Limiting Farm Crops

Loud protests have been heard against the Agricultural Adjustment Administration program effecting a control of crop production. Many are working adversely to the will of the Creator in destroying food, some of the program's opponents have claimed. The farmer, declared foolish for limiting his crops, is not to be held responsible for the action; the trouble is traceable to other sources. A faulty distribution system and the economic conditions throughout the world made curtailment of crop necessary if the farmer is to continue to own and operate his farm.

The industrialists manufacturing articles that could be held intact for year after year were not criticized when they curtailed their production, and many of their products were just as necessary to human life as many of the basic farm crops are. It was the logical thing for them to close down their plants, for it was useless to manufacture goods they could not sell. On the other hand the farmer was apparently expected to continue raising bigger and better crops, sell them year after year at a greater and greater loss and never complain.

No, the plight of the hungry and the poorly clad masses is not traceable to the farmer and his curtailment program. Starvation wages and the professional speculator have widened the gap between the food raised by the farmer and the man who eats it.

The Townsend Bubble

After creating a fantastic hope in the hearts of millions of old people, the advocates of the Townsend old-age pension plan admitted their first failure recently. "We are not expecting now to get the bill passed at this session of Congress, but we will try again next season," writes W. B. Fisher, state manager of the plan who set the old people in this county a-talking several months ago.

Not satisfied with trying to wreck the country with a plan that not even those eligible to participate in its benefits believe feasible, the advocates go on to say that if something isn't done at the next session of Congress "we will lay our plans to put in some new Congressmen in 1936." He claims the support of petitions carrying the names of 30,000,000 signatures.

Dr. Townsend and his helpers might push the plan down the throats of members of Congress, but his scheme of taxation for financing the problem will hardly be readily accepted by a people already overburdened by taxes. Too many people, well able to meet the obligations, are allowing their own kin to spend their few remaining days in the charitable institutions and county homes. And when such a situation exists, Dr. Townsend, or no one else can well expect a removed people to willingly subscribe to a tax, direct or indirect, for financing such a fantastic scheme.

Sympathy exists for those old people who have met with misfortune and are now nearly penniless. Many of them will run the remainder of their life's course without relief being made available to them. Some may live to see the day when the federal and state governments appropriate small sums to help keep alive the spark of life in their frail bodies. But the fantastic plan so eagerly and hopefully listened to by hundreds in this section several months ago will hardly come to pass. Regardless of the happenings in the past that rendered many old people penniless and dependent, they are entitled to humane treatment, and it is reasonable to believe that old-age pensions will be provided, but in far smaller amounts than the sum mentioned in the Townsend plan.

The plight of these old people means nothing to members of the rising generation, for they continue to throw their lives and savings away, thinking not at all about their welfare in old age.

Notes on Worry

Greensboro Daily News

Senator Reynolds' office of course has its own—and who is there to say erroneous?—ideas of the value of publicity and the public reaction to the articles which it recently dispatched, along with mats of the smiling senatorial countenance, anent Our Bob's departure for the Virgin Island, the Canal Zone and various Central and South American points which pressed either for probing or for good will.

At least some of the citizenry who gaze upon the examples of press-agentry are likely to have emphasized upon them the fact that Senator Reynolds—50 per cent, numerically, of the state's senatorial representation—is leaving Washington at a time when there are any number of situations and problems which are no less in need of probing, if that's where a senator's talents lie, and subsequent action than are the Virgin Islands and other points on Our Bob's itinerary.

For a senator who really has something to contribute to the common weal, the present, one would surmise, is a mighty good time to stick around Washington. While the Daily News disagrees with Senator Bailey's views on the anti-lynching bill, he is at least there presenting them. Highly important and controversial measures, marked "must" by an administration in whose name Cap'n Bob was elected, although there has been no lasting affinity in more recent days, are in the offing. While sitting through debate and deliberation upon such matters as social security, banking, holding company control, choice of a bonus measure, et cetera, might be tedious and irksome for a world traveler when spring is in the air, it is none the less part of a senator's duty, and some time or other his stand upon any or all of them might prove interesting campaign material. But, for that matter, the lack of ditto may too.

To be sure, the antidote for whatever worry or misapprehension exists over this shortage of senatorial representation during such momentous legislative days is the idea, for those who care to apply it, that Senator Reynolds is contributing just as much to solution of these problems while junketing in the Caribbean as he would have had he remained in Washington.

B. B. Wynne vs. Ethel Wynne
The defendant above named will take

Try CARDUI For Functional Monthly Pains

Women from the teen age to the change of life have found Cardui genuinely helpful for the relief of functional monthly pains due to lack of just the right strength from the food they eat. Mrs. Crit Haynes, of Essex, Mo., writes: "I used Cardui when a girl for cramps and found it very beneficial. I have recently taken Cardui during the change of life. I was very nervous, had head and back pains and was in a generally run-down condition. Cardui has helped me greatly."
Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

WITH OR WITHOUT DELUXE EQUIPMENT

A FORD is always a FORD V-8

EVERY FORD CAR HAS:

- the same, economical, 85-horsepower V-8 engine.
- the same, new, Comfort-engineered Chassis.
- 6.00 x 16" air-balloon tires and Safety Glass all 'round at no extra cost.

IMPORTANT FORD FEATURES COMMON TO ALL BODY-TYPES

- 85 horsepower, V-type, 8 cylinder engine with aluminum cylinder heads and dual, downdraft carburetor.
- 123-inch springbase for riding ease on a 112-inch chassis for handling ease.
- Torque-tube Drive.
- Front seat 50 1/2" wide... Ample luggage space in all models at no extra cost.
- Welded steel-spoke wheels, 4" rim.
- All-steel body welded into one piece.
- Big, positive brakes with 12" drums and more braking surface per pound of car weight than any other car under $1095.
- 4 double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers.
- 17 plate battery.
- 6.00x16" air-balloon tires.
- Safety Glass all 'round.

IT is common practice, nowadays, to find two quite different automobiles sold under the same name. This difference will run all the way from a difference in horsepower, chassis and body design to a difference in the number of cylinders in the engine.

No such difference exists between one Ford V-8 and another. Ford builds only one size of automobile with the same V-8 engine on the same 112-inch chassis. The springbase of all Ford cars is 123 inches and all passengers ride centerpoised—between the springs in the "Comfort Zone."

The only difference between a Ford V-8 and a Deluxe Ford V-8 is in equipment—not in engineering... And even here, two major items—Safety Glass all 'round and 6.00x16" air-balloon tires—are standard equipment on all Ford cars at no extra cost.

Therefore, when you are choosing your 1935 car, good judgment demands you check the list of features shown above. All of them are found on every Ford car built and without them no automobile can be considered a true 1935 value.

FERTILIZER

To our farmer friends, who are now planting their crops and who have not bought their full requirements in fertilizer, for the balance of your needs you most certainly want to buy not only fertilizer manufactured out of the best sources of plant foods, goods that are well cured, properly balanced with an increased amount of potash to balance the extra nitrogen, caused by changing from ammonia to nitrogen basis. Service or delivery may also be an item. If you want all of these, order PHILLIPS' VERI-BEST EUREKA for your tobacco, it analyzes 3-8-6 and is put up in cotton bags. We can deliver to your farm on twenty-four hours' notice.
