We Welcome Tomorrow

shall have power to establish uniform laws on the subject to bankruptcies throughout the United States."

The language used would seem to be so plain that even a reactionary justice of the United States Supreme Court might understand it, if he cared for his oath of office, without trying to twist the power to make laws out of the hands of the people's chosen representatives, the Congress, and usurp it, so that a half a vote of one man should swing the issue and kill the law outright.

It is interesting to note the trend of the recent decisions of the Supreme Court. Yet it is sad when we begin to search for the liberties of the American people and they cannot be found, because a court of a certain line of thinking—or, at least, acting—has run rough-shod over the plain words of the English language as written in our Constitution.

It is hard to decide which we need worse, a new Constitution or new judges who respect the Constitution. It is certain that the people of the United States have the right to demand one of the two.

The Supreme Court has split on most of the vital issues it has heard during the past year, and in nearly every case wherein the rights of the people's liberties were at stake the court has decided against them. It has come to the point where, when the people's rights are at stake, the public has no difficulty at all in guessing the decision before it is rendered.

The Constitution is no longer a sacred document under which all men stand equal, but has taken on the character of a desecrated, dirty rag.

The Constitution was designed for but one purpose: To protect; and certainly not to oppress.

A High Aim

Sampson Independent

The youngest of the children of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe once asked her mother: "What is the ideal aim of life?" Mrs. Howe replied, "To learn, to serve, to enjoy." This is indeed a high aim, and one worthy of adoption. One of the reasons, we think, for so much unhappiness and unrest among people is that they aim so low.

Mrs. Howe was well qualified to know the ideal aim of life, for hers was one of learning, service and enjoyment. It was her facile pen that wrote the immortal "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and many other noted works. It was she also who formed the New England Woman Suffrage Association.

She passed away in 1910. The world regards her as one of the builders of modern times.

Shortage of Good Pastures Retarding Dairying in State

Lack of Good Pasture Cause For More Costly Milk Production

A shortage of good pasture is considered the weakest spot in North Carolina's dairy cattle feeding program.

Because of this shortage, milk production is more costly than in states where pasturage is more abundant, said John A. Arey, extension dairyman at State College.

Under a good feeding schedule, nearly one-third of a cow's feed comes from the pasture, but the pasturage accounts for only one-seventh of the total cost.

In other words, Arey pointed out, the nutrients gained from a pasture are much cheaper than those from other sources.

Tender, succulent pasturage is nature's most perfect milk producing food, Arey stated. At this stage of growth the feed-nutrients in pasturage are easily digested and the mineral and protein content of the grass is high.

Unfortunately, Arey remarked, many farmers think that pastures should be only on land too poor to raise other crops profitably. Such is not the case, he declared.

A good pasture can be grown only on good soil. On most farms, he added, are sizable cut-over areas of fertile land suitable for pastures, but now covered with brush.

Where the slope of the land is steep enough to make erosion a serious problem, row crops should not be cultivated. But a good sod of pasture grass holds the soil

Jamesville Boy Wins Junior Order Medal

A delegation from Plymouth Rock Council of the Junior Order United American Mechanics attended the senior class night exercises at Jamesville high school last week and presented a gold pin to Alexander Corey for writing the best paper on patriotism.

Dr. C. McGowan, past councillor, in an appropriate speech presented the award. Every senior competed. The three best papers were by Nancy Coltrain, Beulah Marie Hardison (read by Hubert Ange), and Alexander Corey. Judges selecting the winner were Dr. McGowan and J. E. Uzzle and Miss Hilda Modlin, of Jamesville.

Offer Pointers To Girl Club Members

A bulletin filled with suggestions for 4-H club members in preparing and serving delicious, wholesome meals has been issued by the State College agricultural extension service.

The bulletin contains an outline of fundamentals in home economics, together with a number of tempting recipes recommended by the authors, Miss Mary E. Thomas, extension nutritionist at the college, and Miss Sallie Brooks, assistant.

Copies may be secured free by writing the agricultural editor at State College for extension circular No. 209, "Food Preparation for 4-H club members."

Running the Farm Is Family Affair

Running the family business should be a cooperative enterprise, said Miss Pauline Gordon, extension specialist in home management at State College.

A man is not protecting and providing for his family in the best way when he keeps all business transactions and worries to himself, she stated.

He needs the help of the family circle and the members have a right to know something about his business. This is especially significant in the case of a farm family.

Not only can the family help the husband and father with his problems, they can also plan their own affairs more satisfactorily when they are acquainted with the family's business.

The training young people get in this way will be of great value to them when they go out into the world, Miss Gordon added.

Discussions of the cost of shelter, food, clothing, education, travel, taxes, automobiles and entertainment can be made a valuable part of the children's education.

Every family should study its income and so arrange its mode of living not to exceed that income. By working together, the farm family can often develop projects which will increase its income.

The family council, in which all members pool their best judgment, will lead to sounder decisions on various problems and at the same time help bind the family together in love and respect.

If the family has no knowledge or training in business transactions, she asked, what would happen if the husband should die?

Ford Farm Almanac Has Timely June Suggestions

Timely suggestions for profitable spare-time activities during June are contained in the Ford Almanac and Facts Book under the heading, "Reminders."

The almanac contains historical data for the month, listing an historic event for each day. Among the events listed are the world's first balloon ascension on June 5, 1783; the organization of the Y. M. C. A. on June 6, 1844; the landing of the Dutch on Manhattan Island on June 10, 1610.

Full moon this month occurs on the 4th, the last quarter on the 12th, the new moon on the 18th and the first quarter on the 26th, according to the Almanac.

In one week recently Cabarrus farmers sold 28,180 pounds of Korean lespedeza seed in addition to making heavy seedings on their own farms.
