We Must Work Together

The days of individual independence are gone. There was a day when any American had a perfect right to sleep on either side of the log he chose, or to pitch his tent on either bank of the creek that best suited him. These things he can no longer do because someone else is there now, which forces us to cooperate with each other that each other may enjoy the protection of the same log and to drink from the same stream. Instead of the individual operating according to his own dictates in the future he will have to join the group. When we all use the same roads, the same schools and are under the same laws, we will find it more and more essential to cooperate for the public good rather than to let each individual follow the dictates of his own whims and follies that are too often guided by his ignorance.

We have too long fought our friends through individual cut-throat competition. This is especially true of the farmer, most merchants and many factories and banks and, in fact, practically every business and industry in the land, and by this type of competition nearly every business and industry has either gone bankrupt or suffered greatly. This cramped condition has enabled a few farseeing and mostly unscrupulous fellows to unite their forces of cooperation and plunder most of the valuable business of the country. They now dominate most of the banks, except the little money changing ones scattered about the country. They dominate nearly all the profitable mercantile, manufacturing and other profitable business in America. They have done this by cooperating among themselves, and at the same time fostering individualism among the masses. Now that the masses have paid the price of their folly they find the only road to their financial redemption is through cooperation.

The owners of the great wealth of the country who have gained their wealth by cooperative trust formations which had the power to take too much profit to themselves from the unorganized producers and workers with whom they traded.

The farmer has had to sell far below cost, the laborer has worked for a wage far too small to insure him a meagre living because he has had to deal individually with a man who was trading under a well organized system. Now the organized system which has made itself rich and powerful in politics and business is trying to falsely feed the man he outraged and took advantage of for so long the idea of individual independence, a thing he has robbed and stolen from him for generations.

If the farmer is wise, if the laborer is wise and if any other fellow whose business has suffered at the hands of organized wealth is wise they will stick to the NRA and vote for the cooperative measures advanced by the government.

The day for the individual to go out to fight the battles of life alone offers little hope for a reasonable existence. Cooperate and keep out of the ditch, or refuse to cooperate and fall into the ditch with no one able to pull you out.

Hoover's Explanation

Former President Herbert Hoover can't charge any of the faults of his government on the United States Senate, for the same force that ruled the Senate under President Coolidge mapped out and ruled Mr. Hoover during his administration. The powers that reigned set Mr. Hoover to singing prosperity was just around the corner, and it was for Mr. Hoover's friends who pillaged and slaughtered it. That was why the people kicked Hoover aside when it got a chance to keep his gang from choking prosperity that it might have a chance to come out and be with and bless the people.

Certainly Mr. Hoover is right in charging the United States Senate with the crime of turning down the Geneva Arms agreement. Nobody denies the corruption of the United States Senate during the administration of Mr. Harding, Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Hoover. The most cruel crucifixion of human rights and justice since the resurrection of Christ was committed by the Senate of the United States under the leadership of Henry Cabot Lodge in the defeat of the Covenant of the League of Nations. Mr. Lodge and the Senate were backed by the great wealth of our own country, the rich wanting war and hatred to prevail in order that they might make money regardless of who bled and died.

Where Mr. Hoover made his mistake was in lining up with such a gang. And now it is too late for him to redeem himself in the respect of the American people. If he did not actually help play the game, he held the clothes while the Morgans, Mellons, the Millises and their cohorts pillaged the people of the entire country.

No, Mr. Hoover, your books can't bring you back. You have passed redemption. You had your day. You listened to the gods of war and failed to promote peace.

Scaring Up a War

The munitions people are having a pretty hard time trying to make the people mad enough to fight. They quarrel a bit, and then figure a little, and then Germany, France, Italy, England and some two dozen other countries stop and read for themselves and find they are being taxed to death to pay for a foolish war not so long past. Going a bit farther they find that the methods of killing are going to be more brutal and horrible in the next war than they were in the past with nobody getting any profit except the fellows who want war and want it for no purpose except the profit they get out of it. Then they cool down and exclaim, oh! we have too much sense to go to war and get killed and crippled just to satisfy greed. Soon another war lie is passed around and they get hot again and war is talked some more.

Men and nations need to keep cool and settle their differences in peace.
