peanut and of vine. Another is that of ascertaining the worth of the whole crop as compared with the value of peanuts alone.

He cited another factor which must be considered in fixing a price fair to all growers. Peanuts harvested in dry, sandy soil are practically free of dirt. But when harvested from damp, loamy soil they are covered with dirt which, in some cases, will account for 40 to 50 percent of the weight of a stack of peanuts in the vine. All these things and many others must be considered, Ferguson stated.

Price Fixed for Excess Certificates
When the pool is closed, all funds on hand from the sale of the certificates, after deducting expenses, will be distributed among producers and each producer will receive his share in the proportion the poundage surrendered by him bears to the total poundage in the pool. In addition, each producer will be returned his pro rata share of the unsold surplus certificates, which may be used next year in the event the Bankhead Act is continued another season.

The plan also includes provision for local sales of tax-exemption certificates in a county at the same price by individual farmers provided the sales are made through the office of the assistant in cotton adjustment in the county in which the certificates sold were distributed. Farmers wishing to participate in the pool, either as sellers or buyers of certificates, should make arrangements through their county assistants in cotton adjustment.

Quality Is Factor In Culling Poultry Flock

In saving layers this coming season a great deal will depend upon the quality of the birds when going out of lay, but the late moulters in good weight and whose production has been up to standard will be profitable. These hens will have a decreased production of approximately 25 percent but, with egg prices going up, a good hen should pay a profit. If there is not sufficient housing space, hopper space and waterers none of the hens should be saved as they would cause over-crowding and lessen production of all birds.

Discusses Value of Winter Garden to Relief Families

W. B. Pace, Durham County agent, has been discussing the value of fall gardens with relief families. Most of them wish to raise as much of their own food as possible.

A. L. Wood, of Caswell County, used the extension fertilizer formula for his tobacco this year and says he will make $250 an acre on the crop.
