Traitor of the Century

We don't know whether Mrs. Roosevelt invited Al Smith to the White House or not. However, we do know that we would rather she would hang the picture of Benedict Arnold there than to have Al Smith there.

Benedict Arnold was the traitor of his century. Al Smith is showing himself to be the super-traitor of this century. The men who were associated with Arnold in his treachery were far more honorable men and could be trusted much further than can the gang Smith hangs out with.

Let the Profiteers Pay the Bonus

We say pay the soldiers' bonus in cash at once, and force Morgan, Mellon, duPont and the other war profiteers to pay it, even if it takes the last button off their "britches" and the last spoon out of their mouths.

They were the fellows who fostered and helped to bring on the war that caused more than 60,000 of our young men to be shot to death or die of disease, in army camps, while these profiteers were perpetrating unholly robbery on the people at large.

Not only are they responsible for the war debts, but they are likewise responsible for the need of feeding the great starving population which was driven to hunger while they gathered gorgeous wealth into their coffers and have succeeded in getting a supreme court to hold that it was not just common stealing.

Pay the bonus—and make the profiteers stand the cost.

Selfish and Without Mercy

What do you think of the Italian and Japanese idea?

The population of each country is increasing from three-quarters to a million annually, and they figure that they not only have the right to increase their own population, but they go further and say they have the right to diminish the population of China and Abyssinia by killing these people and stealing their homes.

It would seem that the Italians and the Japanese are not only very selfish but mean and without mercy. Let them stop pensioning big families in their own countries, and they will not need to kill others and grab their homes and lands.

Cromwell and Roosevelt

English royalty hated Oliver Cromwell worse than they did Satan, because he took some of their royal power and prerogatives away and gave it to the poor peasants. But it made a much better and happier England.

The domineering American financiers hate Roosevelt worse than they do the devil, because he has kicked their heels off of the laboring poor. But the country is better by such a course, and business is better, and happiness is extended to all.

Don't Wake Up Too Late

The man signing himself "A Greensboro Taxpayer," writing in one of the State newspapers, in our opinion, comes nearer scoring himself a full 100 per cent jackass than any other we have ever heard of for a long time. He makes an effort to belittle President Roosevelt in many ways, but in the final analysis the writer comes out of his siege as "the stinking skunk rather than the animal old dog Ross treed."

If the people stop to listen to these "Liberty" Leaguers, who are barking for the Raskobs, duPonts, and others of their ilk, and others who come out with defamatory slanders without any semblance of truth, they will one day wake up to find themselves dominated by the worst gang of robbers and thieves that ever destroyed a people.

Teach Good Citizenship

One of man's greatest mistakes is made when he tries to have his own way, and no person is just and true, nor a good citizen, when he tries to have his own way about everything all the time.

The child that demands the right to dictate his own course gives the family trouble almost every time. The man in the town or country who wants everybody else to get out of the road until he passes is unfair. The man who demands to be waited on first at the post office or barber shop is always willing to be the last to be called on for a contribution to the church or to charity. It is a very fine trait in man to be willing to take his place in the line of humanity and bear his load cheerfully, without murmuring or complaining. The fellows who want more privileges and greater favors than his neighbor is a bad citizen.

We seriously need to give more time to teaching better citizenship to our children and young people. It is perhaps too late to start with the older people. The schools have a wonderful opportunity along this line.

Up To the Legislature

Now that the Supreme Court has thrown the burden of regulating things to the several States, let our legislature get busy and tax all foreign stocks just as they do other property. There is already too much of the big man's property escaping fair and just taxation.

Court and Politics

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
in The New York World-Telegram

The Supreme Court gave plain warning in its high-handed scrapping of AAA that other New Deal measures are to be mowed down as soon as it can get around to the grim business. That is, as soon as it can find the technical legal pretexts to support its political opinions.

This leaves President Roosevelt free to do one of two things. He can resign himself to the court's verdict as the final word of divine inspiration. He can accept the court as the governing oligarchy of the country. He can yield to its political philosophy which would confine the Federal Government largely to running the army, the navy and the municipal affairs in the District of Columbia. Or he can accept the challenge as a political one, which it is, and go to the country to determine whether the people want to be governed by their elected President and their elected Congress or by a lame-duck judicial dictatorship.

There is no use being dainty any longer in discussing the court. It is in politics up to its neck. It can no longer claim the immunity from political discussion which a purely judicial body properly enjoys. Since it is vetoing acts of Congress right and left, it is no more immune from discussion than the President is immune when he vetoes an act of Congress.

That this country, which presumably believes in the democratic form of government, will permit itself to be governed by a judicial oligarchy is incredible. We have protested against Mr. Roosevelt's tendencies toward dictatorship. More dangerous is judicial dictatorship, because the Supreme Court doesn't have to come up for re-election.

Look at the six men who have just undone the AAA, which has operated for two and a half years and made itself an integral part in the recovery of the country.

The youngest is Justice Roberts, a Philadelphia corporation lawyer, appointed by President Hoover. Comparatively young, a man who has been out in the world of big affairs until very recently, you would think he would still be too practical minded to have made this retreat back almost to the days of the Confederation.

The senior is Justice Van Devanter, 76 years old, who was placed on the throne by President Taft in 1910 after a small career as a lawyer in Wyoming, where he also doubled in Republican state politics.

The Chief Justice is one of the ablest men in the country and has breadth of statesmanship. Yet he was rejected by the country when he ran as a Republican candidate for President in 1916.

Justice McReynolds was a small-time Tennessee lawyer whose friends got him into the Wilson cabinet and then on the Supreme bench, a man whose decisions have shown the most narrow legalistic conception of American problems.

Justice Butler was a Minnesota corporation lawyer, known as an extreme reactionary before President Harding put him on the bench.

Justice Sutherland was a Utah lawyer who became a Republican Senator for one term, when he was retired by the voters and later rescued and put on the bench by President Harding.

Those are the mighty men who have scrapped AAA. They are the men who have made themselves the supreme custodians of the nation and who have assumed the right to dictate what the nation shall do to save itself from distress. They are the men who have said that the government, after failing in every other attempt to restore the equilibrium of farm prices, shall not continue with the one method which in a trial of two and a half years has greatly alleviated the situation.

These six men tell us we can't do it. They get away with it because John Marshall, while engaged in a desperate political battle with Jefferson, did. Nothing in the Constitution says they can.

President Roosevelt has his issue now if he wishes to accept it. Is this a government of, by and for the people or the Supreme Court?
